PROHIBITION, DEPRESSION ARE G. O. P. HOODOOS

Combination to Aid Democrats.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Hard times, unemployment, and the widespread reaction against national prohibition account in the main for the reverses the Republicans will suffer in the election of the Seventy-second congress tomorrow.

Dispatches received last night from TRIBUNE correspondents in all the states in which senate and house seats are being contested describe the result as turning upon economic considerations and upon the question of repeal or modification of national prohibition.

It is an old story that will be retold in the election returns tomorrow night—the tendency of voters to hold the party in power responsible for the causes of their discontent, just as it is the tendency in good times to give the party in power credit for conditions making for widespread contentment.

Democrats Capitalize Depression.

The Democrats, in this era of business depression and unemployment, are finding it as easy to capitalize existing conditions to their political aggrandizement, as the Republicans were able to capitalize prosperity two years ago. Even the reaction against national prohibition has taken on an economic tinge. The wets are finding ready listeners to the argument that the destruction of the liquor traffic, with its vast investment, its consumption of grains, and its contribution to public revenues of one billion dollars a year is an important factor of our economic ills, and the drys are finding it necessary to answer this line of reasoning.

With the Hoover administration definitely accepting the Democratic challenge of responsibility for hard times, the canvass comes to a close with the economic note dominant. At first the administration appeared disposed to hold aloof from the campaign for the election of Republican senators and congressmen. This attitude was widely interpreted as the reflection of a desire on the part of the administration to avoid placing itself in a position which would give ground for censuring the election of a Democratic house or even less disastrous Republican reverses, as a popular repudiation of the Hoover régime.

Administration Forced In.

In the closing week of the campaign, however, the administration came into the fight with its heaviest guns in a final supreme effort to stay the Democratic assault. Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War Patrick Hurley, Secretary of Commerce Robert Lamont, and Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde have either taken the stump in closely contested states or made addresses in the interest of Republican candidates.

The burden of the speeches of the cabinet officers is that hard times are not due to any fault of omission or commission on the part of the Hoover administration, but are an intergral part of a world-wide industrial depression occasioned by post-war overproduction. The cabinet ministers also have stressed the efforts of President Hoover to reduce unemployment and to relieve distress. The Republican managers assert they already detect favorable influence upon voters exerted by the administration spokesmen, particularly in arguing that Mr. Hoover has amply demonstrated an unequaled ability to organize relief of distress and that the surest way to reduce unemployment and restore prosperity is to support Mr. Hoover by returning a Republican congress that will carry out his policies.

Democrats Press Attack.

Ignoring the administration answer to the cry of hard times the Democratic leaders are continuing to press their argument that if the Republican party was entitled to the credit for prosperity, as it maintained in 1928, it cannot avoid the blame for the current depression, for the Republicans are still in power with as much control of economic conditions as they possessed two years ago. In this connection the Democrats are fond of quoting Mr. Hoover's campaign speeches in which he said that the way to assure continuance of prosperity was to retain the Republican party in power.

The Democrats also are given to

ADDIS ABABA, Abyssinia, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Amidst barbaric splendor and lavish pageantry Ras Taffari Makonnen, the 39 year old prince who has been regent of Abyssinia for fourteen years, was crowned at dawn today as emperor Haile Selassie I.

The United States was represented at the ceremonies by an official delegation and by private citizens from various sections of the country from Seattle to New York.

The coronation gives Ras Taffari, who claims descent from King Solomon and the queen of Sheba, the titles of emperor, lord king of kings of Ethiopia, conquering lion of the tribe of Judah, the elect of God, and the light of the world.

Queen's "Coming Out Party."

Simultaneously the royal consort, Princess Wazird Menen, a short, rotund woman of 40, was crowned as Queen Etegra Menen, queen of queens of Ethiopia. This was virtually the queen's "coming out party," as she has heretofore been confined to her housewifely and motherly duties in the royal household. She has five children, one of them married, and has taken no active part in court and state affairs.

The coronation ceremony, performed by the venerable Coptic archbishp of Ethiopia, was unparalleled in modern times for quaintness, color, and magnificence. The cost to the government was estimated at $3,000,000. For six months the nation has been preparing holiday garb for the occasion.

As their majesties rode to the church through the streets of the mountain capital, which were packed with tens of thousands of their braves and chieftains, the masses thundered forth cheers and wild, savage cries of acclaim. Scores of natives were trampled in the dust as the crowd surged to catch sight of the coronation party.

Princes and Tribal Chiefs.

On either side of the colored potentates, acting as escorts of honor, were olive-skinned, black-bearded and curly-headed Ethiopian princes and tribal chiefs. They wore multi-colored costumes of silk and satin, embroidered in gold and silver. Their shields were of hippopotamus hides, and they had medieval swords and scabbards.

Behind the monarch and his queen were the high priests in vestments of scarlet, green, yellow, or purple, carrying gold and silver crouiers and incense lamps. Following the ecclesiastics were groups of princes and grandees in black silk ceremonial capes, and the members of the cabinet and government in their national shammas.

Ras Taffari and his queen rode in the imperial chariot which once belonged to former Kaiser Wilhelm of

WOMAN KILLED AS HEATER USES UP AIR IN HOME

A woman was found dead from suffocation and her husband and a woman roomer overcome in a basement flat at 1108 Wrightwood avenue as the result of exhaustion of oxygen in the air last night from a flueless gas water heater which had been left lighted. The discovery was made by neighbors who were aroused by the barking of a dog which tried to break through a window into the apartment when he saw his stricken master lying on the floor.

The dead victim is Mrs. Anna Randell, 50 years old. Her husband, John, was taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital, and the roomer, Louise Hasky, 23 years old, to the Illinois Masonic hospital. Both are in a serious condition.

Two young children of Mrs. Laura Broch, George, 3 years old, and Virginia, 5 years old, living in the apartment directly above the Randells, also were found in a stupor from the exhaustion of air and were revived by two fire department pulmotor squads. Lieut. Phil Parodi of Sheffield avenue station found that a gas water heater without provision for ventilation had filled the place with carbon monoxide gas and consumed the oxygen in the air.

U. S. Consul in Cuba, Wife and Friend Drown

[Copyright, 1930: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Nov. 2.—William R. Jackson, 36, of Madison, Ill., American consul in Havana, his wife, and John T. Wainwright, 33, of New York, American vice consul in Matanzas, were drowned late today in Matanzas bay. The bodies had not been recovered tonight, as high waves made search difficult.

Mr. Jackson was drowned when he attempted to rescue his wife, who had been blown off a cliff in a gale. Mr. Wainwright lost his life in an attempt to rescue them.

Sydney Gest, vice consul in Havana and a member of the party, who tried to rescue the three, was saved by his wife, who drew him from the bay with the aid of a long pole.

Taking the controls again, the pilot made a safe landing and lifted the woman out of his machine. By that time she had recovered consciousness. Her only injury was a bruised chin.

BANDITS INVADE HOME TO SEIZE GEMS AND CASH

Youth Wounded as Gunmen Escape.

Sixty guests sat around a festive table last night in the home of Benjamin and Mrs. Anna Wolpert, 3829 West Adams street, in the Garfield park district, participating in the silver wedding celebration of their host and hostess. Children and grandchildren played about happily, and the atmosphere was one of gayety and obvious security.

In a twinkling all was changed. Four bandits invaded the home. They terrorized the guests, stilled the laughter of the children, shot one of their victims, and escaped with loot valued between $10,000 and $15,000.

Youth Is Wounded Victim.

The gun victim was Benjamin Glosser, 18 years old, of 9236 Vincennes avenue. He was not seriously wounded, although a shot grazed his abdomen. Another struck his right knee.

Robbery was the furthest thought in the minds of any of the guests. Presents had just been handed to the Wolperts and some one was about to deliver a congratulatory speech when the front door was pushed open and three men, two armed with shotguns, the third a revolver, entered. A hush fell over the guests, broken finally by the bandits.

"This is a stickup; don't move," they ordered.

Through the rear door a fourth man carrying a shotgun entered. He was the leader. He stood behind the Wolperts, and commanded the guests to hand over their valuables.

Leader Gathers up Loot.

Without a word the men and women fumbled in their pockets, at their fingers, at their necks, and passed over money, rings, and necklaces. The bandit leader walked around and gathered up the loot. From Mrs. Anna Blustein, 835 East 39th street, he took gems valued at $1,200, and her purse containing $50. From Mrs. E. Wolpert, 4481 North Harding avenue, a daughter-in-law of the host, he took rings worth $500.

When the holdup was completed the four gunmen backed out, overlooking $500 in silver presents stored on a table. As they reached the door young Glosser stepped out of line. At the same moment the leader fired both barrels of his shotgun into the floor, either as a warning against pursuit or to repel Glosser. One of the slugs ricocheted and lodged in Glosser's right knee.

Panic Among Guests.

The shot unloosed the pent up terror of the robbery victims, and a panic followed. Several men picked up the wounded boy and took him to the West End hospital. Others tried to follow the outlaws and saw them drive away in an automobile containing a fifth man.

Fillmore street police were summoned and sent out several squads.

Cut Wall, Steal Dresses Worth $12,000 from Store

Gaining entrance by sawing a hole through a frame wall, burglars last night looted the Grathwohls Dress shop in La Grange of $12,000 in women's merchandise. Witnesses who saw them drive away in a black sedan said there were four in the band.

Mayor Better; May Soon Be Out of Danger

Improvement was noted yesterday in the condition of Mayor Thompson, according to the physicians attending him at the Passavant hospital. At 10 o'clock last night a bulletin from the sick room said:

"The mayor had a restful and comfortable day. He is not yet out of danger, but is progressing favorably."

It was stated that no more bulletins would be issued during the night.

Following a consultation at 1 p. m., Dr. Milton M. Portis, spokesman for his colleagues, said that if the mayor continued gaining at the present rate he might be considered out of danger in the next 24 hours.

The symptoms of peritonitis, discovered when the mayor underwent an operation for appendicitis on Friday, have not increased, according to Dr. Portis. The patient was able to take liquid nourishment yesterday.

Spends Restful Night.

A bulletin, issued at 10 a. m. yesterday, stated the mayor had passed a restful night and awoke refreshed. In addition to Dr. Portis, Dr. Allen B. Kanavel and Dr. L. L. MacArthur, the bulletin was signed by Health Commissioner Kegel, the mayor's personal physician, who arrived by plane Saturday night from Fort Worth, where he had been attending a convention.

The bulletin read as follows:

"The attending physicians report that the mayor passed a restful night and awoke refreshed. His temperature, pulse, and respiration are consistent with our present findings. No new complications have arisen. While not out of danger, the outlook is more favorable."

Temperature Is Near Normal.

From visitors at the bedside it was learned that the patient's temperature was within a few degrees of normal and that his pulse had dropped more than 25 points from a high mark observed Saturday afternoon. It was said that the mayor's heart action is good, the lungs clear, and organic tests negative.

Among the visitors yesterday were the mayor's wife, Mrs. Mary Walker Thompson; his sister, Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze; Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements; Samuel A. Ettelson, corporation counsel; Ald. Berthold A. Cronson, nephew of Mr. Ettelson, and George F. Harding, county treasurer.

Will Get the Returns.

Excepting the mayor's family, Mr. Harding was the only person permitted in the sickroom. The mayor manifested interest in developments of the senatorial campaign and his secretary, Robert J. Lyman, announced he was completing arrangements for having election returns at the bedside tomorrow night.

Echoes of the campaign sounded in the mayor's room about 3 p. m. when a parade of fifteen cars, carrying the banners of Mrs. John T. Joyce, candidate for senator in the Twenty-ninth district, passed the hospital with blaring horns and vociferous cheering. The police detail at the hospital promptly silenced the demonstrators.

'SNIPER' SHOOTS GIRL; IS SECOND VICTIM IN WEEK

New York, Nov. 2.—[Special.]—The second victim of a "silent sniper," operating in the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn, was taken to Greenpoint hospital today with a flesh wound in her shoulder. The sniper, using a small bore pistol, wounded Miss Helen Hoynacki as she was walking along the street with a girl friend.

Both girls said they heard no report, but Miss Hoynacki suddenly felt a sharp pain in her shoulder. She reached up, discovered the wound and fainted. Her condition is not serious, it was said.

Lawrence Sissen, 22 years old, of Hollis, L. I., was wounded under similar circumstances about a week ago in the same neighborhood.

SENATE FIGHT RAGES THROUGH SABBATH CALM

Battle Centers on Wet-Dry Issue.

Election Weather

Chicago and vicinity were promised satisfactory weather conditions for tomorrow's election in the official bulletin issued last night by J. R. Lloyd, acting government forecaster. "Increasing cloudiness and warmer Tuesday," was his forecast. Today's prediction is fair and slightly colder.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Prohibition was the dominant issue discussed by Ruth Hanna McCormick and James Hamilton Lewis yesterday in their great senatorship battle. The campaign became more furious than ever as it approached tomorrow's polls.

The intensity of the struggle will keep the candidates hammering away right up to the tap of the bell, and after noonday rallies in the loop the contestants will take to the air tonight in final arguments to radio audiences of the state.

Both Mrs. McCormick and Mr. Lewis appeared on the south side yesterday in addresses directed to colored voters. Night saw them riding through the city in an unusual number of Sunday meetings.

Mrs. McCormick's Argument.

Mrs. McCormick, taking up the wet and dry issue, set forth the argument that to send a wet Democrat to the senate would accomplish nothing, because he would meet with "practically solid opposition" from other Democratic senators, especially the dry, voting southerners. She declared the referendum route is the real method of approach and the Republican delegation in the senate the real agency through which to reach any accomplishment.

Mrs. McCormick assailed Mr. Lewis for his support of the league of nations and took up the question of unemployment and tariff.

Lewis Attacks Prohibition.

Mr. Lewis in his addresses renewed his onslaught upon national prohibition. He reiterated his argument that the only solution of the evils attendant on the 18th amendment and Volsteadism is to return the question of liquor to the states for treatment on a real basis of temperance and morality.

He tore into the Republicans, accusing them of "tricking the farmers" with vain promises. He declared that "smug, self-satisfied eastern masters" of the Republican party have ranged east against west in the matter of tariff.

Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, independent, spoke at Mandel hall and said the voters are not concerned with "the old party ballyhooing now going on," but with other questions. She said unemployment must be met by national and state coöperation.

As the candidates plunged into the final feverish activities, indications from downstate are that public interest has been so roused that a vote will be cast eclipsing any other off year battle in Illinois.

REPEATS HER PLEDGE

Mrs. McCormick at night, taking up the wet and dry issues, said that if the 18th amendment is to be repealed it can be in only one way, through resubmission by the senate to the states.

"All the senate can do in the matter," she said, "is to adopt a resolution to resubmit the question of repeal to the states. If 36 states ratify the proposal to repeal, the constitution is thus automatically changed.

"We are to have a referendum Tuesday, and I said in my first speech that if a majority of the voters favor repeal I shall then vote for a resolution in the senate, when elected, proposing to the 48 states that they vote on the question of repeal.

For Rule of Majority.

"I have been criticised for taking that position, but it is identical with that taken by leading Republicans and Democrats all over the country. I am going to cast my vote in accordance with the principles of majority rule. If we do not adhere to majority rule as a basic principle we are striking at the very foundation of American government.

"My opponent says he will vote for repeal of the 18th amendment whether a majority of the people desire him to or not. Those who are opposed to prohibition and those who believe it is not being effectively enforced have

Fashions in Furs Reveal Influence of New Styles

Once women wore fur coats for warmth. If they served as a protection against wintry blasts that was all the ladies asked. Gradually furriers began to realize that fur coats need not necessarily be clumsy-looking affairs. They trimmed one kind of fur coat with the pelt of another animal. Women learned to look for style as well as utility in fur coats.

A look into the shop windows or a few glances about the fur departments of Chicago stores will indicate what we mean by style combined with utility. Belts are smart with short fur jackets. Coats, fitted at the waist, flare at the hem, with interesting detail on the sleeves. Fur coats for sports, for street wear, for afternoon, for formal occasions—in fashionable styles—are unusually becoming.

All this is in addition to the important fact that fur prices are down. From the standpoint of economy and style, there was never in recent years a better time to invest in a new fur coat.

Chicago Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

right as citizens to demand repeal, but they cannot accomplish anything by sending a so-called wet Democrat to the senate, for that new Illinois senator would be in opposition to practically the solid opposition of the other Democratic senators.

The Southern Senators.

"You know as I do that the senators from the 14 southern states always vote unanimously for dry measures. All those Democratic senators and many more from northern states would be opposed to any wet proposal made by any senator, Republican or Democrat.

"Those dry Democratic votes would nullify the vote of a wet Democrat so far as action on prohibition was concerned. It is plain, therefore, that the question of repealing the 18th amendment will be put up to the Republican delegation in the senate, as the Democrats will oppose repeal to the bitter end."

Tells of Jobless Relief.

Turning to unemployment and the business situation, Mrs. McCormick spoke of a seven billion dollar construction program proposed by the Republican administration.

"Democratic candidates are criticising that program," she said. "They are hindering the administration instead of helping it. They are doing this for purely political and partisan reasons, just as the Democrats in the senate delayed the passage of the tariff bill for more than a year merely to embarrass a President who is from another political party than their own.

"A Democratic vote in the senate from Illinois will add not at all in preserving the American payroll. I urge the necessity of keeping in mind the fact that a successful completion of plans requires that you send to senate and house Republican votes instead of Democratic votes."

Recalls Foe's Record on League.

Mrs. McCormick spoke of Mr. Lewis' activities in behalf of the league of nations during the Wilson régime, and said:

"On Oct. 17, 1918, Mr. Lewis offered in the senate a resolution proposing to give President Wilson a blanket approval, in advance, of all the agreements he might make with European nations in connection with the peace negotiations at Paris.

"He wanted to make Woodrow Wilson a dictator. He well knew that the constitution provides that no President can make any treaties of any sort with any foreign nations without advice and consent of the United States senate.

"A vote for the Democrats is a vote for pacifistic internationalism, because they will try to get us into the league of nations and destroy our independence of action as a nation."

LEWIS ISSUES STATEMENT

Mr. Lewis, before his night meetings at which he took up the wet and dry question, put forth a preelection statement summarizing the campaign.

"This political campaign," he said, "has educated our people to a number of facts no wio them; first, that since the world war a generation of voters, men and women, have come to life for their first, second and third vote.

"These are not affected by the prejudices of the old days. These voters seek new issues and these issues they understand shall apply to their present day needs as citizens of the republic. In this manner we are in this day freed from the bondage of old partyism.

Says New Deal Is Wanted.

"In order that we shall be redeemed and rescued from the old corruption in official life, defilement in political machinery, and inefficiency in general, a new deal is demanded. The developments of the last ten years disclose a deliberate betrayal of the interests of the great masses by those who have been put in power under the influence of a party name."

At Blue Island and Chicago Heights Mr. Lewis emphasized the liquor question.

"In this campaign," he said, "Illinois has the opportunity to express itself on the great moral issue of prohibition that is now calling for solution. It must decide whether it will vote to continue the national depravity of government, the multiplying drunkenness, the debauchery of the young, the pollution of students in colleges, the defilement of education institutes, and, finally, the increasing records of murder each day, ignored by the officials and unrestrained by the courts.

"Murder has become the chief business of an organization having its seat of authority in Chicago and its surroundings, and extending through the United States to an extent surpassing whatever prevailed in ancient lands of the barbarians of the Roman world and the banditti and brigands of mountain lands of the days of highway theft and public pillage which marked the criminal era of ignorance and the dark ages of the uncivilized world.

"Will Illinois dismiss the mere party label which is upon it to adopt in the name of a democracy that which represents the true republicanism—a home rule of your own people which shall enforce the national amendment in the national law through state enactments defining the procedure and prescribing such methods as you at your ballot box shall declare to be the system available and most effective to carry out the principle of temperance?

Hits "Prohibition Hypocrisy."

"The spirit of the laws is those who were sincere in their advocacy discards and repudiates the hypocrisy and deception put upon you by those who used the plan of prohibition as the agency to install into office an army of paid parasites [to the number of 500,000] that feed and fatten on the lesser criminal until you have the confession from official sources that 'two million outlaws' are in possession of the government.

"All law is being palsied by their grip, honest officials ignored or defeated with the trick of bribery or the bludgeon of assault—and five hundred million of dollars drawn from taxes, robbing every commercial independence and draining every resource of manufacture, commerce and banking, to where the enforced payment of excess taxes to the government has left no proceeds from their business of quality or quantity by which they could put in employment any of the millions, hungry and homeless, who are crying for refuge.

"Revolution at Our Door."

"Without some rescue they are fitting meat for conversion into communism, anarchy and revolt. Revolution is now upon the countries of Europe and the lands of South America, reaching to our doors in Cuba and threatening us with the danger of its example and destruction of its influence.

"I ask you: Were the conditions which now are upon the republic ever known in the earlier experience of your churches and your religious societies when you established local temperance through your county and state, and placed in effect a prohibition enforced by officers of your own choosing, swayed and directed by their conscience, sanctified under religion through the organization of the churches of your doctrine?"

MRS. O'NEILL HITS FOES

Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, dry independent candidate, in a talk at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago, said the major parties had agitated the prohibition issue and neglected economic questions.

"The mad scramble for power," she said, "has caused them to forget that the people are eagerly looking to their leads to provide relief for depressed economic conditions.

"I say now let them face the music on prohibition. They brought it in for the purpose of confusing the electorate and getting them off on a wild goose chase, and now when it bids fair to destroy them they cry out it is not an issue, and the Republican governor hustles around at this late date to get together an unemployment commission. This matter could have been brought up on the convention floor at Springfield on Aug. 22.

"It disgusts me to hear the call of the ward heeler to the electorate to get behind the party labels. I should like to ask, 'What for?' The answer is, because the party leaders want the electorate to help them grind their own axes."

Lamont Appeals to Illinois to Elect Mrs. McCormick

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Secretary of Commerce Robert Lamont of Chicago tonight issued a statement calling upon the voters of Illinois to elect Ruth Hanna McCormick to the senate and return a strong Republican delegation to congress. By retaining the Republicans in control, the cabinet member said, the people will adopt the most certain means of bringing a full measure of prosperity back to the whole country.

"I think it is particularly desirable," Mr. Lamont stated, "that we of the great state of Illinois reaffirm the confidence expressed in President Hoover two years ago by electing Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick to the senate and returning to the house a strong Republican delegation.

Praises Political Ability.

"In electing Mrs. McCormick the state will send to Washington one who not only will coöperate with the administration, but one who is experienced in the affairs of government through a lifetime study of political questions based upon fundamentals learned from her distinguished father."

As chairman of the Hoover cabinet committee appointed to advise and assist the President in his campaign to solve the unemployment problem Mr. Lamont stressed the necessity of sending a sympathetic congress to Washington which would not obstruct the administration's program for combating the business depression.

"Seldom has it been so essential," he said, "that there be the fullest team play in the conduct of the government as at this time, while the country is passing through a period of business depression. During such a period it seems to me that it would be unwise to handicap the Hoover administration by the election of a hostile congress.

Calls Democrats Obstructionists.

"By its actions during the last year; its unfair criticism and misrepresentation the opposition party has furnished a clear index of what may be expected if it is given control of the legislative machinery.

"It is without a program now; it will be without a program if it organizes the congress and, with an eye single to the presidency in 1932, it will continue to obstruct by every means it can command the carrying forward of the constructive program the President has put into operation."

JACOBS PRAISES CERMAK RULE OF COUNTY BOARD

J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer employed by Cook county, yesterday issued a statement of the accomplishments of the county board during the eight years of the administration of its president, Anton J. Cermak. Improved management, increased efficiency, and enlarged county services have brought about aggregate savings of over $8,500,000 in the eight years and now aggregate $1,500,000 annually, he stated.

Savings effected through simplified administrative practices, usage of labor saving devices, and economy have enabled much larger appropriations for the sick and the poor, mothers' pensions, and blind relief, Mr. Jacobs shows by figures. Underpaid employés have received six increases and the number of employés is about the same as in 1922, he said, despite great increases in service to the public through added facilities. The Cermak policies were responsible for reduced county tax levies, the Jacobs' report asserts.

Wales Says He's as Poor Speaker as He Is Golfer

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales, speaking at the annual dinner of the Stage Golfing society, described himself tonight as "a filthy golfer and a filthy speaker." "I confess that to make a speech worries me as much as trying to play good golf," he said.

Arab Chiefs Vote to O. K. British Policy in Holy Land

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Nov. 2.—At a secret meeting the Arab executive committee today voted to adopt a favorable attitude toward the British government's Palestine policy, despite the objections of Haj Amin El Hussein, the Jerusalem grand mufti and president of the Moslem supreme council, whom the Jews allege was the chief conspirator of the Arab riots in August of 1929. Today, for the first time, the anniversary of the Balfour declaration of 1927 was not marked either by a Jewish celebration or a hostile Arab demonstration and protest strike.

VOTING OF PAST WEAKENS HIGH VICTORY CLAIMS

200,000 Plurality Never Reached in Off Year.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The senatorial election tomorrow has gathered more popular interest than any off year contest in the history of the state. As a primary it surpassed anything Illinois has previously produced in an off year.

Nearly as many votes were cast at the primary on April 8 as were put in the ballot boxes in the 1928 election. A total of 1,773,461 voted in the 1926 election as compared with 1,737,849 in the 1930 primary. There has been no previous off year election in which so many persons indicated their interest as in the primary of last April. That primary pulled 295,285 more voters to the polls than did the primary of 1918—or a trifle more than 20 per cent.

Estimates 2,150,000 Votes.

If the election tomorrow follows the usual rule there will be 20 per cent more voters next Tuesday than there were in 1926. By that reasoning it is reasonable to expect that 2,150,000 votes will be cast tomorrow, or 377,000 more than were polled in 1926.

While the political prophets of both parties have indicated that they expect as many votes in Cook county as in the remainder of the state that is not in accordance with recent previous performances. In the last primary, the last presidential election, and the last off year election there were more nearly nine votes downstate to eight in Cook county than to an equal number. By that method of division downstate may be expected to poll 1,138,000 and Cook county 1,012,000 votes.

Vote Forecasts Are High.

The political forecasters of both parties must be reckoning on a total vote in the neighborhood of 2,150,000—W. L. O'Connell, campaign manager for James Hamilton Lewis, predicts "approximately 2,000,000"—or their forecasts of pluralities would appear unreasonable.

Both C. J. Doyle, state Republican chairman, and Thomas J. Donovan, state Democratic chairman, have predicted results in the senatorial race which have never happened before in Illinois under like conditions. Each has predicted a plurality of 200,000 or more for his candidate, while the fact is that no candidate for state office or United States senator of either party has ever obtained a plurality of 200,000 in an off year when there was a contest.

A Comparison with Past.

Donovan predicts that Lewis will carry Cook county by 200,000 and break even downstate. O'Connell predicts Lewis will run ahead 50,000 downstate and 250,000 in Cook county. Anton J. Cermak, Democratic leader, forecasts a 300,000 lead for Lewis in Cook county.

No Democratic candidate for state office or United States senator has ever carried Cook county by 200,000 in an off year. George E. Brennan carried the county as candidate for senator in 1928. His plurality was 82,266. Making allowance for an increase in voters, Brennan's plurality is a present day equivalent of 92,000. In the off year of 1922, Republican state candidates won in Cook county.

In 1918 Lewis was a candidate for United States senator as now. His margin in Cook county was 42,336, or the equivalent of 85,000 at present. In 1914 Roger Sullivan, Democratic candidate for United States senator, swept Cook county by a 55,564 lead, which is the equivalent of about 110,000 under present voting conditions.

G. O. P. Forecasts Discussed.

On the Republican side, State Chairman Doyle predicts that Ruth Hanna McCormick will carry downstate by 200,000 votes. Frank Smith did not get such a downstate plurality in 1926. His edge outside of Cook county was 149,536, which is the equivalent of 168,000 anticipated votes in 1930. In 1922 Oscar Nelson carried downstate by 210,979 votes, but there was no interest in the election and practically no contest.

In 1918 Medill McCormick, Republican candidate for United States senator, carried downstate by 95,360, which is a present day equivalent of 180,000. In 1914 L. Y. Sherman, Republican senatorial candidate, carried downstate by 72,822, which is the equivalent of about 160,000 at present.

It is apparent that political prophets are predicting pluralities which have not been obtained heretofore in an off year election. But the total vote is certain to be larger than ever before, and will probably be in the neighborhood of 2,150,000.

ELECT 5 G. O. P. CANAL TRUSTEES, PLEA OF ELMORE

Howard W. Elmore, president of the sanitary district, last night issued an appeal to the voters to elect all five Republican candidates for trustees of the district in order to insure the continuation of his policies, which, he says, are now saving taxpayers $1,000,000 a month.

The Republican candidates are William G. Tegtmeier, Patrick F. Sullivan, Joshua D'Esposito, Andrew C. Metzger, and Charles M. Moderwell.

Elmore's statement charges that waste in public office has increased the public indebtedness in Illinois by $300,000,000 in ten years, and declares that it is imperative that a sound business administration have charge of the spending of $160,000,000 in the next eight years for sewage disposal plants, as ordered by the United States Supreme court.

Seize Two on Con Game Charge Made by Singer

Johanna Eiseman, 53 years old, 2919 Sheffield avenue, and Kurt Kuppfer, 1238 Addison street, sought since Oct. 3 on a confidence game warrant issued on complaint of Mme. Kys Beyer, Austrian singer, were arrested yesterday. Mme. Beyer told police she was induced to come to Chicago to sing in the opera "Fledermaus" at the Civic Opera house last Oct. 5, for which Eiseman and Kuppfer were to pay her $350, but that they disappeared without paying her.

Volunteers Help Battle Grass Fire at Winnetka

Firemen and volunteer workers of Winnetka lined up yesterday along the western limits of the village to fight a grass fire which burned over an area about half a mile wide and 1¼ miles long in the Skokie valley marshes. By cutting weeds and using chemicals on the fringes of fire the firemen prevented the flames from entering the village limits.

County Commissioners from Country Towns

The nominees for the county board from that part of Cook county lying outside Chicago, commonly referred to as the country towns, do not appear on the big ballot used within the city. They are on the ballot to be used in the country town polling places.

For those five places THE TRIBUNE recommends William Busse, George A. Miller, Axel Lonnquist, and Frank J. Kriz, Republican, and Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, Democrat.

Busse and Kriz are members of the board now and Miller is a former commissioner. Lonnquist headed the Republican business men's ticket in the primary last April. Mrs. Fleming is reported to have the support of many independent and Republican women in the suburbs.

G. O. P. TRADITION IS MODERWELL FAMILY HERITAGE

Charles M. Is Sanitary Trustee Nominee.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The political tap roots of Charles M. Moderwell, one of the Republican candidates for sanitary trustee, stretch into the beginnings of the Republican party. His grandfather, John Moderwell, was a delegate to the convention at Jackson, Mich., at which the G. O. P. was founded seventy-six years ago—Ripon, Wis., Bloomington, Ill., and Jackson are rival claimants as the party birthplace—and he was active among the abolitionists.

Grandfather Moderwell was a conductor on the underground railroad and in the cupola of his house at Wooster, O., he had a room with a secret panel in which to hide fugitive slaves on their way to Sandusky, O., where they got the boat to Canada. When Charles M. was a student at the college of Wooster he used this cupola as a study, and as a youth he was steeped in the traditions on which the Republican party was based.

Earns Way Through College.

Charlie was born in Geneseo, Ill., in 1868, and he earned his way through college at Wooster by painting blackboards for schoolhouses. His father, a druggist, discovered a mixture that could be used on walls to convert them. During vacations, Charlie, like a lot of other students sold books, and one summer he made $400 selling "Dr. Price's Receipt Book," and "Mother's Home and Heaven." He toured the countryside with a college pal. They made their way putting on concerts, the friend playing the reed organ and Moderwell singing the ditties of those days. He was a college mate of Judge William H. McSurely of the Appellate bench of Cook county.

After getting his college diploma in 1889, Mr. Moderwell landed a job as inspector of joint railroad rates. He had a siege of typhoid fever which knocked him out of his job during the hard times of 1892, and for six months he walked the streets looking for work, meanwhile paying his room rent by taking care of a furnace.

Becomes Coal Operator.

He became bookkeeper for a coal company and worked himself up to western manager for the Montana Coal & Coke company of Fairmount, W. Va., and in 1902 he went into business for himself. When the coal fields of southern Illinois became active he sunk two mines in Franklin county. For two terms he was president of the Illinois Coal Operators' association. Among his friends are William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and John Lewis, head of United Mine Workers.

Although a Republican, Mr. Moderwell was appointed by Mayor William E. Dever, Democrat, in 1923 as president of the board of education. During the two and a half years he served, his regime was marked by efficiency in school affairs that brought wide indorsement from civic bodies. He has been president of the Union League club, and he was presented as a candidate for the sanitary board by business groups.

Mr. Moderwell comes from a Scotch-Irish ancestry that settled in Pennsylvania in colonial times. His forebears came from the village of Motherwell, Scotland, and the original family name was Motherwell.

HAWAII GOVERNOR HERE; TELLS OF G. O. P. TRIUMPHS

Business Good in Islands, L. M. Judd Says.

Good news for the Republicans was brought to Chicago from across the seas yesterday by Lawrence M. Judd, governor of the Territory of Hawaii, who made known the details of a widespread Republican victory throughout the islands in their primary election last month.

Gov. Judd passed through Chicago en route to Washington for his first conference with President Hoover since his appointment as governor by the President in July a year ago. Gov. Judd said the Republicans on the island were so strong they virtually elected their entire ticket in the primary without much opposition, and he said there was only slight possibility of the Democrats winning more than two or three offices in the general election on Tuesday.

Business Conditions Good.

Business conditions throughout the islands have held up better than in the States, Mr. Judd said, due largely to the stability of the sugar and pineapple industries as operated by the islanders. "While the price of sugar is low, he said, the sugar companies had built up large reserves and were weathering the depression without much discomfort.

Gov. Judd said there was no significance attached to his visit to see the President. "I merely want to meet Mr. Hoover and Mr. Wilbur, secretary of the department of the interior, which has jurisdiction over the territorial possessions of the States," he said.

Need No U. S. Help.

"The Hawaiian islands are self-contained and we do not need any further help from the States. We pay the same federal tax rates as the other states and last year our revenues to the government were greater than that of 14 of the states. We also have our own territorial taxes."

Accompanying the governor is C. T. Bailey, territorial commissioner of public lands. They were guests of Fred L. Lavery and Richard J. Thain during the brief stopover in Chicago.

WOMEN CONFIDENT OF VICTORY IN VOTE ON JURY SERVICE

Confidence that the women on juries referendum will result in victory for the proposal was expressed yesterday at the campaign headquarters of the Illinois committee for women on juries at 203 North Wabash avenue. Its members asserted they not only expected the majority vote necessary, but anticipated that it would carry by one of the largest votes cast on an issue of the kind.

Miss Esther A. Dunshee, committee chairman, who has worked for years for the measure, declared that "with the support of the outstanding women's organizations and the backing of both the Democratic and Republican parties, a favorable vote seems assured."

The bill to be voted on exempts from compulsory jury service mothers of young children, prospective mothers, and those caring for the sick and infirm.

POLICE ON GUARD AS BALLOTS GO TO POLLS TODAY

Plans Are Complete to Prevent Fraud.

Fifty-two automobile trucks, manned by special police guards and employes of the board of election commissioners, were ready last night for the work of distribution of ballots, which begins this morning. At 5 o'clock the ballots were to be on their way to 3,122 precincts under the board's jurisdiction in Chicago, Chicago Heights, Cicero, Berwyn, Summit and Evergreen Park.

A total of 10,305,400 ballots was printed for the election, according to John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board who said the printers have orders to be ready to run off more if needed.

Jarecki Tells of Plans.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki said every precaution will be taken to see that the ballots are not tampered with before being placed in the hands of the judges of election, and that he has made proper arrangements to safeguard the honesty of the election and prevent violence. Many civic organizations are furnishing watchers, he declared.

State's Attorney Swanson also announced himself in readiness to guard the polls in certain wards where violence may be expected. His men will be visiting polling places all day, he said, adding:

"The representatives of my office will be strictly limited to the enforcement of the election laws, and call upon the citizens of Chicago and Cook county to report to these officials, as they appear in the various precincts, any information which they may have regarding the violation of the election laws in the precincts in which they live, or elsewhere.

Roche to Be in Charge.

"Chief Investigator Patrick Roche will be in charge and information may be conveyed to him over the telephone by calling Crawford 7300."

Judge Jarecki said he had been advised of the assistance of representatives of the Voters Nonpartisan association of which Rush Butler, well known attorney, is chairman and C. B. Hopkins secretary. They will send hundreds of ex-service men to suspected wards to guard the honesty of the ballot box.

2,000 JEWS HEAR PROTEST AGAINST PALESTINE POLICY

Cheers, checks and pledges last night testified to the united front Chicago Jewry is presenting against the recently announced policy of the British government toward Palestine, where Jewish immigration has been restricted. More than 2,000 Jews crowded the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman for the protest mass-meeting called under the auspices of the Zionist organization. Scores wept at the appeal of Rabbi Solomon Goldman of Congregation Anshe Emeth.

Rabbi Goldman, who left a sickbed to attend, sketched the history of the Jewish race, and closed with an appeal to regard the present disappointment as only another chapter in their story. He urged continued support for the project of a Jewish national home at Palestine.

Judge Harry M. Fisher presided. Speakers included Mrs. Harry Berkman for Hadassah, Samuel Blumenfield, Rabbi Solomon Freehof, Rabbi Saul Silber, and Max Shulman, past president of the Zionist organization in Chicago.

TROOPS CAPTURE VILLAGE FROM ISLAND SAVAGES

TOKIO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Press dispatches said Japanese troops completely occupied the central Formosan village of Mahebo at 1:30 p. m. today in their campaign to subdue revolting Taiyal tribesmen. Several hundred aborigine warriors were seen retiring to nearby hills and valleys. After the occupation, Mahebo was destroyed by fire.

An official report to the ministry of overseas affairs said the savages Friday held a "festival of heads," piling up the heads of victims killed when they captured Musha, a village six miles west of Mahebo, and dancing and chanting around them.

From a Man's Anger Came The Sedan

Montagnac Overcoat

THE Baron de Montagnac, while walking near his factory one morning in 1864, noticed a piece of his cloth lying in the mud and water by the roadside, left by a careless employee. Such laxity aroused the ire of the good Baron. In an uncontrolled moment he struck the cloth repeatedly with his cane. . . . And thus was the genuine, hand-beaten, curled Montagnac fabric discovered. Where he had struck it, the Baron noticed that the hairs curled, becoming much softer. He submitted the cloth to a process of wetting and beating. Today the genuine Montagnac, made in Sedan, France, by the same family, is hand-beaten by the same process.

It's a wise man who knows that words can build or break a reputation, it's a wise man who uses them cautiously—truthfully. We believe in the power of the word, and when we use words we first make sure we can back them up. That forms the whole basis of the Hassel tradition—we don't make statements unless we're willing to prove them. When we say that our low, one store, Dearborn Street rent (and the fact that we do the largest volume of men's shoe business of any men's shoe store in the country) makes it possible for us to offer you a $2 to $6 reduction on your shoes, we couple the statement with this guarantee—(the broadest we know of in America):

DENY DRY ISSUE GETS DEMOCRATS FOREIGN VOTES

Loyal to G. O. P. Ticket, Leaders Assert.

The "nationality group" leaders affiliated with the Republican county central committee and furthering the candidacy of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick for United States senator issued a statement yesterday contradicting claims of Democratic leaders that foreign speaking people will vote the Democratic ticket because of the prohibition issue.

The statement was authorized by the following representatives of nineteen nationalities: Dr. Paul S. Newey, Assyrian; J. W. Kobalter, Austrian; Felix J. Streyckmans, Belgian; Frank J. Kshout, Czecho-Slovakian; George F. Jensen, Danish; George Spanon, Greek; John F. Voight, German; Edward Arkema, Hollandish; Ignacio Isak, Hungarian; John De Grazia, Italian; Isaak Shapiro, Jewish; John R. Palandech, Jugo-Slav; Joseph J. Elias, Lithuanian; Judge A. O. Erikson, Norwegian; Andrew J. Schultz, Polish; Anthony Lutnicki, Russian; Charles S. Peterson, Swedish, and Nicholas Motiuk, Ukranian.

Ask Republican Support.

"We recommend," their statement read, "that all voters vote the Republican ticket straight next Tuesday for the reason the Republican party has done more for America and for all the people than any other party. We claim the policies of the Republican party have helped the United States become the great country it is, full of opportunities for all our people and our children.

"The Republican party stands for a high protective tariff to protect the American standards of living and high wages from the cheap products of other countries. The Republican party is starting hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of public improvements that will bring employment to the laboring people and the Republican tariff will make it possible for millions of men and women to be employed in American industries at high wages.

"Under the Republican economic and efficient administration the United States will recover quickly from the world-wide war-made depression. We urge the people to vote on the wet and dry referendum because the Republican candidate for the United States senate, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, has pledged herself to abide by the result of that vote."

Cermak Meeting Tonight.

Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board and Democratic county chairman, who launched the campaign of James Hamilton Lewis for United States senator, will preside at its finish tonight. The candidate will speak at a meeting in Pilsen Park auditorium, Albany avenue and 26th street, at which Mr. Cermak will preside and which will be a joint meeting of his ward organization, and the Democrats of the adjoining ward under the leadership of Ald. John Toman will participate in it.

Democratic leaders held a conference yesterday at the Hotel Sherman and after it was over Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the managing committee, issued a statement predicting a Democratic landslide.

"We have been confident of winning all along the line," Mr. Smith said, "but today's reports make it certain. The so-called bandwagon vote is with us—that element that always wants to be with the winner no matter what the winner stands for."

The Democrats issued a warning to their workers to instruct voters wishing to mark for Judge John H. Lyle, Republican, to be sure and put crosses before the names of eleven Democratic judicial candidates.

WOMAN CLEARED OF MAN'S DEATH.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—A verdict of accidental death has been filed by Dr. H. J. Halleck, Pulaski county coroner, following his investigation into the death of John Dearmond, 39, at Medaryville. Dearmond was fatally shot by Mrs. Belle Abel, a neighbor.

BOND ISSUES GET INDORSEMENT OF WELFARE GROUP

The board of directors of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies has added its indorsement to that of other organizations on the "construction bonds" totaling $28,520,000, to be voted upon tomorrow.

"These bonds are indorsed by us as a welfare measure," said Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the council, "Their passage would provide employment for many men who are out of work, and it is in line with the sanest welfare policy. 'Jobs are better than charity.'"

The Association of Commerce reported yesterday that it has found 32 organizations—labor, industrial and civic—which favor the issuance of bonds for needed public improvements in a period of unemployment. The association has appealed to employers to request their help to vote for the bond issues.

Held as Intoxicated Driver, Iowa Farmer Kills Self

Ely, Ia., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—The ignominy of arrest for driving while intoxicated proved too much for Leonard Truhlar, 32, wealthy bachelor farmer, so he killed himself. Truhlar was arrested Friday and released on bail. He went to the home of his brother, where he shot himself.

SENATOR WANTS LAWMAKERS WHO BUY RUM NAMED

Brookhart to Ask for an Investigation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Senator Smith W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.], who during the last session of congress gained wide publicity by his ado over a senatorial hip flask party, was reported today to be preparing for another bout with his less arid colleagues at the forthcoming session in December.

The Iowa senator by telephone from his home announced that he will sponsor a senate investigation with a view to making public the list of customers in the senate and house office buildings who patronized George L. Cassiday, "the man in the green hat," self-styled purveyor of wet goods to America's thirsty congressmen.

Cassiday has just completed a series of newspaper articles relating his adventures in delivering booze to the federal law makers. His revelations brought from Dr. James M. Doran, former prohibition commissioner, the admission that dry under cover agents were placed at the senate office building with the result that Cassiday was arrested. Cassiday's customer list is said to be on file in the treasury department.

Dr. Doran's statement evoked indignant comments from both wet and dry members of congress who were informed of it. Representative George Holden Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] called the use of spies at the senate building "disgraceful and indefensible," while Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] termed it "unfortunate." Another senator declared privately that it was "a vicious practice almost unprecedented."

FINAL PLEAS TO PARTY FAITHFUL COMING TONIGHT

Both Sides to Tell "Why We Are Winning."

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Democratic campaign managers continued confident of sweeping victories and the Republicans were somewhat more hopeful of holding the opposition in check as they prepared for a final day of activity in advance of Tuesday's election.

Final nation-wide appeals will be made in behalf of the rival parties tomorrow night. James Francis Burke of Pittsburgh, general counsel of the Republican national committee, will urge election of a Republican congress, while Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Dem., Ark.), who was the vice presidential nominee in 1928, will talk for the Democrats. Senator Robinson, who will speak in St. Louis, will have as his topic, "Why We Are Going to Win."

President Hoover will continue his policy of refraining from public participation in the campaign. His political fortunes will be materially affected by the outcome of Tuesday's battle over the control of congress.

Will Determine Hoover Path.

If the Democrats gain control of the house, as they are predicting, it will mean endless difficulties for the administration's legislative program in the session which immediately precedes the President's campaign for renomination and reelection two years hence.

The Republican managers say that their reports from the doubtful states show that the drive of the last ten days for election of a congress that will coöperate with the President in measures to restore normal business conditions has been effective. They insist that the losses in the senate and house will not be so extensive as seemed likely two or three weeks ago.

Cabinet members who have been active on the stump, all with the plea that the President should be given support in his efforts to bring back prosperity, include Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, and Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur. Postmaster General Walter F. Brown has been devoting attention to the situation in Ohio, where the Republicans are in serious danger of losing a senate seat.

Only a 1932 Preliminary.

The Democrats recognize that they have been confronted with more determined opposition in the closing period of the campaign than was the case in the early stages. They are convinced, however, that the trend is unmistakably against the administration, and that the sweep may reach landslide proportions.

Whatever the outcome may be, this year's elections will serve as a preliminary skirmish in advance of the presidential contest of 1932. Both parties have perfected organizations which will continue activity during the next two years. Seldom in past off year elections have the national committees of the two parties taken such an active part, the congressional and senatorial contests usually being left to the congressional and senatorial campaign committees.

It is the expectation that Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.] will continue as chairman of the Republican national committee, and that Robert H. Lucas will remain as executive director of the committee, not only up to the time of the 1932 convention of the party but also through the election campaign, if President Hoover is renominated.

Chairman Shouse of the Democratic national executive committee, who has been constantly on duty in its Washington headquarters, is slated to continue to devote his entire time to the work up to the time of the Democratic convention in 1932. John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, will hold his post for the same period, but will remain in the background, with Mr. Shouse as the active head of the organization.

BOTH PINCHOT AND HEMPHILL CONFIDENT OF ELECTION VICTORY

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Gifford Pinchot and John M. Hemphill, rival candidates for governor in Tuesday's election, both predicted victory in statements here tonight.

"I prefer not to indulge in any bombast about the size of my majority," said Mr. Hemphill, wet Democratic nominee.

"The fight is over. We have won," declared Mr. Pinchot, the dry Republican candidate. "The Philadelphia gang has lost its third attempt this year to control the government of the commonwealth."

COUNT BALLOTS IN CUBA; VOTING BELIEVED LIGHT

HAVANA, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The counting of ballots cast in yesterday's congressional elections continued today, but officials believed three more days would be needed to complete the official tally.

The department of the interior stated that probably 60 per cent of all eligible voters went to the polls, but anti-government factions placed the figure at less than one-fourth that. Conservative observers generally believed it was about 30 per cent.

The light ballot was blamed on lack of party organization for getting out voters. In Havana eight polling places did not open because election boards failed to organize properly. At precent 3, where President Machado voted, the regular members of the board declined to act and the alternates kept the executive waiting 20 minutes to cast his straight Liberal ticket.

DEMOCRATS SEE ROOSEVELT WIN BY WIDE MARGIN

Tuttle Will Be Elected, G. O. P. Head Says.

New York, Nov. 2.—[Special.]—After an eleventh hour review of reports from party leaders throughout the state, James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic state committee, predicted today the reelection of Gov. Roosevelt by at least 350,000 plurality and the election of the entire Democratic state ticket.

This prediction was based on the estimate of Tammany that Gov. Roosevelt would receive at least 500,000 plurality in New York City and upon Mr. Farley's estimate that the upstate plurality for Charles H. Tuttle, Republican nominee for governor, would not exceed 150,000.

Privately, Mr. Farley and other Democratic leaders expect Gov. Roosevelt's plurality will be more than 350,000. The final Tammany estimate for his New York City plurality is 532,000 and Democratic estimates of Mr. Tuttle's probable upstate plurality run from 104,000 to 154,000.

Smith Won Record Vote.

Should the election results confirm the more optimistic Democratic estimates, Gov. Roosevelt's plurality would be 428,000. The highest plurality ever received by a candidate for governor was in 1922, when Alfred E. Smith defeated Nathan L. Miller by a plurality of 385,938.

Supporters of Gov. Roosevelt have a strong hope that his plurality this year will exceed that figure, and the more enthusiastic among them even suggested the possibility of a plurality in the state that would approach 500,000. The governor's personal friends have a special desire to have his plurality a record figure for the effect it would have in his prospective candidacy for the Democratic nomination for President.

Predicts Tuttle's Election.

Although William J. Maier, chairman of the Republican state committee, predicted the election of Mr. Tuttle by more than 100,000 plurality before leaving Saturday for his home in Seneca Falls, few of the other Republican leaders have any real expectation of Mr. Tuttle's election.

One well informed Republican expressed the opinion that Mr. Tuttle would do exceedingly well if he obtained 250,000 plurality up state and held Gov. Roosevelt to 350,000 plurality in New York City. Mr. Maier's estimate was 404,000 for Mr. Tuttle upstate and 300,000 for Gov. Roosevelt in New York City.

Organizations Break Down.

Reports from up state, from Republican as well as from Democratic sources, indicate a collapse of the Republican organizations in a score or more usually strong Republican counties. This seems largely due to the resentment of dry Republicans toward the party and its gubernatorial nominee for advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but some Republicans already have made the charge that the Republican state organization has virtually "laid down" in this campaign and that some of the organization leaders have very little interest in the election of Mr. Tuttle but a great deal in the retention of control of the party organization.

WANTS CHINA TO INVITE FOREIGN AID FOR INDUSTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2.—China's vital need of foreign capital as well as assistance from foreign technical experts was emphasized in an address Gen. Chiang Kai-shek read at the opening of the national industrial and commercial conference at Nanking today.

Gen. Chiang said: "China must invite the services of foreign experts and specialists in order to develop the Chinese industries and also obtain capital on equitable and reciprocal terms."

KING AND BRIDE STAND 6 HOURS TO VIEW PARADE

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 2.—Standing erect for six hours, smiling and saluting, while 150,000 subjects marched past the palace, King Boris and Queen Ioanna plainly exhibited their fatigue today from the busy three day celebration. They left this evening to begin a real honeymoon in a county chateau near the capital.

Several thousand Bulgarian refugees, Jugo-Slavians, Macedonians, and Rumanians from the Dobrogea district participated in today's fête. The paraders showered King Boris and his queen with gifts, one old huntsman handing the ruler a dead rabbit. Presents ranged from a giant cauliflower to costly jewels.

Growing hungry at noon Queen Ioanna ate a sandwich behind the king's back. An hour later police halted the procession for 10 minutes while the royal couple lunched. They returned to the balcony still munching delicacies. When it became apparent that the queen was nearing exhaustion the parade was stopped.

WINGAIT

I. MILLER'S THREESOME OF WALKING SHOES
These three models cover every walking shoe need of the modern woman—a type for every foot.

THE STRAP
The ideal slipper for the afternoon tailleur. Ultra-smart for spectator sports.

THE STEP-IN
The youthful type of walking shoe combining the ease of the oxford with the grace of the opera

THE OXFORD
The smart about-town shoe with glove-like fit at the arch and instep

"LET'S WALK"...

Everyone's saying it! Everyone's doing it! It's smart! It's swanky! It's the vogue that has brought about a new tailored mode—and with it, a sensational development in walking shoes—the Wingait last by I. Miller—a Cuban heel welt shoe last that is utterly amazing in its modish lines and extraordinary ease of action.

Is it a departure, you ask, for I. Miller to make a welt shoe? Not at all! As a matter of fact, it was with welt shoes that I. Miller originally established his reputation many years ago.

How natural, then, that I. Miller today of all shoemakers should evolve the exact type of walking shoe which women have longed for—which thousands of women have asked for. A shoe which would free them from the shackles of style-shy "orthopedics" and enable them to step out briskly, youthfully, in true I. Miller fashion—with swanky nonchalance. Now active feet can stride with pride, untiringly, throughout the entire day.

Completing the picture I. Miller presents—
Hosiery and bags created expressly for the tailored mode and matching or complementing Wingait footwear.

THIS IS WINGAIT WEEK! In every I. Miller shop from coast to coast Wingait Shoes are being featured this week. They're on display in our windows. See them! Step into the store and try on a pair and see for yourself this amazing shoe in which I. Miller has succeeded in combining foot-happiness with grace of line and beauty of conception.

WHY WINGAIT SHOES? First, their extraordinary modishness for walking—modishness never before attained in a Cuban heel welt shoe. Secondly, Wingait lasts are "motion-measured" for the ever-changing dimensions of the foot in motion. Ample room in the ball and arch. Snugness at heel and instep. To walk in Wingaits is to tread on a pillowy cushion!

TWO HOODLUMS ARE FOUND SLAIN IN BEER FLAT

Police See Gang War or Election Feud.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Two hoodlums were found slain in a west side beer flat yesterday and with no motive apparent. The police were figuring on three theories: that a resumption of the gang war was under way, that the two had robbed or cheated other gangsters, or that there might be a political tinge to the double murder. The slain men were:

WILLIAM [SMOOTH] SIERZA, ex-convict and presumed owner of the beer flat at 1082 North Marshfield avenue, where the bodies were found.

FRANK [SLIM] SMURLO, 1537 North Irving avenue and 3931 North Kedzie avenue, who has been in the House of Correction for minor offenses and who was known as a crooked gambler.

Each was shot several times. Their bodies were not discovered until 9 o'clock yesterday morning, although the shooting took place about 5 o'clock. The discovery was due to blood seeping through the ceiling and into the store of Peter Maziak on the floor below. Maziak went upstairs.

Find Door Forced Open.

The police discovered that the front door of the flat had been forced open, but were unable to determine why the men inside did not hear the door being jimmied in time to reach a loaded revolver in a dresser drawer. Smurlo's body was just inside the door, while Sierza had been in bed. A man known as "Swede" and a girl, arrested last night as she ascended the rear stairs of the building, were being questioned. Both their names were kept secret. The girl was later released when police learned that her mother was dying.

In the flat police found about 1,000 bottles of home brew and an outfit for making beer. It was learned that Sierza had a partner, Peter Spilla, but that of late Smurlo had been staying there with him. Sierza had been known to the police also as a hijacker of liquor.

The killing of John Guyda two weeks ago in a soft drink parlor at 836 North Racine avenue, a few blocks away, was recalled by police who suspected a possible invasion of the west Chicago avenue district by a new gang of beer or alky dealers.

Maddox Tried "Muscling."

Claude Maddox, under arrest for the attempt to kill Sergt. James McBride of the Bellwood police last Thursday, had made efforts to "muscle in" this territory a year ago, it was recalled. Maddox was allied with the Capone gang then but as a result of his being identified as one of those who shot McBride the opinion was offered that he may have switched to the O'Donnell-Barker-White gang, of which William (Three Fingered Jack) White and James (Fur) Sammons are leading members. Police say McBride was shot to prevent his giving testimony against White for the killing of Policeman Edward Pflaume, McBride's partner, five years ago.

Maddox was unable to furnish the $50,000 bonds fixed for him and he stayed in jail over Sunday, along with Frank Nitti, reputed finance minister of the Capone gang, for whom a similar bond was set on income tax fraud charges.

Wolves Raid Chickens, Sheep Near Mahomet, Ill.

Mahomet, Ill., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—As a result of the discontinuance of wolf hunts during recent years, the animals have multiplied and are causing loss to farmers due to raids on sheep and chickens. A wolf was killed yesterday.

PROMISE PLENTY OF CHRISTMAS TREES THIS YEAR

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—(AP)—An adequate supply of Christmas trees for the holidays was promised today by the forest service of the agriculture department.

The assurance was given in a statement warning against promiscuous cutting of the trees which might deplete the forests and glut the Christmas tree market.

The statement also condemned the practice of some motorists of obtaining their trees from public forests and farms and "even cemeteries and parks."

The forest service said such vandalism results in losses to owners of woodlands and mars the scenic beauty of highways.

PROHIBITION AND DEPRESSION ARE G. O. P. HOODOOS

Combination Turns Votes to Democrats.

quoting the recent remark of Dwight W. Morrow, Republican candidate for senator from New Jersey, that the party that claims credit for the rain must accept blame for the drought.

Both parties are accusing each other of responsibility for the stock market crash a year ago. The Democrats charge President Hoover with failure to act on recommendations to avert the catastrophe which were made by the federal reserve bank of New York in the summer of 1929. In addition, they point to the trade boom statements repeatedly issued by Presidents Coolidge and Hoover and Secretary Mellon, which the Democrats assert encouraged the orgy of speculation.

The Republicans have countered by citing the statements, prior to the crash, of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who exploited a plan for making stock speculation easier for the person of small means.

In some states, particularly in the agricultural west and northwest, the new Hawley-Smoot tariff act figures conspicuously in the contest, though not exactly as an issue between candidates, for the insurgent Republicans of this region condemn the measure as generously as do the Democrats.

Effects of Tariff in Issue.

Democratic senators and congressmen, though most of them voted for protective duties on local products during passage of the bill, either attribute the business depression in part to the boosting of protection or complain that the new tariff law has not produced the prosperity the Republicans predicted it would. The Republicans assert that if it had not been for increasing protection America would be as badly off as other countries suffering from the world-wide industrial depression to a revolution breeding extent in many foreign parts.

With widespread unemployment, chiefly in the industrial centers of the east and central west, and with the farmers in most states hard hit by the decline in the prices of farm products by the drought or by both, the factor in the outcome of the election produced by economic conditions is constant almost everywhere.

In a majority of the states in which there are contests over senate and house seats prohibition is also figuring as an issue.

Wet Gains Expected.

That the wets will make gains in both houses of the Seventy-second congress is not denied by the drys, who, however, contend that their loss will be negligible. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, asserts that the wets will make a net gain of not more than 2 senators and will have only 20 all told out of the 96. In the house he concedes a wet gain of only 10, raising the wet total to only 120 of the 435 members. Henry Curran, president of the Association Against Prohibition, claims a prospective gain of 6 wet seats in the senate and 60 in the house.

It is already apparent, however, that the wet gains may not be confined to the defeat of drys by wets. There are circumstances under which holdover dry senators and drys returned to both houses in the election tomorrow may be pledged to vote wet.

Referendums May Change Standing.

If the wets carry the prohibition referendum in Rhode Island there will be a gain of two wet votes, even if Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, Republican, should be reelected, inasmuch as the Republicans are committed to abide by the referendum and Senators Metcalf and Felix Hebert hitherto have voted dry. Similarly, if Illinois goes wet on the prohibition referendum tomorrow, whatever the outcome of the senatorship fight, there will be another gain of two wet votes in the senate. Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, a dry, is committed to abide by the referendum if elected and James Hamilton Lewis, her Democratic opponent, is wet, referendum or no referendum. Senator Charles S. Deneen is a dry and Senator Otis F. Glenn, though he voted against the Jones five and ten law, has not so far advocated prohibition repeal. He is committed, however, to abide by the Illinois referendum.

If Robert Johns Bulkley, Democratic candidate for senator from Ohio, defeats Senator Roscoe Conkling McCulloch, as it seems certain he will, the result will be not only the gain of another wet vote in the senate but a forwarding of the anti-prohibition cause of incalculable consequence.

Ohio for years has been regarded a politically pivotal state. This is the reason that Ohio has furnished so many candidates for President to both parties, five of whom reached the White House. The importance of Ohio in the fight for repeal of national prohibition is due partly to the fact that it is a pivotal state politically and partly to the fact that it is the birthplace and stronghold of the Anti-Saloon league. Ever since the tide began to turn against the Volstead régime it has been recognized by wets and drys alike that if Ohio should declare for repeal of prohibition the event would exert a tremendous influence upon the future of the anti-prohibition movement.

If Ohio, stronghold of the drys, were to go wet it would be generally regarded as evidence of a crumbling of the foundations of prohibition which would give the repeal movement tremendous impetus. If, on the other hand, Ohio were to remain dry there would be reason for concluding that the prohibition repealers are up against a long, hard, if not futile, fight.

These are the considerations that have made Ohio the cockpit of the prohibition battle in this election. The drys are fighting desperately to defeat Mr. Bulkley who has declared for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and who, if elected, will become by virtue of his ability a potential candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

In the Protestant churches in Ohio yesterday pastors preached sermons in which the faithful were adjured to go to the polls tomorrow and vote for dry candidates. This appeal was organized by the league and the Methodist and Baptist churches of which it is the political department. Congregations were told that the dry cause is threatened as never before and that unless the drys turn out and halt the progress of the anti-prohibition movement all will be lost.

Unemployment Aids Bulkley.

In Ohio where there is a vast amount of unemployment in industrial centers and where the farmers are suffering from the effects of the drought there is widespread discontent which is rebounding to the benefit of Democratic candidates. Then, such Democratic candidates as are wet are receiving the additional benefit of the reaction against prohibition. The Anti-Saloon league leaders assert that a wet would have no chance of carrying Ohio were it not for the fact that Mr. Bulkley is a Democrat and that hard times and unemployment are making votes for the opposition to the party in power at Washington.

In Massachusetts the drys and wets are locked in a no less desperate struggle over the election of a senator and a referendum on the repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act. The latest information is that the prospects of William M. Butler, dry Republican, candidate for senator, have materially improved, though his wet Democratic opponent, Marcus Aurelius Coolidge is still believed to have a slight advantage. The improvement of Mr. Butler's chances is attributed partly to the arousal of the churches to the necessity of turning out the dry rural vote tomorrow and partly to the spread of disaffection in the Democratic party. Both Mr. Coolidge and Joseph B. Ely, the Democratic candidate for governor, are outstate Yankees in disfavor with the Irish Catholic Democrats of Boston.

In New York, Rhode Island, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and Illinois similar conditions obtain. Hard times, unemployment and the reaction against prohibition are favoring wet Democratic candidates. New Jersey is a notable exception. There Dwight W. Morrow, Republican candidate for senator, has the advantage because of his pioneering of the prohibition repeal movement and of his prestige which combine to more than offset Republican defections caused by the economic depression.

Another exception is James J. Davis, Republican candidate for senator from Pennsylvania.

Every loaf of Grandmother's Bread you buy this week adds ¼ cent to this check, which is part of A&P's contribution to United Charities

This is the plan:

For one week, beginning today and ending Saturday night, A&P will sell Grandmother's Bread for the benefit of the United Charities. ¼ cent of the new low price you pay for every loaf will go to swell the United Charities fund.

Here is an excellent and simple way for you to add an extra impetus to two worthwhile movements: first, to help the United Charities in its aid to the unemployed; second, to eat more bread and so help relieve the country's great surplus of wheat.

A&P's new low bread prices, of course, prevail unchanged.

Eat an extra slice at every meal—

Housewives have an excellent method of disposing of left-over food. They urge their families to eat it up. Our country's great surplus of wheat is just that much left-over food in the nation's pantry. If people can be urged to eat it up, this problem will be solved.

So A&P reduced the price of bread and said to America's families: "If you will eat but a single slice more at every meal, the nation's surplus of wheat will disappear."

At these new low prices, that extra slice costs no more than last year's skimpier rations.

Help eat up the surplus wheat.

Double your own consumption this week and you will help to increase the amount of that charities check. This week, it's buy bread to give bread.

And it's first aid to your own family, too

This plan imposes no hardship on you. Ask any home that regularly serves Grandmother's Bread. If you have never tasted it, buy it now in a good cause. And be prepared to use it from now on—because your family will probably insist on it.

Grandmother's is as fine a bread as A&P knows how to bake—as fine a bread as the best ingredients, the most modern equipment and perfect baking methods can produce.

GET READY! United Charities needs your help—this year more than ever before. The annual drive begins Thursday, Nov. 6th. Plan now to do everything you can to relieve Chicago's needy.

YOUTH KILLED AS AUTO STRIKES ROAD BARRICADE

Former N. U. Student Is Victim of Crash.

David Grimmer, 24 years old, a former student at Northwestern university, was burned to death yesterday when his automobile struck a road barricade near Neenah, Wis., crashed into a ditch, and caught fire.

The accident occurred on highway 4, not far from the Whiting, Wis., airport. Grimmer was drving south, bound for Evanston, when he ran into the obstruction. As the car swept through the barricade it carried away a lighted oil lantern which had been posted as a warning. The lantern is believed to have ignited oil and other combustibles. Motorists were attracted to the scene by the blaze, but not in time to save Grimmer.

Grimmer had been visiting his family at Green Bay. His father, W. C. Grimmer, is treasurer of the Johannes company of Green Bay.

Six persons died in Cook county of automobile injuries yesterday, raising the 1930 toll to 893. The victims:

Gustave Skik, 22 years old, 12037 Normal avenue. Killed when the car he was driving crashed into a telephone pole in front of 341 East 115th street. Steven Balogh, 25 years old, 649 West 119th street, a salesman, who was with him, received a fractured skull, it was said at Roseland Community hospital.

William E. Loco, 71 years old, 1633 Hinman avenue, Evanston. Struck Friday by the machine of Robert Hansen, 2274 Asbury avenue, Evanston. Loco was a pensioned gateman for the Chicago and North Western railroad, with which he had been connected 50 years.

Mrs. Eliza Foshea, 90 years old, 2514 North Sacramento boulevard. Died in the Belmont hospital of injuries suffered Saturday in a collision between two automobiles, one driven by a relative. The second machine sped away after the accident.

Thomas Carroll, 60 years old, address unknown. Killed when he was struck by the automobile of Benjamin Brown, 3216 Haddon avenue, at Warren boulevard and Campbell avenue.

Otto Kramarski, 23 years old, 4744 South Loomis street. Struck last night in front of 4833 South Throop street by a hit and run automobile and died half an hour later in German Deaconess hospital.

Mrs. Norah H. Ilg, 48 years old, 7348 Emerald avenue, and Frank Vnuk, 30 years old, 4376 West 43d street, were killed, and Vnuk's wife, Marie, was seriously injured when their automobile crashed into a stalled truck on route 4 11 miles south of Joliet late Saturday night. John Ilg, husband of Mrs. Ilg, who was driving, escaped unharmed. The truck, which was lighted at the rear, was at the edge of the road, according to Elmer Leppert of Plainville, the driver, when the accident occurred.

Less than ten hours later another automobile accident, less than a mile away on the same road, caused fatal injuries to Earl H. Danker, 314 Eugenia street, Lombard, and serious injuries to Alvin Munsterman, 179 Anderson street, Bensonville, his companion. Both were taken to St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet, where Danker died yesterday afternoon. Danker's car collided with that of Charles Young, 16 years old, of Manteno, Ill.

We must not, however, overlook the importance of offering to tenants an inducement to live in Baird & Warner managed buildings. Whenever we can strike a balance between economy for the owner and those features that attract tenants, we feel that we have fulfilled an important duty as managers.
We have found, in our experience, that the purchase of GENERAL ELECTRIC REFRIGERATORS by our owners results in an economy of operation and at the same time provides a strong inducement for tenants to select apartments thus equipped.

Because of the hermetically sealed feature, all the mechanism is forever protected from the ravages of dirt, air and moisture.

CARRY ON.

The governor's commission on unemployment relief calls upon all regular contributors to the accredited welfare agencies to renew and increase their gifts now and adds an appeal to citizens not contributing in the past to do so at this time.

This appeal should have a prompt response. It is a curious result of all the publicity given unemployment and recent measures to relieve and abate it that the donations to the accredited charities seem to have been checked. Many people who send in contributions as a regular thing are holding back apparently in doubt as to whether they ought not to shift their contributions this year to the newly formed emergency agencies. Meanwhile the whole movement for relief is held up. Going concerns in charity, such as the United Charities, the Jewish Charities, the Catholic Charities and other groups accredited by the Chicago Association of Commerce, are not only deprived of the increased funds the present emergency requires, but are failing even of their normal support.

This, of course, defeats the purpose of the new emergency agencies, like the governor's commission. The situation calls for the continued functioning of the permanent agencies, upon which the whole movement for unemployment relief must largely depend. The new agencies are not and cannot be substitutes for the old. They are additional machinery. The accredited permanent agencies, as Chairman Getz's statement points out, under the plan of his commission "are expected to raise through their customary solicitation the necessary funds to complete their normal annual budgets. Funds raised by the commission will be expended through designated agencies to meet the extra burden caused by the unemployment emergency."

PEOPLES AND POWER.

The cables have brought the news that the Japanese census, just completed, shows a total population of the empire of between 90 and 92 million. The count includes the inhabitants of Corea and Formosa.

The population of the United States, according to the 1930 census, is close to 123 million. The population of Russia in Europe and Asia may total as much as 150 million, but probably is less. Japan's population approaches ours in numbers, but Japan is vastly weaker in economic resources and in wealth and the figures of Japanese population include the many millions of Koreans who cannot be regarded as wholehearted supporters of Japanese sovereignty. So far as Russia is concerned, her present numbers cannot be taken as indicative of great strength, great as the numbers are. In future, perhaps Russia will have to be reckoned with as one of the great powers of the world, but for the present the Russian lack of industrial plants, transportation, capital to develop the country and the technical skill required in an industrial age places Russia outside the first class.

In point of population Japan and Russia are our only two rivals among the powers. The vast populations of India and China—perhaps 600 or 700 millions together—are of relatively small importance in making an estimate of world power and world influence. In so far as these countries are important it is as consumers and not as producers. They will not even attempt to impose their standards of living or their concepts of world organization upon the western world for many generations. All they can hope to do in this direction in our time is to free themselves from western influence, and even if they succeed they will not greatly disturb the dominance of the western nations.

The United States is unquestionably first among the nations in the factors which make for power. In population we are nearly twice as strong as Germany (65 million), nearly three times as strong as the United Kingdom (45 million), and three times as strong as France (40 million), or Italy (40 million). Our population is about equal to that of Great Britain, France and Italy combined. There are only 21 million white men in the British empire outside Europe. In natural resources we are more nearly self-sufficing than Europe, even if Europe were not divided by national frontiers. The energy of our people is proverbial the world over. In industrial and technical plant our leadership is pronounced.

It is the more remarkable, then, that in the face of this outstanding leadership among the nations of the world spokesmen for the United States are apologetic. This is true not only of our unofficial spokesmen seeking social distinction in older countries, but also of our official spokesmen representing the United States in international negotiations. Of right we should sit at the head of the table, in the seat of power, in any conference. If, as in the disarmament conference, there arise differences of opinion, America should not for a moment consider the surrender of her wishes to those of a lesser power. We do not argue for increased truculence on the part of the United States' representatives, but rather for a realistic grasp of the fact that the nation they speak for is not on a par with the Italys, Germanys, and Japans, but a nation with vastly more important interests to protect and foster.

THE SPECIAL SENATE ENFORCEMENT DETAIL.

Dr. Doran, former prohibition commissioner, has disclosed that during at least three months of the recent session of congress a special assignment of enforcement agents was made to the senate office building. It was one of these agents who picked up the senate purveyor, George Cassiday, the Man in the Green Hat, as he was making a delivery. Dr. Doran also said that this particular attention was given the senators' retreat, cloister, and place of business at the request of Vice President Charles Curtis, who thus showed that he had at heart the welfare of the Conscript Fathers.

Mr. Curtis, campaigning in Kansas, said that he had been asked for his approval of this paternal attention for the senators and had given it, but did not see why he should have to make a statement about it. There is, indeed, small reason why Mr. Curtis or any one else should make a statement in an affair which so plainly makes its own. The dry senate of the United States required particular attention from the prohibition administration to keep the fathers in a semblance of order. Their leggers had been dropping the stuff around the place carelessly and the empties were giving the janitors a false idea of the Volstead act.

Mr. Curtis presides over the senate deliberations and probably felt a moral responsibility as moderator and guide. It was becoming a popular assumption that the senate office building had the legal rating of an embassy and was outside the jurisdiction of prohibition enforcement. The Vice President was willing that this assumption should be corrected.

It is one of the minor consequences of the noble experiment that the fantastic no longer seems to be fantastic. Actually it does not seem strange that the legislative branch of government should require special effort from the executive to modify its violation of the laws it makes. It not only is regarded as quite natural that the Conscript Fathers should need such attention but that they should get it in the ordinary administration of government. Mr. Curtis may think of himself as a head master over boys who will get out of bounds if they can.

If there is any injustice done it is probably done the purveyors. They get their orders from one set of dignitaries and are pounced upon by another. They may think that the least their senate patrons could do would be to arrive at a gentlemen's agreement with the administration.

PITY THE CANADIAN FARMER.

While there is much complaint about the prices of grain in this country, the situation in Canada is far worse from the farmer's viewpoint. October barley in Winnipeg sold the other day at less than 26 cents a bushel and October rye at less than 37 cents. That was the price of grain delivered in Winnipeg. From that price the farmer had to subtract the cost of transporting the grain from his farm to market.

No one will pretend that prices in this country are satisfactory, but they must arouse the envy of Canadian farmers. It is even reported that feed grains are moving from Canada into this country, despite the high tariff barriers, so great is the disparity between Chicago prices and Canadian prices.

The relative strength of the American market is a phenomenon that needs to be explained. If the farm board can find the cause of it they may be on the way to discovering how to raise the American price level still higher in comparison with world prices.

One fact emerges at once: day in and day out grain speculators in Chicago have been offering the farmer more for what he has to sell than buyers and speculators in other markets will offer. Speculation has been discouraged in our market by the government's regulations and by the government's unsuccessful effort to fix the price of wheat. Nevertheless our prices remain above world parity. This fact, we should think, would suggest to officials at Washington that fewer restrictions on trading might be of far more value to the farmers than anything that has been done in their name thus far.

Editorial of the Day

THE "RAH, RAH" REBELS.

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

If the present generation of college students are not carefully watched alma mater will have to get along henceforth with the spontaneous affection she naturally inspires in her offspring, quite divested of the ceremonial superficialities in which previous generations have clothed the emotions. George Bernard Shaw once said about the filial tie that there was no duty compelling a child to love its parents. If they inspired love, well and good. If they failed to do so, that was not the child's fault. Similarly with college spirit, in the view of our sophisticated youngsters of today; let it express itself as felt and not otherwise.

The Yale Record embodies this philosophy in an undergraduate reply to the "old grad" who is forever deploring the passing of the day when the student body turned out en masse to watch the football team practice, when the cheering section at a game put its soul into dying for dear old Rutgers. The occasion was its Army game number. The complaint is made, it says, that "Yale is not the same old place, the undergraduates are suffering from pernicious anemia and some one ought to write a letter about it because [a] they don't turn out to watch the Cadets parade; [b] they don't cheer loud enough; [c] they don't curse the other team; [d] they leave before the final whistle."

"Well, what of it," asks the Record, and it proceeds to demolish the protest with such heterodox queries as "Why should we have voluble organized cheers and contortionists for leaders?" "Why is it demanded of us to stimulate hysteria when little or nothing has happened?" "Why is it essential to crow or cry over victory or defeat?"

Echo answers "Why?" On the theory that "football, dammit, is a game," to use the Record's phraseology, there is every reason why its fortunes should be accepted with tolerance and humor. We congratulate the Record and the student body it represents on the perspective displayed, not only toward the sacred rite of football but inferentially toward the whole organized religion of alma mater worship. A like attitude throughout the academic world would go far to purge our institutions of higher learning of the complex which subordinates their true function to that of the hippodrome.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

PREVENTING DISEASE.

THE University of Illinois proves each year that communicable disease can be made a matter of trivial importance in a group of nearly fifteen thousand young people. If, at any time, the work of a school is disarranged by contagion, its classrooms are emptied, money is wasted, and students suffer or lose their lives from epidemic disease, it is not because there is lack of evidence that such effects are unnecessary as well as wasteful. In the large student body of this state institution, in the academic year 1929-'30, there were but two cases of mumps, ten of scarlet fever, and two of smallpox. There was no measles, nor diphtheria, whooping cough, or scarlet fever.

Students gathered from everywhere, going home on visits, traveling back and forth, at times were thrown in contact with contagion and sometimes brought some back to the campus with them. When they did so there was no spreading. A total of 474 students were exposed to communicable diseases. Of this number 206 were allowed to attend classes.

The old style light quarantine, including the exclusion from school of all children exposed to contagion, is necessary where there is no modern health department and no school inspection. At that, it often fails to prevent epidemics. In places where there is a health service modified quarantine is safe. It is true it is easier to keep a university student body free of contagion than is the case with children in the grammar grades.

In the class of 1933 the following proportions of students have already had the forms of contagion noted, and second attacks are rare: Fifty-three and eight-tenths per cent had had chicken pox; 8.1 per cent, diphtheria; seven-tenths of one per cent, infantile paralysis; 74.5 per cent, measles; two-tenths of one per cent, meningitis; 49.4 per cent, mumps; 13.9 per cent, scarlet fever; 4.1 per cent, smallpox; 3 per cent, typhoid fever; 51.7 per cent, whooping cough. Over 84 per cent had been vaccinated against typhoid fever, diphtheria, or scarlet fever.

During the year 1,158 members of the entire student body were vaccinated against smallpox and 15,505 against typhoid fever. Not much vaccination against other diseases was done.

It has not been long since it was accepted as inevitable that disease would break out whenever ten to fifteen thousand young people were brought together to make an army or for any other purpose. Soon after the coming together measles would break out and pneumonia would follow. After the weather had gotten colder smallpox would creep in. Along in the wet, cold days of March meningitis could be expected.

Things are better now.

DRINKING IRON WATER.

H. L. S. writes:

1. Would the copious drinking of water impregnated with iron, over a period of several years, in any way have an injurious effect on the system?

2. In connection with some constipation, could it cause some very dark colored stools?

REPLY.

1. I don't think so.

2. Yes. Dark, nonsulphides are very likely to be formed.

EATING APPLE PIE.

H. D. writes: Are fruits and starchy foods, such as fruits and cereals, a proper mixture at one meal?

REPLY.

Sure. Don't you eat apple pie?

MANY CAUSES POSSIBLE.

Anxious writes: What is the cause of an unpleasant breath? What can be done to cure it?

REPLY.

Among the causes of halitosis are ozena, cheesy matter in the tonsils, very badly neglected mouth, and various changes in alimentary tract chemistry. Find the cause and overcome it by proper procedures. Of the several causes, those of the alimentary tract are much the most important. To remove this, change your diet and establish good bowel habits.

PROBABLY NO DANGER.

Miss J. H. writes: After taking ovarian and pituitary gland medicines for nearly five years, what is the danger in stopping all at once?

REPLY.

I know of none.

THE CHILDREN PAY.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a child under 16 years of age have his wages garnisheed for a bill the parents owe? I am told this can be done but would like the correct answer. C. B.

By the common law the parents are entitled to the wages of such minors unless they have definitely given up their right to the wages. Where the parent is entitled to such wages, this right to collect could be reached by garnishment.

DELAYED MOVING DAY.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I rented a flat, paid a deposit and signed a lease from Oct. 1. Up to this day have not been able to take possession because the people living there did not move out yet on account of illness in the family. 1. Have I a right to cancel the lease for this reason? 2. If I have to sue for possession do I have to sue the landlord or the tenant? I. T.

1. No. The Illinois cases hold that the obligation rests on the new tenant rather than the landlord to expel the old tenant.

2. The tenant.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—[Friend of the People.]—Since Kimball avenue has been an accepted north and south route and Addison is a through street, each evening between 5 and 6:30 o'clock there is an annoying traffic jam at the intersection. Hundreds of motorists would appreciate having an officer stationed here to handle this traffic. S. E. N.

The captain commanding the 34th district reports that an order has been issued detailing a patrolman at the intersection of Kimball avenue and Addison street to direct traffic from 5 until 6:30 o'clock each evening.

JOHN H. ALCOCK,
Acting Police Commissioner.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT LOOKS LIKE A LANDSLIDE—

for the election tomorrow. And now if we only knew which way it was going to slide there'd be nothing more to worry about. However, it will be a pleasure after we get through putting funny crosses in the circle to reflect that the country won't have to be saved again for quite a spell. Also you can predict that for another year or so you won't have to answer again that burning question, "Well, how do you think it's going to go?" Likewise, you can start speaking again to a lot of thick-headed, stiff-necked people who wouldn't listen to reason when you told them how to vote. Or they may start speaking to you. And don't; oh, Mildred, in Hevving's name don't fire your bootlegger if the state declares against the sacred eighteenth amendment. There'll be a lot of little details to tend to even if the eighteenth gets a sock in the snoot—bottles and corks to be made, labels printed, night watchmen to be hired for the new breweries, and a lot of things like that. And if you haven't got a bootlegger and stuck to buttermilk until you actually like it, keep right on with the buttermilk. Unless you find you are becoming a slave to it. A buttermilk addict is an awful thing, boys and girls; simply awful. But, anyhow, with the election over you have to find some other kind of entertainment. And that'll be hard at first, for an election is America's favorite indoor sport.

ELEGY EN ROUTE.

(With apologies to a certain coconductor.)

Yeh, mebbe the country is goin' to hell,
As some guys keeps assertin';
But ain't she a purty country,
Even on them thar damn dee-tours!

Yo climb to the top o' some steep hill,
An' while yo'r waitin' fer the ole can
To quit bile-in over,
Yo look down into the valley
Whar mebbe a river is a-windin'
Jest like a shiney, twisted thread;
An' the hillsides is all splotched
With yaller an' red an' purple
An' a steeple is a-risin'
Over a tiny village
Tucked into a cosy cove.
An' when yor ole kettle has quit sizzlin'
Yo coast down the windin' hill
Right through that thar saine village,
An' yo hear children laughin',
An' a pup comes barkin' out
Thinkin' he's scarin' you out o' town;
An' mebbe yo meet an ole woman
Drivin' home the cows;
An' she says, "Howdy, folks.
"Hit's a right nice evenin', hain't hit?"

An' yo drive on an' on an' on,
An' yo meet the endless prairie,
Flatter 'n airy hoe-cake yo ever seen,
An' mebbe the sun is settin'
An' there's great gobs o' gold
Spilled all over the wide sky,
An' over the pastures,
An' the corn;
An' yo jest kain't help but feel
Way down in yor innards,
She's a purty country
An' yo'r damn glad yo'r a-livin' in it.

(Hey, you! Wot's the big idea? Don't you know a stoplight when you see one? Lemme see your license. One of them hill-billies from West Virginia, eh? Well, I guess you'd better go with me. What's that? Corn? Made it yourself, eh? Don't taste so bad. Well, drive along. But don't let me catch you jumping the red again in this town.)

Mebbe
The country is
Goin' to hell. . . .
But she shore is a purty country
Jest the same.

P. D. Goe.

WE'RE BEGINNING to believe it. When football fails to pack 'em in, jam 'em in, and pull 'em in, anywhere and everywhere, then we're willing to admit that it does look as though times are a bit hard.

SOME MOVIE KINGS and queens from Hollywood passed through Chicago Saturday, and instead of jumping out and throwing their arms around the photographers locked their car door and said they were not to be disturbed. They'll probably be sent to the psychopathic hospital when they arrive in New York.

THIS IS APPLE WEEK. They've given a week to about everything you can think of, and some weeks belong to a half dozen things at once, but nobody has had the crust yet to start a national spinach week.

LAMENT.

Not for your sake my hungry heart is calling,
Who rest beneath the marble and the rose,
Who lie and hear the silver petals falling
In an unwearied music of repose;

Not for your sake, but that my eyes are holden
From so much loveliness we two have known;
Was it because of you the earth was golden?
I am afraid to look at it alone.

PROHIBITION

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 3, 1914.

VIENNA.—The following official announcement was made here: "On the Russian-Turkish frontier near Trebisond battles have commenced between Russian and Turkish troops."

LONDON.—The Morning Post correspondent at Petrograd sends the following: "Rumors persist that Przemysl, in Galicia, has been taken, but these reports are untrue. What really happened is that the Russians captured 4,000 of the garrison, with a large amount of arms and equipment, when the garrison attempted a sortie."

LONDON. — Telegraphing from Calais, the Daily Mail correspondent says: "The british army has endured an historic ordeal in checking the German attempt to advance on Calais. The German offensive has crumbled into stalemate, but the empire should know that the victory at Ypres has been purchased at a price as high as any previously reported in British battle history. It is believed that the British had half a million Germans opposed to them in the Ypres fighting."

CHICAGO.—Five hundred thousand ballots will be cast today in Chicago, according to last night's election board estimates. The city's vote in the three-cornered senatorial contest between Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, Republican; Roger C. Sullivan, Democrat, and Raymond Robins, Bull Moose, is looked on by politicians as likely to determine the state result.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 3, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Senator Mark Hanna, as chairman of the Republican national committee, issued a statement reviewing the issues of the campaign and reciting the reasons on which the Republican party depends for support at the polls next Tuesday. William Jennings Bryan continued his swing about Chicago in his final campaign effort, speaking at twelve meetings.

CARBONDALE, Ill.—Gen. Simon B. Buckner of Kentucky, once Democratic governor of his state, a confederate veteran and candidate of the Gold Democracy for Vice President in 1896, has gone on record as opposed to the election of Bryan.

OSWEGO, N. Y.—Theodore Roosevelt, Republican candidate for Vice President, completed at this point one of the most remarkable campaigns ever made by a candidate of any party in the United States. In eight weeks he visited 24 states of the Union, made 673 speeches, traveled 21,209 miles, visited 567 towns and cities, and talked to an estimated 3,000,000 persons.

NEW YORK.—William Lafayette Strong, last mayor of old New York, died of heart disease, superinduced by gout and rheumatism, at the age of 73.

CHICAGO.—The three commissions appointed to investigate the feasibility and desirability of a pneumatic tube system for the local Chicago mail service will make a favorable recommendation to the postmaster general.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 3, 1880.

NEW YORK.—The Sun admitted at 11 p. m. that New York had gone 55,000 for Garfield and that the Republican candidates were sure of 216 electoral votes. Then the lights went out and darkness covered the Sun. The Sun, Herald and World all conceded Garfield 222 electoral votes at midnight.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It has been a gloomy night for Democracy. Their news organs and their public men have deceived them, and, as late at 9 o'clock this evening, dispatches were bulletined purporting to come from John Kelly claiming the state of New York for the Democracy. Early in the evening, the Democrats gathered about their headquarters with a band of music and speakers in attendance. They had cheerful returns from Arkansas and Georgia but these were not the ones they were most interested in. Finally, toward midnight the Post put out its bulletin, "The returns so far received indicate the election of Garfield."

CHICAGO.—The result of the election in Chicago and in Cook county exceeded even the most sanguine Republican expectations. A majority approximating 5,000 in the city is of itself an extraordinary expression of condemnation of the Democratic party.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

A STATE OF INSURRECTION.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Your editorial yesterday commending the Supreme court of Illinois for sanctioning bail of $5,000 in vagrancy cases was a very strong statement of the principles which should be applied by the courts in the protection of the rights of the public, which are too often overlooked when the rights of the criminal are up. On your reasoning the Supreme court might have gone much further than it did. As the bail approved is very light when weighed against the rights and safety of a great population long under terrorism, the only speedy and adequate remedy for conditions is action by the governor.

In 1909 the Supreme court of the United States held (212 U. S., 78, 84) that where two bands of brawlers were in armed activity and frequent and deadly conflict and the courts had shown inability to administer justice (a perfect statement of long standing conditions in Chicago) the governor of Colorado had the right, under constitutional provisions making him commander-in-chief of the military and directing him to suppress insurrection and enforce the laws, to declare that an insurrection against law and civil order existed in a county and to imprison the leaders and hold them without trial for several months until order had been restored and then turn them over to the civil authorities.

Now, the governor of Illinois is under constitutional authority precisely like that exercised by the governor of Colorado, and is free to declare an insurrection against law and authority to exist in Cook county and proceed with troops to jail every one of the known gunmen, bomb throwers, footpads, and conspirators who have ruled Chicago for several years, and hold them until such time as the courts, aided by awakened citizens on juries, could give to each what the law of the land prescribes.

Not the least pleasing aspect of such executive action would be the exclusion from the scene of the lawyer criminal, the half baked judge who meddles in the affairs of another jurist, the bail crook, the writ of habeas corpus, the grand jury hastening to babble its secrets, and the state's attorney proclaiming what he is going to do but seldom does.

"Public danger," said the Supreme court of the United States, "warrants the substitution of executive process for judicial process." Plainly Chicago needs executive action. It has wearied of the unavailing efforts of the sheriff, the police department, and the judiciary.

THOMAS JAMES NORTON.

DON'T MENTION IT.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—I should like to commend THE TRIBUNE and its employés upon their courtesy and their sincere efforts to furnish information. I needed several old market quotations not long ago and upon asking another newspaper for them I was told very curtly that I would have to come to the office and look over back numbers of the paper to find them. Whereupon, I called THE TRIBUNE and your man cheerfully gave me five minutes of his time, during which he found the information and actually asked my pardon for being so slow.

It is such courtesies as these that make me, and I believe that I am about an average citizen, reach for a TRIBUNE instead of just a newspaper.

PAUL W. FAIRMAN.

GENERAL WEYLER.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Let me answer your article in connection with the death of Gen. Valeriano Weyler. I have no defense to make in behalf of Señor Weyler, nor a phrase of encomium for his name. He died believing that he did his very best for his native land. He did for Spain what an Englishman or Frenchman would have done for England or France under identical circumstances. History offers us hundreds of Weylers, innumerable examples of even worse butchers than this guy "caballero" from the land of Don Quixote. Your sensible people called Cortez and Pizarro cruel, brutal, and ruthless, but it sounds ironical to claim that today we find in the empires founded by these merciless butchers almost as many aborigines as when the Conquistadores first landed; while in the empire established by the Pilgrims the Indians are pretty near extinguished.

Gen. Weyler fought and oppressed the Cubans in the name of Spain, and the Spanish hand in Cuba as well as in Porto Rico was tyrannical, but how about today? Is political oppression the only sort of oppression? How about economical oppression? Are the Cubans and Porto Ricans a happy and free people?

DOLORES RAMOS.

THE ADIABATIC CURVE.

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 23.—I note H. J. Dow of Red Wing, Minn., questions the probability of rays from the Lindbergh beacon being observed at Point Edward, 60 miles removed from Chicago. Doubtless Mr. Dow's mathematics is correct when he states that either the Lindbergh light would have to be elevated 45 miles above Chicago or its rays be reflected from an object at this height to be seen at the distance of Point Edward, but he fails to take into account other well known physical phenomena bearing on the question.

Some miles above the earth's surface a point is reached where the earth's atmosphere undergoes a marked change in density, caused both by a definite change in the proportions of the component gases, and by a sharp drop in temperature. Light waves entering this region [of the adiabatic curve] are convected, or bent, for the same reason that a spoon appears to be bent when standing in a tumbler of water, thus accounting for the afterglow of sunset, mirages, radio waves clinging to the earth's surface, and other kindred phenomena not yet fully understood.

Thus one should not be too sure about the distance this most powerful light may, or may not, be seen.

BEN H. WILSON.

FOR THE HUNGRY.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—If every person who can will bring but a single sandwich [wrapped for ease in handling] when he or she comes to work each morning, and leave them at conveniently located points where the various charitable organizations can collect them for distribution, the problem of feeding the hungry will be solved immediately, and one would think, to the great satisfaction of the donors, who by this simple act can guarantee that not a man, woman or child in the Chicago area need suffer for want of food while the cumbersome wheels of organization and finance grind out a plan of permanent relief.

SEES DARK SKIES AS FORECAST OF NEW PROSPERITY

Dr. David Friday Predicts Early Business Gains.

The business depression was discussed yesterday at the Adelphia theater under the auspices of the Chicago Forum. Dr. David Friday of New York, president of the Domestic and Foreign Investors corporation, former president of the Michigan Agricultural college, in 1918 statistical adviser to the U. S. treasury department, drew a capacity crowd for the opening program of the season.

His concluding message was that the return of prosperity may be expected some time during the approaching winter, for "when people get as pessimistic as they are right now, you can depend upon it the end is not far off." Yet it carried an undertone of warning—that the fat days that are coming will still be far leaner than those of the preceding cycle, for in Dr. Friday's opinion, it may be a lifetime before those high levels are equaled.

Lower Scale of Prices.

"Prices will be on a lower scale than we have known for some time," he advised, "but many classes of people are going to be happier because their money will go further. This lower price level will be rather a permanent thing in our lifetimes, I believe."

One of the probable causes of the depression, Dr. Friday declared, was the stabilization pools in various products, formed to keep the prices of certain articles "far above the cost of production." He cited the rubber pool in Great Britain, which caused rubber to sell at $1 per pound in 1921. In 1929, he pointed out, rubber was selling for 21 cents a pound.

"While the British were running the rubber pool," he explained, "the Dutch were undermining it by selling at much lower prices. The same thing happened in Japan with silk, in Australia with wool, in Brazil with coffee, in America with copper, in Canada with wheat. The Canada wheat pool lost $2,800,000 in the last year.

Not Warned Against Pools.

"Overproduction for the most part has been overemphasized in accounting for the collapse of these pools. There is only a surplus when the demand is checked, and in these and many other products the demand was checked. It is a difficult thing to keep a foreign information system functioning, but surely our department of commerce ought to be asked why they did not keep us informed about what was happening in Australia, Brazil, and other countries. We were not adequately warned about these pools.

"Now why did the demand shrink? I can't say positively. But in my opinion one great factor was the restriction of credit by two vast banking systems—the Bank of France and our own federal reserve system, which ought to have known better. France sequestered great quantities of gold that flowed into that country, in pursuance of a vast policy which I do not propose to criticize.

"The federal reserve here felt that the restriction of credit would check the stock market rise, and thus prevent thousands of small investors from losing their savings when the break came. As soon as the thing happened which the federal reserve wanted to happen, it began to ease up credit immediately. Whether they have eased it enough is a question.

Political Events Involved.

"Many political events had their part in leading up to this depression. The war in China. The unrest in India, still unsettled, and affecting vitally England's importation market. The revolts in Peru and in Argentina. Each of these countries is a potential purchaser of raw materials, but because of their political situations, the quality of their credit is such that their securities cannot be sold.

"Probably the first gun in this depression was fired at the Young conference in Paris in the spring of 1929. Some of the foreign nations proceeded to bring pressure to bear on Germany by withdrawing some of their capital from the country. Others followed suit, and investors, fearing for the stabilization of German money, also recalled their capital."

BREAKS NECK ON STAIRS.

Philip Nelson, 82 years old, died of a broken neck yesterday after he had fallen down the steps of a rooming house at 772 South State street, where he lived.

LONGSHOREMEN STRIKE ENDS AT GALVESTON; 30 SHIPS RELEASED

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The longshoremen strike which tied up thirty vessels at four Texas ports ended here today, when union officials signed the new labor agreement and announced that workers will resume loading tomorrow morning.

Frank Mellina, secretary of the gulf district of the International Longshoremen's association, signed the contract for the unions after shipping interests issued an ultimatum that unless the contract was signed by noon they would take necessary steps to get workers and load the ships.

Meanwhile the labor unions made a separate agreement with Lykes Bros. Steamship company for ships engaged in the West Indies and Cuban trade. The men agreed to accept a rate of 65 cents an hour for south bound ships, while on sugar consignments in bound a per bag basis will be paid.

About 3,500 men were affected by the strike at Galveston, Houston, Texas City, and Corpus Christi.

Report Escape of Yank in Peru; Jailed for Revolt Plot

CONCEPCION, Chile, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The American aviator, Edward Orville de Larin, was unofficially reported today to have escaped from the detention quarters where he had been held since his arrest for alleged participation in an abortive revolt Sept. 22. Mr. De Larin and Reid Smith, another American aviator, brought a group of Chilean revolutionists by airplane from Argentina. When the revolt failed the Americans were arrested along with the conspirators.

ADMITS EAST ST. LOUIS SHOOTING.

U. S. PREPARING TO SPEED WORK ON HOOVER DAM

Du Pont de Nemours Plans Vast Program.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Plans for asking bids for $60,000,000 to $70,000,000 of construction work on the Hoover dam were announced today by the interior department as the President's emergency committee for employment received word from Wilmington, Del., that the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company would undertake a vast replacement program for the relief of unemployment.

The bid for the dam on the Colorado river will include construction of four tunnels a mile long through the solid volcanic rock cliffs of the canyon at a cost of $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 and cofferdams above and below the dam site to divert water through the tunnels during construction.

The contract will be let about March 1 and meanwhile other work will be pushed which the department said would "furnish much employment and much stimulation to allied industries." The work will include transportation to the dam site and provision of power, living quarters and a water supply.

Material Aid Promised.

Irenee du Pont, an official of the Wilmington company, wrote Chairman Woods of the relief committee that he thought the organization's program would "aid materially in relieving the unemployment situation and will at the same time be to the advantage of the company because of the comparatively low material costs and the abundance of labor."

The company, Woods said, has enlarged its program for employment of labor and in addition to a $25,000,000 building program under way, plans to crowd into the next six months work on plant repairs, renewals and replacements which ordinarily would be carried over a longer period. The Du Pont interests have seventy plants throughout the country.

The employment plan used successfully in Cincinnati was held out to the cities of the country today by Col. Woods as a model. He urged it be adopted in modified form if necessary.

Five Year Program Outlined.

A committee of 17 members, including representatives of industry, labor, welfare agencies, government and education, was organized in Cincinnati eighteen months ago. Ten sub-committees were set up to handle the different phases of the work. A five year municipal improvement program was instituted, he said, along with a campaign to obtain work for unemployed in private homes.

A plea for better wages for women was also made today by the United States women's bureau.

LAKE FREIGHTER SAFE; OVERDUE FOR FOUR DAYS

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Canadian grain carrier Ashbay, overdue here since Wednesday, passed through the locks of the Soo canal at 3:05 a. m. today.

The United States coast guard cutter Seminole had returned to its base here today without having found any evidence of a ship in distress, as had been reported last Friday by the lighthouse keeper on Michipicoten island in Lake Superior.

Officers of the coast guard said they believed all ships on Superior were accounted for and that the ship the light keeper thought he saw through a heavy snowstorm "probably was imagined."

KING OF ETHIOPIA CROWNED AMID BARBARIC POMP

Ras Taffari Feeds Natives Raw Meat at Banquet.

Crowns Glitter in Sun.

Arriving at the church of St. George they descended from the chariot, their coronation robes of scarlet and gold glittering in the sun. The sunlight was reflected fiercely from the gold and diamonds on their crowns.

The foreign princes, ministers, and delegates had already taken their places in the church, which proved too small, in spite of recent additions, for the throngs which clamored for admission. Their majesties found difficulties in making their way through the crowd to the inner sanctuary, where the coptic archbishop performed the religious rites and ceremonies. The atmosphere was murky, almost suffocating, with incense.

King Dwarfed by Queen.

Small of stature, thin, frail, with delicate, almost feminine features, Ras Taffari nevertheless assumed a look of great dignity and solemnity as the archbishop placed the crown upon his head. Yet the emperor seemed dwarfed by Queen Waziru Menen, who is of Amazon proportions.

"God has anointed you to rule with justice," intoned the archbishop, as he crowned his liege.

Then spoke the pontiff:

"Gird the sword on your loins, and rule in peace. May the Lord God, supreme ruler of men, bless and glorify your reign, and may He ever keep you and your consort in his bosom."

The coronation was followed by a dance of the high priests in front of the church, to the time of low, rhythmical chants, accented by monotonous drumbeats and the clash of cymbals. The priests, bearded and mantled, swayed their bodies violently to and fro according to the peculiar Ethiopian ritual, and waved their long, gold headed "prayer sticks" like wands.

Lions Tied to Platforms.

After the royal pair left the church, they were driven, amidst fresh outbursts of applause, to a great, lavishly decorated coronation dais in the big square in front of the palace. In front of them, tethered to the platform and growling like captive beasts in a Roman arena, were a quintet of fierce looking lions with beautiful golden brown manes, guardians of the throne of Ethiopia and national symbols of power.

The ruling princes and chiefs from the outlying provinces were admitted to their presence in processional order. As they approached the rulers, they prostrated themselves, touching the earth with their foreheads as an indication of their submission and homage.

To signalize his coronation and spread peace and goodwill among the country's 10,000,000 population, the king released several hundred political and criminal offenders, and also conferred the order of the Conquering Lion of Judah on a number of cabinet members, princes and tribal chiefs.

Banquet of Raw Meat.

The most striking of the day's festivities was a gargantuan open air banquet of raw meat and "tej," or wine made from fermented honey and flavored with herbs, which the emperor gave to 25,000 of his tribesmen. Five thousand cattle were slaughtered on the spot for the feast.

The young emperor considered it a day of triumph. At the end of the ceremonies he fell on his knees and gave thanks to God. Abyssinia has been a Christian country for 1,600 years.

H. Murray Jacoby, Brig. Gen. William Wright Harts, and Charles L. Cooke were designated to represent the United States as special emissaries. The duke of Gloucester represented Great Britain.

KING OF KINGS

Arrow on map points to Addis Ababa, capital of Abyssinia, where Ras Taffari was crowned emperor yesterday amid scenes of barbaric splendor. Thousands of Ethiopian natives participated in the brilliant coronation, which was also attended by a number of Americans. Abyssinia has a population of 10,000,000.

LONDON HOSPITAL ENDS SEX WAR ON GIRL STUDENTS

Finds Women Invaluable in Treating Diseases.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The sex war which has been shutting King's college hospital to women medical students has ended by the complete capitulation of the directors of the college on the grounds that women are indispensable in the treatment of certain diseases.

The exclusion of female students was demanded by the men on the grounds that the two sexes were unable to mingle in the study of medicine, that women were unsuccessful as doctors, and that they interfered with the scholastic and athletic lives of the male students.

Real Trouble Was Teaching.

The real reason was the embarrassment of some of the staff in teaching bisexual classes in some stages of their training.

Seven hospitals here still bar women. Most of these today indicated that they would maintain their attitude despite the declaration of the house governor of King's college, who said, "It is a mistake to pursue an anti-feminist policy," and his revelation that there is an actual shortage of women doctors in London.

"It will take some time to supply the deficiency caused by the short-sightedness of the hospitals," said a famous physician today. "Certain other hospitals will follow the example set by King's college. The argument that girl students are a distraction to the men does not hold water against the fact that in gynecological work and in the treatment of children women are invaluable."

Found Valuable Element.

The principal of King's college said, "No difficulties have ever arisen from teaching the two sexes side by side, and we have found that the women medical students are a valuable element in the life of the college. Although at present there is a real need for more women doctors, there has been a strong body of opinion that their training should be confined to schools devoted solely to women. I do not agree with this attitude."

$2,000 in cash would give him independence

To a man in his middle thirties there seemed little future in the job he had held for seven years.

His family's needs were growing faster than his income. He wanted a business of his own.

Then one day an enterprising young competitor called him on the phone, met him at luncheon, over the coffee cups offered a partnership in his growing business.

Two thousand dollars in cash was needed. The rest could be paid from earnings.

This family had maintained what they termed an "Opportunity Account" at The Northern Trust Company. It had grown a little at a time. It totaled over $2000.

From it, now, came the cash with which the offer of partnership was accepted. The man with the savings account had started on the road to independence.

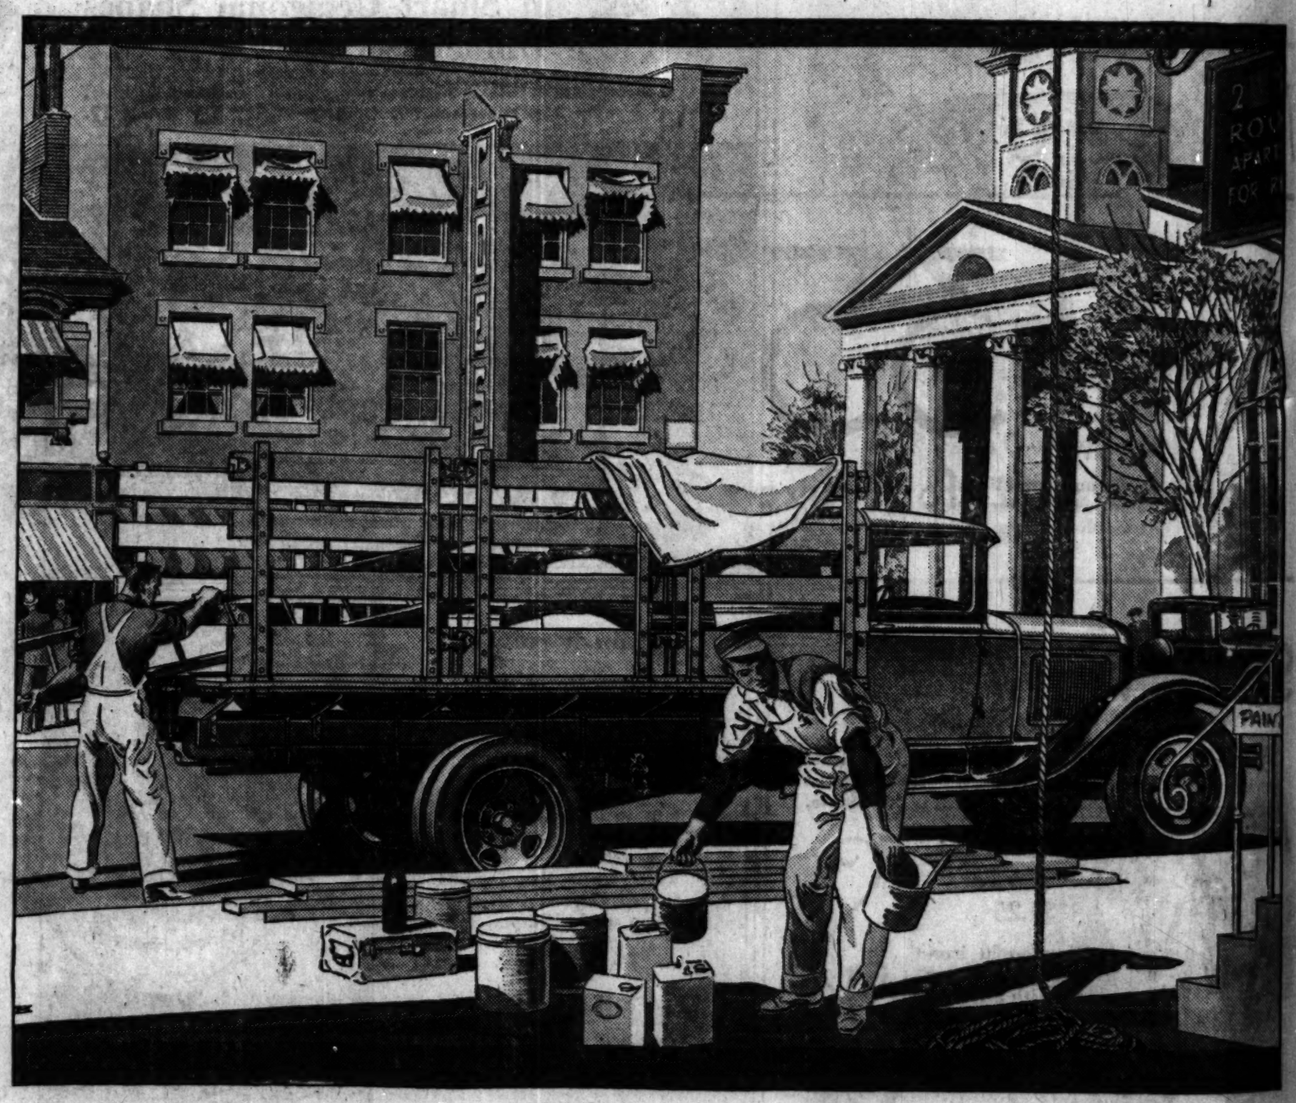
Loads that bulk large can be hauled at small cost

WITH A FORD TRUCK



THE full measure of hauling-value offered by the Ford 1½-ton truck is available to those who need a truck with large loading-space. In addition to the chassis with 131½-inch wheelbase, there is one with 157-inch wheelbase, especially planned for carrying light but bulky loads without a red flag fluttering behind.

This increased length permits the use of large bodies for many specialized purposes on the Ford truck; among them bus and van bodies, industrial bodies to accommodate material of unusual length or articles of great bulk, and many others.

Thus, to a larger number of businesses, the long, reliable, low-cost service of the Ford truck becomes directly available. Records of service in these new fields, as in every business where the Ford truck is in daily use, show that it offers a value far in excess of the price.

Chassis features, which contribute to reliability, strength and performance, are the spiral bevel gear rear axle, which has a straddle-mounted pinion; large, fully enclosed mechanical brakes; 4-speed transmission; heavy front axle and spring; option of two rear-axle gear-ratios; and dual rear wheels, available at small additional cost.

Standard bodies are offered for many purposes, with a choice of open or closed cabs. All are equipped with Triplex shatter-proof glass windshields. Examine this truck at the showroom of your Ford dealer. You can find the nearest dealer in your "Where to Buy It" Classified Telephone Directory under the name Ford.

THREE BALKED CONVICTS FACE MURDER CHARGES

Trio in Solitary After Sing Sing Break.

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—An exhaustive search by 100 keepers this morning of every nook and cranny of Sing Sing prison convinced Warden Lewis E. Lawes that there was no immediate danger of further attempts to escape. Warden Lawes said the three survivors of the party of four prisoners that tried to shoot its way out of Sing Sing Saturday night may be prosecuted for first degree murder in the death of their companion, Harry Gordon, who was shot and killed by a keeper.

Edward Ryan, William Lapere, and Herbert Davis, the survivors, spent the day in solitary confinement. Davis is suffering from a minor wound he received in the scalp. It was expected that Walter Thayer, commissioner of correction, would order Ryan, who has made two previous attempts to escape, to be transferred to Dannemora, the prison least popular with convicts and the hardest to get out of. The other two prisoners may also be transferred there as a warning to any others who may be inclined to try for their freedom, it was said.

Find Stolen Automobile.

Further indications that the four prisoners had outside accomplices came to light today when a stolen automobile with changed license plates was found. The motor was running and on the seat was a loaded pistol. It is assumed the car was to be used in their escape.

Inside the wall, keepers found another iron hook and rope, such as the fugitives tried to use in scaling the wall. They also found an imitation pistol made of wood in Ryan's cell.

Prisoners Are Grilled.

"He might have planned to use this wooden toy to bluff his way past guards, but would not have troubled to make it, had he had a real weapon," Mr. Lawes explained. Other contraband such as table knives and money was found, but no more firearms, and Mr. Lawes voiced a conviction that no more were secreted within the prison.

Questioning of the prisoners revealed no definite clew as to how the four pistols were smuggled into the grounds. The prison employs 100 civilian workers who enter and leave every day. In addition many relatives visit convicts. Because of construction work now under way, the warden explained, it was difficult to keep unfailing watch on all those who enter.

COSTA RICA CHIEF MAY ASK LOANS TO HELP JOBLESS

Announces He Will Serve Full Term of Office.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Nov. 2.—President Cleto Gonzales Viquez today issued a public proclamation denying that he had any intention of resigning and ceding the executive power to a successor named by congress. He stated that he was resolved to serve the remainder of his constitutional term which expires on May 8, 1932. The cabinet, he declared, was in perfect accord with his executive program.

The proclamation goes on to say that the administration is not responsible for the financial difficulties gripping the country, which are worldwide and less acute here than in many other countries.

Plans Jobless Aid.

It also said that the government intends to continue its program of roadbuilding and other public works, thereby relieving unemployment. The president declared that congress, in order to develop the resources of the nation, must modify the law authorizing the executive power to secure loans abroad.

President Viquez said that if he believed a change of government would be beneficial to the country he would resign, but that he did not believe that any other administration would enjoy the moral and legal background which the present régime has, because he had gained his seat by popular election. He did not think that a succeeding government would maintain more perfect autonomy or international prestige than was now enjoyed.

Will Crush Disorder.

The proclamation also states that it is understood that certain politicians may attempt to provoke disorders, which the public would doubtless oppose, and the government therefore warned the people that it would not tolerate illegal acts and would energetically punish any seditious movement tending to disturb the public order.

Perfect order prevails throughout the republic. The firm stand expressed in today's proclamation is likely to bring beneficial results to the present executive by causing his friends to rally to his régime and induce the congress to support measures tending to relieve the impending financial stringency by authorizing the president to secure a foreign loan.

ENDS LIFE BY HANGING.

The body of Walter Pichan, 46 years old, who lived at 2848 West 25th street, was found hanging in a coal shed at the rear of his brother's home at 3029 West 38th place yesterday. He was a molder.

JAPANESE SHIP RADIOS FOR AID IN MID-PACIFIC

American Liner Unable to Locate It.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Wallowing helplessly in heavy north Pacific seas, the Japanese freighter Seiyo Maru sent out messages late today in an effort to make a rescue ship understand her position.

The freighter, carrying a crew of about forty men, wirelessed she had lost her rudder, was listing dangerously, and was in a sinking condition.

Rescue Ship Near Scene.

The steamship California was trying to go to its rescue in the stormy waters southwest of the Aleutian islands. The rescue ship was having difficulty understanding the distress calls of the Japanese vessel.

"I can't make you understand English," the radio operator aboard the Seiyo Maru told the California.

At 2:55 p. m. (P. S. T) the California was reported 25 miles away from the distressed ship.

No Passengers Aboard.

The Seiyo Maru, en route from Portland to Yokohama, carried no passengers, her agent said.

She is a steel vessel of 6,550 gross tonnage, owned by the Mansei Kisen Kaisha and operated by the Yamashita Shipping company. She was built in Glasgow in 1913.

GRAND JURY WILL CONSIDER YOKUM KIDNAPING CASE

Kewanee, Ill., Nov. 2.—(AP)—State's Attorney Carl A. Melwin tonight said that witnesses in the kidnaping of Earl L. Yocum of Galva, Ill., millionaire banker, would be called before the Henry county grand jury which meets tomorrow.

Melwin would not specify when it will reach the Yocum case or who the witnesses will be.

Yocum was kidnaped from his home a week ago Saturday and held prisoner near Lacon, Ill., until Tuesday night, when he was released near Atkinson, Ill. A trap set next day netted Vernon Ahlgren and Harry Whiskers of Galva. Ahlgren confessed, and Lloyd Winslow and Orville Whiskers are being sought. Kidnaping for ransom is a capital crime in Illinois.

ALL physicians agree that drinking water is the first step in the treatment of colds. Seven to ten glasses a day help wash the toxins out of your system—aid your body in throwing off this threatening condition.

Then rub Mentholatum on your chest and throat. Cover your chest with flannel, for, although Mentholatum does not stain, the extra warmth increases its action.

Put just a bit in each nostril with the tip of your finger. The pleasant vapors of Mentholatum rise so that you inhale the cool, soothing effect—how easy it makes your breathing.

For 38 years Mentholatum has been a reliable home-remedy. Try this easier, surer way to get relief. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—Harry Tagart, 24, former air mail pilot, and two girl passengers were burned to death today, when a borrowed plane crashed in a cabbage patch. Unable to reach the victims trapped in the flaming plane, a crowd looked helplessly on.

It was alleged that Tagart was stunting when the plane went into a nose dive and fell to the ground. The dead passengers are sisters, Kathleen and Jean McColl, 19 and 24 years old. They were friends of the flyer, who had invited them to take a ride.

The plane was owned by Walter Watson of Buffalo and had been flown to Toronto by Watson's pilot.

POSTPONE QUIZ INTO DEATH OF HOBART J. GARY

The coroner's inquest into the death on Saturday of Hobart Jude Gary, cousin of the late Elbert H. Gary, was continued yesterday until tomorrow or Wednesday.

Gary was found by his wife, Elizabeth, unconscious in the garage in the rear of their home at 129 Prairie avenue, Wheaton, and died a short time later. A brother, Hubert Gary of Wilmette, said last night that reports of Hobart Gary's financial difficulties were exaggerated. He said there was no reason why his brother should have taken his life.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today in the Gary Memorial church, which was the late Elbert H. Gary's gift to Wheaton. Burial will be in Wheaton cemetery.

Besides his widow and brother, Hobart Gary is survived by his father, Eben S. Gary of Denver, and a son, Hobart Jude Gary Jr., 5 years old.

Tests of various signaling methods by experts of the United States bureau of mines showed workers recoil from offensive odors more quickly than they give heed to other warnings, the announcement said.

OKLAHOMA CITY GUSHER TAMED; PERIL SUBSIDES

River Surface Oil Burns; Progress Checked.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Mere man and his tools triumphed today over the gigantic force of a wild gusher which for three days had threatened this oil-bound city with potential disaster.

A great iron die nipple connection late today was anchored into place over the volcano-like casing of the rampant No. 1 C. E. Stout gusher of the Morgan Petroleum company, master gates were closed, and the well—a mile from the center of Oklahoma City's busiest corner—was tamed.

But before the well bowed to the will of the workers the last gesture of its fury emerged seven miles downstream in the oil covered North Canadian river, on the south bank of which the gusher is located. Fire broke out in the stream and great clouds of black smoke could be seen for miles.

Current Checks Fire.

Only a small area, however, was burning; the river current checked the progress of the fire upstream, while it burned itself out in the other direction. The blaze was not regarded as dangerous despite the ominous smoke columns and the leaping flames. Its origin unknown, the fire came exactly 24 hours after a blaze had swept oil soaked grass a mile and half north of the angry gusher, precipitating a panic in Negro sections in southeast Oklahoma City before it was stamped out. The wild well had filled the river with oil for five miles.

With the triumph of the oil crews and their 45 foot tool, rigid fire rules laid down in a wide area about the well partially were lifted. Firemen and approximately seventy-five men and eight officers of the National Guard, which had been on duty since late Friday, remained to patrol sections nearest the well. No-fire bans were enforced in lowland sections, where it was believed gas pockets remained.

Hazard Still Exists.

E. M. Fry, city manager, warned the gusher's human neighbors that serious hazards still existed, due to gas saturated atmosphere and oil covered roofs, lawns, and trees—sprayed constantly by the well until today.

The gusher, which was believed to have increased its oil volume nearly 25 per cent over Saturday night, to perhaps 75,000 barrels daily, caused the closing of six schools, abandonment of nearby homes, and smudged exclusive residence districts.

DOMINION STATUS VOTED AS PLANK OF BRITISH INDIA

Envoys Map Program for Parley.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Leaders of the British India delegates to the round table conference held their first meeting in St. James' palace this afternoon and adopted a program for the full meeting of the delegates tomorrow. This program establishes a united demand for dominion status for India and settlement of the present internal strife as the main topics of discussion.

The whole body of the British Indian delegates will be asked to go to the round table conference to demand dominion status with transitional safeguards and be prepared to walk out of the deliberations in the event of refusal on the part of Britain.

Ruling Princes Meet.

The thorny question of religious and racial differences will be put off with a plan to ask the main body to appoint committees to take part in the discussions as the debate of the central topic progresses.

The representatives of the Indian states, the ruling princes of India, met at the same time today to debate the third puzzle confronting Indians—namely: that of establishing a federal government acceptable to the powerful princes.

Reliable sources claim that there is an almost unanimous agreement for the establishment of a strong central government of some form, but even this concession has brought about a new problem.

Study Complicated Problem.

The princes of some of India's 565 states are virtual sovereigns, while others are merely cardboard figureheads. It is conceded that the latter are inadmissable to an Indian federation on the same status as the more powerful of the princes and therefore some form of graduating relations with the central government must be worked out.

The question is further complicated by the fact that the princes have decided to refer back the whole matter to their relations to British India to a committee, with instructions that it consult the British Indian delegation in order to find some means of arriving at unanimity.

NEW YORK POLICE FIND SLAIN MAN'S BODY IN VACANT LOT

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—To their ever lengthening list of slayings attributed to gangsters police today added one more name. The body of a man identified as Felix Lopreste, 35, was found in a vacant lot in Astoria.

His throat had been slashed and around his neck was a length of tightly bound sash cord. The condition of the body led police to the suspicion he had been tortured.

Detectives declared the man had been arrested four times in the course of his career, but never had been convicted.

5 STUDENTS SHOT IN CAIRO RIOT; BATTLE POLICE

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Five students were shot and several others arrested today in a riot at the Boulac Technical school after attempts had been made to set fire to the building. Police said they first fired over the heads of the rioters.

Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha held a long conference with the director of public safety regarding measures for maintaining order. There were disturbanves in three other schools yesterday.

There has been acute tension in Egypt for some time due to differences between the government party and the Liberals over proposed constitutional reforms. Police and cavalry were ordered out to patrol the streets late last month.

Edward Moore Writes of Music and the Musicians

SNOW

By Ednah Aiken

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila Fay married King George despite the opposition of her uncle and guardian, John Donohue, and her former suitor, Jim Molloy, and disapproving friends.

King, known as "the wild boy of Harvard," must wait several years before receiving the principal of the fortune left by his father, Joshua George, of chewing-gum fame.

After the wedding they elope to avoid the reception. Instead of going to Monterey, where their baggage had been shipped, they slip off to Lake Tahoe. King is strangely restless and irritable, and a phone call which Sheila overhears King make reveals to her the cause—he is a drug addict and because of their changed honeymoon plans is without a supply. Sheila determines to fight for King's regeneration and consults a federal narcotic agent, who suggests a program, which if rigidly adhered to would affect a cure.

King had entered his favorite horse, Wind, in the Tia Juana races, with the intention of riding him himself, so they go to San Diego. The day before the race Sheila overhears her husband and his trainer planning to dope Wind to insure his winning. The day of the race King asks Sheila to place his bets for him on Wind. Instead she places them on his opponent, who wins. After the race Sheila tells King what she had done and why.

King had promised Sheila to go with her to Alaska, after the races. Jim Molloy is in Nome and he meets them there, at Sheila's request. He helps her to carry out her plan to take King to a remote spot, there to help him fight off his baneful habit. Sheila and Jim had booked passage on the boat returning to California. Jim invites them for an early farewell breakfast at his cabin.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

THE DRUGGED CUP.

King was taking her in from head to foot, and yet his glance was loving.

"Well, it's daring, Sheila. I didn't think I liked it at first; but you can carry it off."

What, the waffles, the lie? But why did he say that he didn't like it at first? The sentences didn't fit; they made a Chinese puzzle—"Daring?" she echoed.

"Green slippers, green stockings, yellow gown. But it's clever."

She almost laughed aloud in relief. She allowed herself a trill of merriment which he would not find out of place with her truthful explanation. "I forgot my feet! You see, I was dressing when Jim came. I slipped into the dress which needs no adjusting, no stitches. I had planned to wear my green velvet-voila!

"Even if it's accidental, the effect is good. Makes you look like a daffodil, swaying on a slender stem——"

Laughter arrested his uxorious description—how many centuries since she had laughed? "You mean two stems. Shall I really go this way?"

"Before you get the war-paint on, kiss me, sweetheart."

She clung to him in a passion of relief and hope. He did still love her;

It was like Jim to rush the climax. Anyone else would have essayed a social meal.

she must remember that in the hideous days yet to come. And later, he would love her the more for having broken his shackles. Anyway, whatever happened, he loved her now.

But they felt like Judas kisses, the responses from her still unpainted lips . . .

Jim had reminded her that early rising was important; they should make their get-away from the cottage while Nome still slept, or while Nome was dressing for the big day. He had suggested that she set watches ahead before going to bed. King was splashing about in the bathroom as she moved the hands twice around the circle, thankfully realizing she was thus two hours nearer the end of evasions and duplicity. Tomorrow, the new life, of frankness, of honest struggle would begin.

Unaware it was actually earlier, King protested at being awakened at such an ungodly hour. He declared he would take another nap . . . She had to pull his pillows from him, flinging the cushions across the room; had to shake him, warning him of the chaos at the beach, the flurry which would engulf them unless they got aboard early; and that meant being prompt at Jim's. Sleepily King stated he would rather doze than eat—Jim's? What did she mean about Jim's?

He had forgotten the breakfast arrangement of the night before. "Wake up, King. The waffles will be spoiled. Jim's coming for us. We've barely time to dress.

"Count me out. He doesn't want me." He was fully awake now. "You and he'll have scads of things to talk about, old times, old friends. I'll pick up a bite down the street, or wait for the steamer meal. I eat too much on board, anyway."

Her heart skipped a beat. "I won't go without you, King."

"That's all right, then. We can send him a note. Say we overslept." He was snuggling under the covers again, resigned to be pillowless.

"But—we have to. He's prepared everything for us. And he has no servant; he's had to do it all himself. It wouldn't be—decent, King."

"You talk as if it were a banquet he's giving. What's coffee and a few waffles?" blustered King. But he was weakening now, for to his amazement, he saw tears in her eyes.

"Want to go as much as that? Well, have it your way." Slowly the blue pajamas emerged from the comforting warmth of the bed-covering.

Lest he again change his mind, his wife hastened his sluggish preparations, speeding his slow motions with raillery. Her nerves, she discovered, were raw; for each of her careless gibes mocked her. "Plenty of time tomorrow to be a snail, King." Tomorrow! For months, all they would have would be time. Or, "That ship'll go without us——" It would, indeed! —It must go without them. What was wrong with her wits that she couldn't think of decent things to say?

The lobby was empty when they descended, followed by the boy carrying their bags. Where was Jim? Over the telephone, he'd said he was downstairs . . . Sheila's heart was playing strange tricks on her. Suppose King should glance at the clock, and discover her ruse with the watches? There was nothing to delay them; the night before, their bill had been paid, and their forwarding address left with the clerk. But King might take it into his head to give an unnecessary tip to the night clerk, and would then see the clock. Suppose it were the striking kind? She slipped her arm through her husband's pretending a tremendous interest in Jim Molloy's waffles.

"Where's Molloy?" King had halted, was glancing around the lobby.

"He said he'd wait outside, in his car," explained Sheila, wondering if it were the last lie . . .

But there was Jim; in his car. The bell hop was opening the door for them; they were leaving the hotel. "The first deep river crossed," she thought.

On the way to Jim's cabin which lay, he'd told her, on the outskirts of the town, she reached full realization of what she was attempting to do. Never could she have carried through the plot, even thus far, without Jim's cooperation. She was remembering the many precautions he had supplied in order to make the "get-away," as he called it, air tight. Not once, by look or omission had he bungled.

The escape from the hotel, the lights in the windows of the houses they were passing, those few early risers on the street whence they had come, had brought home to the girl unacquainted with the darker avenues of life the risk of an abduction. Jim had made it possible and perhaps safe. She could never repay him, or even adequately thank him, because she was Sheila, and he was Jim.

The shabby machine was halting in front of a crudely constructed shack. "My residence," grinned Molloy.

A furtive survey was putting Sheila in possession of the items of facts which might be feared. Nearby, another cabin; the windows dark. Down the road, a few shacks; where people must be stirring about, for lights were burning. No one yet on the road. And there Nome ended. Daylight was hours away. It looked as though the exit from the town might be made unobserved.

Molloy had opened the door, was ushering them in.

"Make yourself at home. I'll pour on the waffle-batter. The iron's already hot." He strode into the kitchen, saying as he disappeared. "I'm my own Biddy."

In the room they had entered, a fire was blazing on the hearth, and a small table was set. The walls—Sheila was gathering herself together sufficiently to observe things not relating to King—were lined with box-wood—derived shelves for books, magazines, pipes, tobacco jars. Otherwise, there were no luxuries. At thirty, Jim was beginning life over again, and because of her.

She was looking at the titles of his books when he returned, bearing a tray. "I've no coffee-pot, at least the one I have 's not fit for quality-folk, but there's more coffee where this came from. The arm-chair's for you, Sheila."

It was like Jim to rush the climax. Any one else would have essayed a social meal. Jim wouldn't dally with hypocrisy; he was playing the trick at once.

King's response confounded them both. Without looking at Jim, Sheila knew he was nonplussed when King said, "No offense to the invisible pot if I don't partake, Molloy? I'll have one of your incomparable waffles; that's all."

Nothing to drink. The whole scheme ruined——

King spoke again. "I'm going to bed the instant I strike the deck. These perpetual motion days have been too much for me."

"WAY FOR A SAILOR."

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.
Directed by Sam Wood.
Presented at the Oriental theater.

THE CAST.

Jack	John Gilbert
Tripod	Wallace Beery
Joan	Leila Hyams
Ginger	Jim Tully
Polly	Polly Moran
Flossy	Doris Lloyd

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

This picture would have been a heap sight better if they'd given us more of Polly Moran and Doris Lloyd and less of some other people. Ah, well—sigh! But . . . Ted Lewis is at the Oriental in person . . . SMILE! Life DOES have its little compensations.

They've made a sailor of Jack Gilbert this trip. I don't think they should of, but then I don't know much about sailors. Be it said for Mr. Gilbert that he works hard and that his microphone delivery is apparently getting better every day in every way. His voice never bothered me the way it did some folks, anyway. It was his acting in "Redemption" that made me faint.

"Way for a Sailor" deals with the lusty lives of men who sail the seas and make ports in merchant marines. The good ship featured in this one is certainly one unlucky craft! She's on fire when you meet her, gets into a collision when she leaves port a few days later and is completely shipwrecked at the end of the fillum. The picture throughout has a false ring and artificial flavor. A storm at sea, and the catastrophe mentioned, last interminably and give you never a shock, thrill, or moment of suspense.

Mr. Gilbert, essaying to be a sort of navy "Sergt. Quirt," takes his fun where he finds it, but loses his heart in only one place. The girl's name is Joan, and she's a cashier. She spurns the sailor, who keeps coming back for more punishment. A well told lie lands him as her husband. Joan's discovery of the lie brings about an immediate separation. The shipwreck conduces to the H. E.

Those two expert actresses, Polly Moren and Doris Lloyd, enter the action briefly but tellingly. Lelia Hyams is pretty, but her work seemed strained to me. Wallace Beery is supposed to be funny, and maybe he is. His conversation is certainly a bore. Jim Tully is a bit more intriguing.

The picture is not without its drawing points. It has one or two beautiful photographic shots, and you keep hoping that Messrs. Tully and Gilbert will give you a demonstration of how they REALLY fight together in Hollywood.

See you tomorrow.

CLAUDIA MUZIO ADDS NEW ZEST TO THE 'LOVE OF THREE KINGS'

BY HAZEL MOORE.

To the habitual opera goer the advent of a new work, or a new interpretation of an old one gives an added zest to the occasion. So when Claudia Muzio, a new Fiora, bloomed at the first matinée of this season's Civic Opera, the performance of Montemezzi's "L'Amore dei Tre Re" took on an entirely new color. A pulsing sense of life brought shouts and bravos from a small but highly appreciative audience.

And a heroic cast it was. Virgilio Lazzari made his first appearance of the season in his finest characterization of Archibaldo, the blind king, the smallest of stature but mighty of voice. The redoubtable Cesare Formichi made much in picture and voice of the generally ungrateful rôle of Manfredo. René Maison also making his seasonal debut, was extraodinarily suited to his rôle of the unhappy but beloved Prince Avito. Here were three kings worthy of stature and voice to match the spendid Fiora of Muzio.

Bringing to the rôle all of her unerring instinct for the stage, her sure sense of gesture and pose, and a voice perfectly colored to the fate of the passion swept and hapless princess, Miss Muzio made of Fiora an unforgettable picture. More tragic than her predecessors in the part [and if memory fails not, she is but the fourth to sing it during the existence of the Chicago Opera company], she perhaps most accurately presents the character of Benelli's tragic poem. To her credit and to that of Mr. Maison and Mr. Lazzari must go the best handling of the two difficult scenes of the ultimate last kiss and the generally uncomfortable (for all concerned) carrying off of the corpse. Yesterday both scenes were done logically and gracefully.

The staging and lighting were generally good. Minor difficulties of a tardy entrance of an offstage voice that should have been heard, and the untimely sound of several that should not have been, somewhat marred the second scene. If the orchestra lacked somewhat the sonority one likes best for this score, it was not the fault of Maestro Moranzoni, who conducted with a fine feeling for the poetry and beauty of the music.

Frieda Hempel, Jascha Heifetz Give Recitals

Topping the List of Sunday Concerts.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Frieda Hempel's appearance at the Studebaker yesterday afternoon was advertised merely as a song recital, but it turned out to be about as good a show as has ever been put on in the name of music.

Part of it was a reproduction of the concerts of Jenny Lind, with crinolined costumes of vast, billowy whiteness, wherein, having been led to the front of the stage by her accompanist, Isaac Van Grove, she dismissed him, sat at the piano and played her own accompaniments for some of the songs actually sung by Jenny Lind eighty years ago.

Part of it was the Frieda Hempel of 1930, smart, alert, singing art songs and folk songs, following the "Blue Danube" with "Dixie," projecting every song like a keen expert. Still another part consisted of piano solos by Mr. Van Grove and violin solos by another assistant, Alfred Boyington. Whatever Miss Hempel decreed, she played upon her audience as though it was another instrument, with the result that she evoked loud cheers and unqualified approval. And so she should.

A new and meritorious violin piece has been discovered, and it is in the répertoire of a notable artist, Jascha Heifetz. It is "The Lark," described as a poem in the form of a rondo by Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco. Mr. Heifetz opened his program with it at Orchestra hall yesterday.

The rest of his program was more conventional, Bruch's "Scottish Fantasy," Ravel's "Tzigane," and some shorter pieces. Mr. Heifetz is more of an artist than ever before.

Another piece not old enough to have become staled appeared at the Playhouse, when Herman Felber and Leó Podolsky presented Leo Weiner's sonata for violin and piano. Other calls kept me from reaching the theater in time to hear it all, but what went on after I arrived was again in the modern idiom and again in a high degree of musical entertainment.

Mr. Felber followed with a long group of violin solos and Mr. Podolsky succeeded him with a long group of piano solos. Both were in fine form and playing at the top of it.

Over at the Civic theater Isabelle Yalkovsky presented an interesting program of piano works. Miss Yalkovsky is an artist of uncommon merit.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

If the records of the "theater of terror" were carefully researched, I doubt if they would produce a grimmer and more piteous play than "The Last Mile," which fascinated and appalled the audience that attended its première at the Harris last night. It is a work that is drenched with the horror of such stark actualities as capital punishment and prison massacre.

It was written with bitter realism; it is acted with vivid strength and staged with consummate skill. "The Last Mile," therefore, offers to its observers a tremendous emotional experience—a shock disturbing enough, for many temperaments, to be repellant.

Here you will find yourself eavesdropping upon a death house in a state penitentiary, waiting with its seven inmates for the impending electrocution of one of the group. You will share their depressing intimacies; their group mood of the implacable approach of death; the last meal of the condemned man; the last interview; the last religious rites; the last wavering steps down the corridor toward the door which hides the electric chair. Then the lights dim down with the pulling of an unseen switch, and you will share the sickened sensation of the caged men who have been left behind until their turn comes.

This is the first act of "The Last Mile," and it is a devastating half-hour. If you accept it as valid propaganda against society's right to inflict capital punishment you will doubtless find in it the spiritual experience of high tragedy. A protest against the death sentence is implied in this play, although it wastes no time on humanitarium rhetoric. But if you do not fall into line with this standard argument of social sentimentalists [as I do not]; if you are convinced that the human herd rightly employs this method to extirpate its tigerish brutes of prey, then the first act of "The Last Mile" is likely to revolt you. It invades, you will feel, the privacy of a necessary loathsomeness.

This first act, by the way, is founded upon an authentic document of death-cell terror. The dramatist built it upon the written and published impressions of a young man whose life had been declared forfeit by the state of Oklahoma, and who went his way along the "last mile" and through the green iron door to the fatal chair.

The two acts that follow, as a natural growth out of the condemned men's revolt against their inevitable fate, are grisly also; and yet they form welcome melodramatic relief. They are faithful to the details of recent prison mutinies, and reek with slaughter, yet they offer a stir of exciting action that helps to lift the oppression.

There is stimulation in the gun firing and the desperate bid for freedom; there is savage heroism in this hopeless, bloody challenge to the law. The butchery of prison guards held as hostages, in the third act, evokes again the leaden weight of horror. The death house becomes a shambles, but by that time your nerves have toughened to the strain.

Nearly every character is acted with strong persuasiveness. Spencer Tracy towers over the others, however, as the ruthless killer and leader of the mutiny. James Bell is extremely effective as the youth who is executed in the first act.

"The Last Mile" may easily be called a great play—it certainly releases the emotional power of the stage in a torrent. It is, however, a play that I do not care to see a second time. If it contains a "lesson," I choose to believe that its moral is: prison guards in contact with convicts should not carry guns.

Church Votes $4,125,162 for Foreign Mission Work

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Appropriations totaling $4,125,162 were made by the delegates attending the general conference of Seventh Day Adventists here today for the promotion of foreign missions in 1931. This, said President C. H. Watson, "will enable the denomination to continue all of the present work without the cancellation of a single appointment."

J. P. Harding to Give Receipts to Good Fellows on Saturday

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Careless and ostentatious giving in the present unemployment situation was denounced by pastors of gold coast congregations yesterday. On the other hand, plans were suggested by the pastors, by which they said would help the genuinely needy and thwart the professional pan handlers.

The Rev. Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian and the Rev. Dr. Stephen E. Keeler, rector of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal, devised relief plans, announcing them as official for their churches.

Intensive study by the two pastors, they said, revealed that no expansion of facilities housing unemployed, homeless men was needed at present. The two pastors declared there are unused bed facilities for men now sleeping on the lower level of Wacker drive and in the Illinois Central tunnel.

It was charged that many of the inhabitants of lower Wacker drive find that location profitable for plying a poverty racket.

Dr. Keeler applauded the work of the present relief agencies in Chicago. He especially cited the Salvation army, the Christian Industrial league, United Charities and the Tower Town food and shelter fund. Through the last named the old Criminal court building is made available as a shelter. He declared the capacity of these agencies is far from reached. He asserted investigation recently showed hundreds of beds are unused.

That, he pointed out, indicates practically all lower Wacker drive habitues remain their by choice. Dr. Keeler urged increasing use of present agencies before adding other remedial programs.

"We must give, and give to the very limit to the authentic existing relief agencies," said Dr. Keeler. "This is no time for ostentatious giving and no time for confused thinking. Our problem is twofold. There is the problem of isolated and homeless man and, the far more serious specter of families whose bread winners are out of work. The great charitable agencies can keep up with the latter problem, if we give according to the demands on our charitable agencies."

Dr. Keeler then deplored careless giving. He said that undeserving persons might benefit instead of those in real need. Dr. Anderson had led them to an agreement to urge their flocks to purchase coupons to give to street panhandlers. Each coupon, he said, would entitle the bearer to food, overnight lodging and breakfast at the Christian Industrial league, an official relief agency of the Presbyterian church, 845 West Monroe street.

It was explained that the coupons will be available in the vestibules of the two churches next Sunday in books of ten. The price for each book was announced at $3.50. Dr. Keeler declared the professional tramp would scorn aid given in such form, whereas the man in genuine need would accept it with gratitude.

The Rev. Dr. Almer Y. Pennewell, pastor of the Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal church, last night applauded the plan proposed by Dr. Anderson and Dr. Keeler.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In the Sunday Metropolitan section for the south side it was stated that Charles A. Williams, Republican nominee for state senator in the 11th district, has been on the city hall pay roll as a $75 a day legal expert for the board of review. Mr. Williams states he never has been connected with the board of review and never has been on the city hall pay roll. He said his last public office was as attorney for the county highway department which he resigned in 1928.

Bazaar, Show, Too

John P. Harding, restaurant owner, will turn over to the Good Fellow fund the entire receipts next Saturday of his establishment at 21 South Wabash avenue. He expects to receive enough, at regular prices for the food, to carry several of Chicago's 75,000 destitute families through the winter.

The customer who buys one of those thick sandwiches of baked ham on rye bread, without paying any more for his lunch, will be buying milk for some undernourished baby. When a group of Good Fellows sit down for a three course luncheon, there will be unseen guests, members of some deserving family.

"We might have fed some bread line as our contribution toward the widespread charity movement that is driving the depression blues from the public mind," said Martin J. Harding, son of the owner and in direct charge of arrangements. "But we we decided we could do more through the Good Fellows by getting aid to the women and children in homes, helping families whose needs and worthiness have been carefully investigated."

In addition to the regular service at the restaurant with its three floors for eating, the colonial room on the third floor will be used after 2:30 p. m. for a public bazaar. Merchants, anxious to aid charity and at the same time revive the public morale, have donated articles. There will probably be bargains because a sale at any price will be a profit to the Good Fellow fund.

There will also be special entertainment. Some stage personalities have been invited to participate. Ed East and Ralph Dumke, who are known to W-G-N listeners as "Sisters of the Skillet," will sing some of their clown songs.

Even the waitresses at Harding's Wabash avenue restaurant will be working next Saturday for the Good Fellows. Those college girls employed to attend tables are going to give all their tips to the Good Fellow fund.

"Everyone," said Mr. Harding, the senior, "has caught the spirit of the thing. Most of the merchants from whom we regularly buy are donating supplies for Saturday."

In the meantime, the mail to the Good Fellow headquarters in The Tribune's offices at Madison and Dearborn streets continues to reflect the generosity of Chicagoans.

A department of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co. mailed a check for $50 and a pledge to continue the donations monthly through the winter. This is almost enough to furnish fuel, food, heat, clothes, and shelter to some family who otherwise would not have these necessities.

Employés of the Spencer Corset company sent $13, which will buy lots of groceries for some hungry mother and children this winter. Walter Botthof, head of the Standard Rate and Date Service company, pointed out to the employés that they were working full time on full pay, so they mailed $169.50 to the Good Fellows. There wefe many contributions of $1 or $2 or $5, which will be lumped together to relieve the privations of the destitute.

Every penny given by Good Fellows reaches a deserving family. The Tribune pays the expenses of administration.

Enjoy the Lovely Days of Autumn While They Last

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A weather man last summer threatened us with a cold winter, saying that the average temperature for the year varies little—meaning that because we had such a hot summer we'll have a very cold winter to lower our year's record to the average.

It may or may not be true, but such a threat does make you feel like snatching at each lovely day in November and being out in it as much as possible. Do you try to plan something with the children for the crisp or balmy week-ends that we often have in November and even sometimes in December?

Many children, especially city children, only know the natural world in the summer time, when they either go away for vacations or go on trips to the woods or shore. They should have some chance to know it in all the changing seasons—but especially in spring and fall.

Children and nature have an affinity. The world of outdoors is their natural setting. The sky, the woods, the water, the earth beneath their feet are their elements. Get them out at every opportunity. They have an innate love for the outdoors but it should be cultivated—given an opportunity to develop. If it does, it will be later one of the deep satisfactions of adult life—a delight, a serene joy, a solace in time of trouble.

So don't feel that when summer goes civilization must hem you and the children in completely. It's trite to say it but life grows more complex. This involves strain. Children as well as you need the calm and simplicity of the natural world.

Take the children out to the hills, the woods, the fields, even a sheltered beach during these autumn days.

Emily Hamill, Fifield Workum Are Engaged

BY THALIA

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hamill of Hinsdale announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emily Hamill, to Fifield Workum, son of Mrs. Julius F. Workum of New York City.

Miss Hamill, like her sisters, Miss Katherine Hamill, who has been doing newspaper work for several years, and Miss Frances Hamill, went to Farmington, and made no formal debut. She became interested in dramatics, and played for several seasons with the Junior league's children's plays, and then studied professionally.

She has appeared in the New York production of "Street Scene," and played in "The First Mrs. Fraser" with Grace George in Chicago last winter and in New York City until a few weeks ago. She returned from the east last week and will be with her parents until her wedding, which probably will take place some time this winter, although definite plans have not yet been made. Mr. Workum served as a lieutenant of infantry during the world war, was graduated from Harvard in 1920, and from the Harvard law school 3 years later.

The first performance of "Blue Bird" on Saturday morning at the Selwyn was received so warmly by an audience of small boys and girls that it seems safe to predict another successful season for the Junior League Children's theater.

Maybe the youngsters won't always agree with Maeterlinck, but certainly when the final curtain went down on "Blue Bird" they were all convinced of his theory about finding happiness on your own doorstep.

From the standpoint of scenery, costumes, and cast the production is one of the most ambitious ever undertaken by the league. The show includes three acts, with nine changes of scene that require deft mechanics on the part of the stage directors. There are 50 league members in the cast, headed by Mrs. John R. Winterbotham and Miss Peggy Hambleton.

Some of the settings, most of which were designed by Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III, are breathtaking lovely, and the costumes, for which Mrs. Lindsay, Meredith Hanley, Martha Fritts Marguerite Foster, and Mrs. Shreve C. Badger are responsible, are the sort that delight childish imaginations.

Mrs. Winterbotham, who has played so many little boy rôles in the league shows, is charming as Tyltyl, the wood cutter's son, who goes searching through weird countries for the blue bird. Margaret Hambleton, as his sister, Mytyl, was heartily approved of by the audience for the courageous way she met adventure with her brother. The other members of the large cast, including stars, angels, trees, animals, bread, sugar, fire, and water, went through their rôles with appropriate zest.

This season's schedule of league plays includes a Children's Chauve Souris, to be produced at Christmas time; a revival of "Pinocchio" later in the season, and finally an original Italian play in response to the requests of children who want something as stirring and exciting as "Treasure Island."

The Arts club is to have a tea on Friday afternoon to open an exhibition of paintings by Pierre Auguste Renoir. A group of six plaques by Carl Milles intended for architectural decoration are to be on view in the sculpture room of the club from Nov. 7 to Nov. 26.

The Tavern and the Opera club are among the organizations that are to have dinner parties tomorrow night and are providing means for their respective memberships to hear the results of the election. Opera club members received telegrams yesterday, announcing the change of the midweek party from Wednesday evening until tomorrow night. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick are to give an election dinner party at the Tavern for Mr. and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis and their guest, Jan Juta.

Mrs. John Borden, chairman of the Chicago committee for the American Merchant Library association, announces the satisfactory results of the recent drive for books for sailors on the great lakes. More than the desired quota, 20,000 books, were contributed in Chicago and the suburbs. Mrs. Burt A. Massee and Mrs. Farwell Winston assisted Mrs. Borden as vice chairman of the committee.

The John T. Piries Jr. and their infant daughter, Suzanne, have moved into their new house on Mayflower road, in Lake Forest. The Edison Decks [Jane Warner] are to take the house the Piries have had when they return from their wedding trip.

The Benjamin Leslie Behrs, Miss Madeleine Newell, Walter B. Smith, and the Ezra J. Warners have closed their respective summer places in Lake Forest and have come in town for the winter.

Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling is opening her residence in Winnetka today and tomorrow for a sale of articles of the Ell Bates shop. Mrs. Houghteling, Mrs. D. F. McPherson, and Mrs. J. P. Hasen Perry are in charge, and Mrs. McPherson is to entertain the large group of assistants at a buffet luncheon today and Mrs. Houghteling will have luncheon tomorrow.

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15, 30c, 60c.

MARLBOROUGH HOUSE UNUSED BY PRINCE, SO MAY BE SOLD

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 2.—New uses for that stately old mansion called Marlborough house, built by Sir Christopher Wren and frequently the residence of royalty, are to be considered. The prince of Wales has no intention of occupying it at present.

The last royal tenant in Marlborough house was Queen Alexandra. She lived there after the death of Edward VII. Built by one of England's most famous architects, the old building was remodeled for the prince of Wales two years ago.

A special bachelor suite of five rooms was built inside the mansion, but the blinds facing Pall Mall still are drawn and dust sheets still cover the magnificent furniture.

Now the question of the building's future has passed into the hands of a committee of experts appointed by the chancellor of the exchequer, charged with refitting unused public property for some new purpose or arranging for its disposal.

Since the prince of Wales prefers to remain at York house, persistent rumors have arisen that Marlborough house is to pass into private hands. Reports that the duke and duchess of York were to inhabit it have been denied.

Should the building pass to private o ers it would not be for the first time in its history. When Wren erected it the building cost between £200,000 and £250,000 and was built for the duke of Marlborough. It remained the residence of the Churchills for a hundred years, receiving its first royal tenants in 1817.

"Charming Fellow," Says Mary Garden; Amarillo Is Hers

Amarillo, Tex., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Mary Garden had tea today with Gene Howe, Amarillo editor who severely criticized her singing last year. A truce was effected. They parted on the best of terms.

The editor had said she was "so old she teetered," and she had retorted that Howe needed to learn something of opera. Today, Miss Garden said Howe was "a charming fellow."

The singer, who came to Amarillo at the invitation of business men seeking to reëstablish Amarillo in her good graces, said she would give her "best" in her Amarillo concert tomorrow night. The engagement will open a brief concert tour due to carry her to the Pacific coast before she returns to Chicago.

Cornell Plans Course of Anti-Cold Lectures, to Aid Student Health

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Cold prevention classes are being organized by Cornell university among its students.

The preventives are a combination of half a dozen of the latest scientific treatments and old fashioned principles. Included are ultra violet light, alkalinization by diet, ventilation, special nose and throat studies and anti-catarrhal vaccination.

"As far as known," the announcement says, "this is the first time any university has organized as comprehensive a plan for controlling colds among the students."

Convinced that cold control among the susceptibles will "go a long way toward preventing cold epidemics among all the students," Dr. Dean F. Smiley, medical advisor of Cornell, asks that the "cold prevention classes" be joined by those having four or more colds yearly. The treatment is "weekly ultra violet light baths, alkalinization, instruction regarding diet and ventilation, and in selected cases a special study of the nose and throat and use of a catarrhal vaccine."

Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

GLEAMY WHITE TEETH AND A SWEET BREATH

BETRAYED

Do they betray the years your face successfully conceals? • Then you're cheating yourself of a beauty that is rightfully yours. Worn-looking, run-down, tell-tale hands can be quickly replaced by hands of youthful beauty. All they need is the daily application of Pacquin's. No other lotion, or tonic, or skin food, or treatment—just Pacquin's. A few moments a day, a few brisk smoothing motions, and the fragrant cream has vanished into the hungry skin; the hands are at once satin-like, more pliable, whiter, younger. • Get a jar today; and watch Pacquin's perform its modern miracle of beauty-bringing before your very eyes.

Good Listener Is Sure to Attract the Boy Friends

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I would like to know some interesting, novel way of entertaining a young man in my home when there are no other guests present. It is no trouble at all to manage a crowd, but when I find myself confronted with the problem of amusing a gallant gentleman of 19 or thereabout I could just curl up and die. I live with my mother in a cozy four room apartment. PATSY."

Don't bother searching for the novel, Patsy, in entertaining a solo guest. The less novel the more at home the boy will be, which is the atmosphere to create if you want him to play return engagements.

Nor need you try, Patsy, to be particularly amusing. The less obvious the effort to entertain the more successful is promised at such informal occasions as entertaining a young man. Instead of "curling up and dying," why not try the good and tried and true old formula of curling up and listening? You can't beat it as an entertainment feature of the most agreeable kind, and that goes whether you are entertaining your beau, a girl friend, or one of your mother's cronies. Just give the other person an opportunity to talk and you provide the perfect entertainment. There is nothing quite so agreeable to a guest as to be permitted indulgence in his or her favorite pronoun.

Of course, that does not mean that you are to sit like a dummy and say nothing. That is not good listening. A good listener has to come across with more than "yes" and "no" and "you don't say so" and "how wonderful." But she also has to curb the impulse to hog the stand when an opening is given. And right here is where a number of young things go wrong and make the boys sour on them early. They want to tell all they know first shot out of the box, even to telling about the other boys they know and what they said to them, which is not what is called polite conversation when one is entertaining a member of their sex.

Besides conversation, you have the radio to turn on, no doubt, which provides oodles more conversational material. But pursue the same course with a boy you have on your hands for an evening as you would with a nice girl chum you are not trying to impress or strain yourself to entertain.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Forget the Absent.

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I love speaks of his former girl and I of my former boy friend. Please advise. "M. B."

A more enjoyable evening will be had if all references to former sweethearts are omitted.

A Deserving Case.

"The colored woman who works for me is badly in need of a winter coat, size 52, and she cannot buy it. I am not able to pay her a large salary and she has the support of a large family. She is most deserving and will be grateful if you can help her. "Mrs. M."

If you wear this large size and have a last winter's coat to dispose of here is a worthy applicant for it. This is a deserving case.

New Styles Aren't Created for the Flat Chested Girls

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I wandered into a place the other day where they make corsets not while you wait, but where you have your fittings on the order of your gown fittings. You get your measure taken and any little lines that your figure may possess that are uneven are taken into account with the fittings. If you eat heartily in between fittings and you take on a couple of pounds, these are tended to in the second fitting. All of which you pay for in nice, big round dollars—but, if your purse will stand for it, you can come forth a handsome figure of a woman at anywhere from $50 to $100 a foundation garment.

But what interested me was the well developed chest demand in certain of the corset garments and in the brassieres, even though maybe made of only a wisp of lace and a bit of boning. And this indicates that busts, though they have to be manufactured, are wanted for the current silhouette. Of course, it is not exactly news that the well developed bust line is wanted with the modern type girl, figure and dress, but the fact that they are wanted so much that garments are being made for the young person whom nature has not made fulsome in that particular feature may be news to some.

Many girls have fairly well developed bodies. Their legs may be nicely curved. Their hips graciously lined, their waists quite nice, but the chest due to weak muscles, poor carriage or to a generally anemic condition is not what it might be. The habit of letting the shoulders droop and hang forward makes the chest a hollow looking piece of work for which neither nature nor the girl herself need be praised. It is a shame to ruin a silhouette with the slouchy habit. And while, for health's sake, we've been ranting for years about the flat chest and its usual reason for being flat, maybe the style feature being exploited now will have more weight in reforming the slouchy one. A fashion, in my opinion, can do more to reform a gal than a fortnight of health sermons.

Any way, you have to have a bust and a nicely rounded one or you are not going to be the girl for the ravishing dinner gowen you're looking at.

Cotton Shirting Matches Up with Silk Velvet

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—All sorts of opposed fabrics find themselves keeping company in fashionable ensembles this winter. Louise-boulanger combines jersey and white ermine with chic benefits to both parties; Vionnet trims black velvet with red leather and there are unexpected fabric marriages too numerous to mention, that turn out surprisingly well.

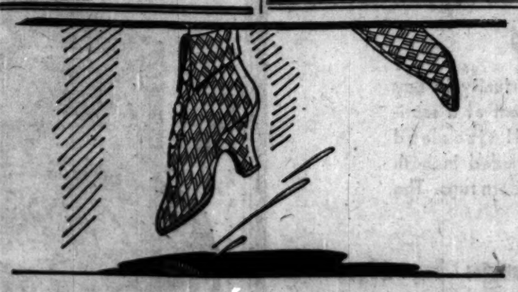
About the most unexpected match of all was made by Worth, who mates up men's cotton shirting with Lyons silk velvet in the afternoon costume, sketched above.

The suit is of wine red velvet trimmed with seal—which fur is the smartest newcomer, or returned Old Timer, both for jackets and trimmings this winter. The slightly flared skirt is fitted by a gored panel front and back. The hip length jacket has tight lower sleeves; its cape back, surrounded by seal, forms upper sleeves and shoulder yoke, in front.

The short-sleeved blouse, shown on the little figure, is of self-striped cotton shirting in ecru, embroidered all over with thick red silk to match the color of the suit. It is finished with a bow of the embroidered cotton at the front of its round décolletage.

You will notice that Worth has slightly lowered some of his waist lines; this skirt top reposes just above the hip bones—and that is Chanel's favorite waist level, too.

The draped turban and the envelope sac are of gold tissue that pick up the tawny tint of the ecru blouse, and all these widely different fabrics harmonize into one of the prettiest effects of the season.



WHAT'S a puddle or two between Glove galoshes? Or a snowdrift or two, for that matter? These indispensable costume accessories keep themselves—and you—looking extremely smart and feeling quite comfortable, thank you, whatever the weather.

Don't be disappointed if you don't find Glove galoshes just anywhere! They're usually at the smartest shops in town; and there you'll find them in a variety of colors and in styles to harmonize beautifully with each of your new costumes.

Food Talk.

Beauty wins for a while, even in food. But there must be more than surface appearance. Have you ever seen an individual served a piece of beautifully decorated cake or a pretty meringued tart? A smile invariably wreathes the face. The food is cut; a bite is taken. The smile wanes. A sign is heard and a sober look of disappointment appears. Another taste to make sure and the rest is pushed away.

The cake or pie looked nice, but it didn't taste good. This is so often true of a great many foods and whole meals we find served on every hand. Too many people think that a well balanced and attractively served meal is all that should be asked of them. They forget that flavor, whether in a roast of meat or in a pie must also be pleasing to the palate.

It is remarkable how much punishment foods take so far as flavoring is concerned. Some emerge victorious above it all, but some delicately flavored ones are subdued in the mass of sauce, sugar and spice. Haste and carelessness probably are responsible for some of these poorly flavored foods. In many instances, however, there seems to be no imagination used. If cooks would only do more tasting to discover whether or not the food has a delicious flavor. Just a small amount of discrimination and finesse in the handling of materials is all that is necessary to make a vast amount of difference.

Practically all foods have a naturally distinctive flavor that is most attractive. Take peas or asparagus for example. Here are two vegetables with delicate and pleasing flavors. They should be prepared in such a manner as to preserve and enhance the natural flavor and this can't be done by cooking them in a large amount of water and then discarding the cooking water. Only a minimum amount of water should be used. Then the proper seasoning will add to the tastiness of the foods to make them even more palatable. And as a rule nothing more than salt to point up the flavor and some butter or sweet cream is needed to secure an unrivaled flavor in these two foods. The excessive use of seasonings and strong flavors masks the original flavor. The finished product then tastes either like nothing or like the strongest flavor used. And what applies to peas and asparagus applies to all other edibles.

When the food is prepared so that the flavor is at its best it is really a crime to serve it in any way but that which will add to its own deliciousness. Attractive service is, of course, necessary. But we must also take care that its place in the menu will be one that will give it full justice. A highly flavored food should be accompanied by a bland one so that the delicacy of flavor of each will be appreciated.

A perfectly flavored and seasoned dish, served in the most attractive manner at the proper time is a true delight to any person who enjoys good food.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Saved the Motl. Balls.

I was having my first date with a certain fellow on whom I wanted to make a good impression, as we were going to an affair at an exclusive hotel.

Everything went along nicely until we got to the hotel. Just as he was going to check my coat something started to fall out. On looking I saw moth balls rolling out—five of 'em, too. You can imagine my embarrassment picking them up with so many people around. Mother had taken them all out with the exception of some in one of my inside pockets. A. W.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER.

Booklet Helps Teacher

Even in the schoolroom the newly revised TRIBUNE booklet Flower Gardening is finding a place in teaching more of the simple cultural practices which go with successful flower growing. E. Adams, biology instructor at Hinsdale, is one of the latest to obtain one of the booklets which will be mailed on receipt of 13 cents in stamps sent to the Farm and Garden department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE or which can be purchased for 10 cents at any of THE TRIBUNE'S public service offices.

High egg production is something to which every flock owner looks in the fall, as pullets lay aside their flapper airs and get serious about their purpose in life. Laying birds need the direct rays of the sun throughout the fall and winter months, not alone for this purpose of laying more eggs but to maintain good health in the birds and high hatchability in the eggs.

A system of getting the layers into direct sunshine is described by Leon Todd, poultry extension specialist of Purdue university. He points out that it is desirable to start the practice before weather becomes severe. After the new pullets have become accustomed to the laying quarters they should then be given access to the outdoors every afternoon.

"In this way the birds will become accustomed to cold weather and will suffer no ill effects from going indoors during the winter," says Mr. Todd. "The door or exit should be opened every afternoon regardless of temperatures.

"Eggs should be gathered as soon as the birds are turned out at noon. This point is of considerable practical value as it will prevent a large number of the eggs from becoming soiled with mud and dirt tracked in by the hens and pullets. Many successful poultry raisers have been using gravel or cinders in front of the laying house in order to eliminate mud.

"Anton J. He is an executive of great ability and a credit to the citizens who placed him in office."

Graham Taylor

"The charitable and social agencies dealing with all classes of dependent and afflicted people deeply appreciate the co-operation of the public agencies vigorously promoted by Mr. Cermak's personal influence. Facing the exacting demands which threaten to be greater than ever this winter owing to the long continued and widely prevalent unemployment, these agencies dread any change in the administration of these public institutions which would deprive them of Mr. Cermak's friendly co-operation, merely for political reasons."

PANAMA TODAY RECALLS U. S. AID OF 27 YEARS AGO

Celebrates Birthday Made Possible by Uncle Sam.

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Nov. 2.—Tomorrow is the twenty-seventh anniversary of the independence of the republic of Panama, and the youngster, who came into being with the late President Theodore Roosevelt as its godfather, is getting along nicely.

An anniversary parade was held here today, the first celebration of what is to be a three-day event. President Arosemena and high government officials participated in the march.

It was 27 years ago today that some 500 Colombian sharpshooters landed in Colon, with plans to proceed over the railroad to the capital and quell the pending revolution. That morning a gunboat flying the Stars and Stripes appeared in Colon bay, and then, when the Colombian general proceeded to the railroad office seeking transportation, the American superintendent politely presented the bill, which in those days was pretty costly.

Jail General Without Army.

The general replied that he would stick a chit for the amount. This did not suit the railroad man, and eventually the general bought a ticket for himself and traveled over without his troops. Upon his arrival in Panama he was arrested and put in jail. Meanwhile the garrison in the capital went over to the Panamans and independence was declared from the steps of the city hall that afternoon.

It was almost a bloodless affair, only one Chinaman being killed by a parting shot sent into the city from a small Colombian gunboat that had arrived in the bay.

Gets $10,000,000.

Washington soon recognized the new republic, a treaty was signed and Panama, given better terms than Colombia had turned down, proceeded to put herself on the map as a progressive little nation, assured of her independence by Uncle Sam and with a savings bank account opened up for her with $10,000,000 deposited, plus an annual sum of a quarter of a million from this same friendly uncle up north.

The huge pay roll of the canal men, the army and navy, together with money spent by the increasing number of tourists, places Panama in a substantial position financially and puts her trade balance out of the red. The contact of her citizens with Americans, the closeness of the canal to the villages of the republic, the thousands of foreigners passing through each week, have all created in Panama a people far more progressive than the sister Latin nations, and backward conditions that are often seen in the larger republics of the south are conspicuous by their absence on the isthmus.

It is an old story how under Gorgas the United States cleaned up the country and made it a fit place to live in. Many not yet of middle age recall the scavenging buzzards, the water sellers, and the complete lack of even primitive sanitation; but it is seldom mentioned, for Panama today is proud of its perfect water system, its public utilities, equal to the best in the United States, and its high percentage of automobiles.

More than a score of families, whose property within the city limits 27 years ago was practically worthless and who eked out a bare existence, are today men of wealth, their children being educated in the United States and their town and country homes the last things in beauty and comfort.

ASKS ADDITION OF 15,000 ACRES TO WEST POINT

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—An addition of 15,000 acres to the present reservation occupied by the United States Military academy at West Point is urged by Maj. Gen. William P. Smith, superintendent of the institution, in his annual report to the war department, made public today.

He cited the pressing needs for the extension as follows: First to insure an adequate pure water supply; second, to establish a landing field for airplanes; third, to construct small arms and field artillery ranges; fourth, to provide camp sites and maneuver grounds under control of the superintendent.

To show the quick physical development achieved through West Point training, the report cited that measurements taken at the beginning and at the end of the year indicated that rookie cadets gained an average of 7.4 pounds in weight, 2.9 inches in height, and .54 inches in chest measurement; and lost 1.2 inches in waist line.

REVEAL FEWER BORN, MORE DIED IN BRITAIN IN 1929

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The number of babies in Great Britain is decreasing. In one year the birth rate in England has slumped to nearly one-half—from five per thousand population to two and nine-tenths. The births in 1929 numbered 643,678 being 16,894 fewer than in 1928.

This great decline is revealed by the chief medical officer of the ministry of health. Sir George Newman, in his annual report, which will be issued Monday. Sir George says that Great Britain is rapidly moving toward a stationary population, declaring that birth control is largely causing the birth rate to decline.

A substantial increase in the death rate was also reported. The population of Great Britain last year was 44,491,000, which was an increase of 125,000 over 1928. The deaths in 1929 were 532,492, being 72,103 more than in 1928.

Referee—James Durfee [Columbus, O.]. Umpire—Al Dudley [Dayton, O.]. Head linesman—W. R. Smith [Chicago].

Chicago's Bears trounced the Red Jackets from Minneapolis yesterday afternoon at Wrigley field, 20 to 7, for their fourth league victory of the year. While they were outgained from scrimmage by the Red Jackets, led by Herb Joesting, former Minnesota full back, the Bears won because they capitalized their opportunities and thrice turned back their opponents near the goal line. A crowd of 4,000 saw the game.

Although Bronko Nagurski, the last of the great Minnesota plungers, was not permitted to vie with Joesting, since his services were needed at left tackle, all of the Bears save the hospital group, performed for at least 35 minutes. Thus the Bears hope to be on edge for the invasion of the league leading and undefeated Packers from Green Bay next Sunday.

Bears Lead at Half, 13 to 0.

Red Grange and Laurie Walquist showed the path to two touchdowns in the second quarter and the Bears led, 13 to 0, at the intermission. Then Minneapolis completed one of its threatening marches in the third quarter to trail by only six points. At this time, Bill Senn stepped in with a 62 yard run for a third touchdown and a working margin against further scores by the Red Jackets.

The Bears were on the defensive during the first period, but Minneapolis' two long marches flivvered within scoring territory. On the final play of the quarter Joesting dropped the ball as he plunged through the Bear line and Zuck Carlson recovered on the Red Jackets' 31 yard line. Two plunges by Walquist gained six yards and on third down Laurie passed perfectly over the defensive half back to Grange, who continued down the west side line to the goal. Walquist added the extra point with Brumbaugh holding the ball.

Joe Lintzenich's 50 yard punt started action for a second touchdown. The ball went out on Minneapolis' 10 yard line. Pharmer's return kick was short, going only to his 38 yard line. Walquist, Lintzenich and Brumbaugh traveled to the 15 yard line, where Grange cut inside the Red Jackets' left tackle and raced to the goal line. Walquist's place kick was short.

Senn Tears Off Long Run.

Minneapolis received the kick off to start the second half and paraded from its 27 yard line for a touchdown. Joesting, Pharmer, and Miller (who had replaced Pape) were the big guns. A fourth down pass, Pharmer to Miller, revived the drive 11 yards from the Bears' goal, and three plays later Pharmer scored on a two yard plunge. He added the seventh point with a place kick.

Minneapolis' enthusiasm was curbed, however, in the same quarter. Starting from the Bears' 31 yard line, Sternaman gained 12 yards at his right end. On the next play, after a five yard penalty, Bill Senn turned in the thriller of the day. He knifed inside the opposing right tackle, three times dodged tacklers, and came down the center of the field 62 yards to the goal. Joie Sternaman added the final point of the game.

Charity Game Idea Passed On to Hoover

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 3.—A New York paper, the Daily News, suggests that President Hoover order the Army and Navy to play a football game in some city with a big stadium and a liberal population, perhaps Chicago or Philadelphia, but not New York, as an act in relief of the national emergency of unemployment. The President could do this with the utmost ease, because he would have only to telephone the commanding officers of the two academies and say, "Play."

The graduate managers of athletics undoubtedly would think of objections because each team would have to cancel some game for which the contracts were signed a long time ago. But if the President ordered the superintendents to play the superintendents would order the graduate managers to play and they would tell the teams to play and the teams would play.

If the unemployment problem is as critical as the President himself has said, then the game is as good as on, because none of the objections which have been offered from time to time when politicians were trying to coerce the teams into resuming their old football rivalry would be worth considering. Incidentally, the teams never have been consulted as to whether they wished to resume playing, but there is no need of going into the sequence of events which led to the estrangement nor to discuss the merits of the case, because the one game now contemplated would not have to be regarded as a precedent.

After playing once, to help in an emergency, the officers of the military and naval academies who conducted the row in the first place could have their grievances back again and settle down to their glaring back and forth as if nothing had occurred to interrupt the serenity of their great sporting feud.

The receipts of an Army-Navy game in Chicago would be at least a million dollars and if mysterious Mike Jacobs, the fidgety genius of the Garden corporation, could be induced to plot a graduated scale of prices and superintend the ticket sales the revenue might amount to half a million more. Mr. Jacobs undoubtedly would be willing to do this for no more reward than a certificate of gratitude signed by the President and the sheer pleasure of handling another million dollar show.

It has been a long time since Jacobs' talents have had any worth while exercise and, from his jumpy, restless manner, I judge that Mr. Jacobs is becoming stable weary. A workout at a sport production involving a gate of a million or more would renew the blush of youth in his cheeks and the light of enthusiasm in his gloomy orbs, which have not glowed with their wonted brilliance since the night of the regrettable flop of the Tunney-Heeney execution.

The pallor of Mr. Jacobs' cheeks and the lusterless state of his gaze do not constitute a national emergency in themselves, perhaps, but the restoration of his blush and luster would be a very worthy work, and the graduate managers might take this into consideration as an added incentive if the unemployment crisis does not quite outweigh their objections.

Mr. Jacobs' implication in the Army-Navy show, which is now agreed upon so far as I am concerned, considering the triviality of the objections compared to the good to be done, would be certain to confer some progressive ideas on the football business worthy of adoption by the colleges generally.

The colleges all are trying to preserve some incongruous notions of amateurism in a commercial game, adhering to a flat rate of admission, regardless of the location of the seats, as though this would impart an appearance of indifference to the financial returns. Still, the returns are such that this indifference becomes a laborious affectation, and Mr. Jacobs could show them something to their advantage. He never would think of selling off his seats in the first fifty

CARDINALS BEAT FRANKFORD, 6-0, ON NEVERS' PASS

Ernie Hurls Ball 50 Yards for Only Score.

Touchdown—Belden.

Substitutions: Cardinals—Belden for Boyd, Flenneken for Baker, Kassel for Vesser, Handler for Kiesling, Rooney for Rose, Randolph for Erickson.

Philadelphia—Mahoney for Havens, Halicki for Goodbread, Behman for Richards, Goodbread for Rodrigues, Cuppa for Watkins.

That blonde giant, Ernie Nevers, hurled a 50 yard forward pass to Belden for a touchdown and the only score in a drab professional football game at Comiskey park yesterday. Three thousand fans were on hand to see the Chicago Cardinals defeat the Frankford Yellow Jackets, 6 to 0, and thereby attain a .500 rating in the league with five wins and as many losses.

A week ago Saturday the south side eleven trimmed the Yellow Jackets, 31 to 6, but the punch was not there yesterday. That long forward pass in the middle of the third quarter was enough to win the game many times over, as Frankford never got inside the Cardinals' territory far enough to threaten.

Near Goal Four Times.

On four other occasions Nevers and his supporting cast advanced the ball into scoring position, but the usual zip and fire in the Cardinal double wing back formation was on a holiday and no scores materialized.

The first chance for a count came late in the second quarter, after Nevers intercepted one of Crabtree's passes on the Philadelphia 48 yard line. Nevers, Belden, and Rose worked double and triple passes off the Warner formation to reach the 33 yard line. Then on a fake kick on fourth down Nevers tossed a pass to Bullet Baker for 16 yards and a first down on the Yellow Jackets' 17 yard line. Gene Rose fumbled the next pass from center and Halicki recovered, promptly kicking out of danger.

On the first play after the kickoff in the third quarter a criss-cross, with Nevers handing the ball to Belden, gained 12 yards through left tackle and gave the Cards possession of the ball on Philadelphia's 44 yard line. Two plunges by Nevers and an offside penalty against the Yellow Jackets advanced the oval to the 29 yard strip, but Halicki and Crabtree batted down two of Nevers' passes, and Ernie was forced to kick.

Rodriguez booted back to his own 38 yard line, but two more incomplete passes and a penalty for offside put the ball back on the Philadelphia 48 yard line. So Nevers stepped back and arched a 50 yard toss to Belden, who nabbed it, eluded the safety man, and stepped over the goal line for the only score of the game. Nevers' kick for the extra point was wild.

Place Kick Fails.

Goodbread's short kick late in the third quarter gave the Cards the ball on the Yellow Jacket 36 yard mark, but Goodbread stopped any chance for a score a few moments later when he intercepted Nevers' pass on his own 24 yard line.

Late in the game Frankford opened up with passes, in desperation with the ball on their own 15 yard line, but Flenneken intercepted the second attempt. The Yellow Jacket line would not give and Belden's pass was incomplete, so Nevers tried a place kick from the 29 yard line, but the ball went wide of the cross bar and the last chance to increase the score was gone.

BEATING A TATTOO ON LOYOLA'S LINE

Mat Steffen, De Paul half back, is halted after an eight yard smash off right tackle in game in which De Paul defeated Loyola university, 6 to 0, before 25,000 at Soldiers' field yesterday. Steffen was one of the main springs in the winners' offense, his pass to Hartman for 15 yards and several dashes helping to advance the ball to Loyola's one yard line, from where Stafford plunged over early in the first quarter.

Green Bay Is 47-13 Victor Over Spartans

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 3.—Special.]—The Green Bay Packers tucked away their seventh straight National League professional football victory here this afternoon when they trounced the Portsmouth Spartans, 47 to 13, before 7,000. It was the final home game of the National League champions, who will spend the next two Sundays in Chicago as guests of the Bears and Cardinals.

The Packers scored once in the opening period and twice in each of the succeeding periods. The Spartans scored in the third and again in the final period. Their first score was made on a long pass from Lumpkin to McClain, and the final score was made by Novotony after the umpire ruled the Packers interfered with a pass receiver and gave the Spartans the ball on the Packers' eight yard line.

McCrary Snags Pass.

The Packers scored early in the opening period when Lewellen passed from midfield to Dunn, who was downed on the Spartan's 26 yard line. Lewellen and McCrary picked up a first down on line plays, and Molenda went through for another first down, placing the ball on the Spartan three yard line. Lewellen went over for the score, and Red Dunn kicked the point from placement.

In the second period McCrary intercepted a Spartan pass on his own 47 yard line. Molenda and McCrary made first down and then Lewellen knifed through for a second first down on the 21 yard line. Molenda went through for another first down and McCrary lost two yards on the next play. Dunn circled his left end for 12 yards and a first down, and Lewellen went over for the touchdown. Dunn kicked the goal.

Late in the same period Dunn passed to Lewellen for 25 yards, placing the ball on the Spartan 25 yard line. Lewellen, Molenda, and McCrary made it first down on the 3 yard line, and Molenda slipped through for the touchdown. The pass from center was bad, and Dunn's attempted pass for the extra point was knocked down. The score at the half was: Packers, 20; Spartans, 0.

Fitzgibbon Goes Over.

The Spartans received the kickoff at the opening of the third period, and on the first play Dunn intercepted Lumpkin's pass on the Spartan's 30 yard line. Dunn passed to McCrary, who jogged over the goal for the touchdown. Dunn kicked the extra point.

After the kickoff McClain took Lumpkin's pass on the Packer 45 yard line and raced over the goal line for the Spartans' first score of the game. McClain's kick was wide. A few minutes later Bennett fumbled Herber's

Eight Big Football Games Wind up With Nobody Victor

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The first day of November will go down in this year's football records as a day of futile effort. Five major contests, two of which were intersectional, ended in scoreless ties. Three other important games also failed of a decision because the opponents matched scoring abilities.

Occasionally weather conditions handicap offenses, but Saturday fair weather greeted the army of collegiate players in all sectors. In some instances, the weakness of attack accounted for indecisive results; in others, superior defensive strength.

Dartmouth's scoreless tie with Yale topped the east's offerings. Sixty thousand watched the combat between the old rivals, and although Albie Booth, Yale's great running half back, got loose to cross the Dartmouth goal in the first half, the touchdown was recalled for holding in the line.

Pitt, Princeton Fail to Score.

Two eastern elevens, Pittsburgh and Princeton, invaders of the central west, also joined the group of teams unable to reach the goal line. Pitt, playing its fifth intersectional game with the Cornhuskers, make a last period bid, but Nebraska repulsed the attack in the last yard.

Princeton and Chicago provided thrills for 35,000 at Stagg field. Four times the Tigers threatened to score, but the Maroons rallied to block the attack. It was the fourth game between the universities and the results now stand: Chicago, 2; Princeton, 1, and one tie.

Forty thousand watched Wisconsin and Ohio State in their scoreless game at Columbus. The Badgers, because of a one point defeat by Purdue and a win over Pennsylvania, entered the game favorites. Ohio previously had lost to Northwestern and Michigan. Both teams used the same type of offense, double wing backs, and each seemed able to fathom the other's attack, perhaps because of this similarity. The tie eliminates Wisconsin from the Western conference race completely.

Florida Holds Georgia Even.

Florida held Georgia to a scoreless tie in a game at Savannah which matched the Yale-Dartmouth contest in importance. Georgia, victor over Yale, was undefeated, while the 'Gators had dropped a one point game, 14 to 13, to Furman last week.

Brown and Syracuse played the most thrilling game of the day. Each had been defeated. Syracuse scored 16 points in the first period, but Brown came back, steadily gaining until Gurll's 35 yard kick on the last play of the game added the three points necessary for a tie.

Harvard, twice defeated, relaxed its defense and committed errors which permitted William and Mary to tie the Crimson, 13 to 13. The other notable tie was between Georgia Tech and North Carolina, 6 to 6.

Washington State, leading the race for the Pacific coast championship, pulled through Saturday with a 14 to 7 victory over Oregon State.

Other Pacific coast elevens played routine games. Southern California's second team whipped Denver, 33 to 13. Washington ran over Puget Sound, 60 to 0, and California defeated Montana, 46 to 0. Howard Jones evidently is developing his reserve strength against the day when Southern California meets Notre Dame.

Penn Upsets Kansas.

Although Columbia's defeat of Cornell, 10 to 7, was by just such a margin as had been predicted for either team, the real surprise the east offered football enthusiasts was Pennsylvania's overwhelming triumph over Kansas. Fifty-five thousand watched the game at Franklin field and saw Jim Bausch, the Jayhawker back whose alleged ineligibility will cause Kansas to be expelled from the Big Six at the end of this season, unable to get away from Penn's line. The final score was 21 to 6.

Cornell's defeat likewise was its first of the year, but Coach Little's team had been pointing for this all-important contest. Ralph Hewitt's winning field goal was scored from a distance of 53 yards and is the best recorded this season.

Marquette university won its sixth consecutive victory Saturday in its intersectional clash with Boston college. Two place kicks by Myles Graney provided the 6 to 0 score. Graney kicked 38 and 40 yards respectively. The Golden Avalanche had a superlative defense when its goal line was threatened. In six victories Mar-

De Paul university's Blue Demons yesterday won the Catholic football championship of Chicago and the north sider honors accruing to that title by defeating Loyola's Ramblers, 6 to 0, in their seventh annual meeting at Soldiers' field. More than 25,000 saw the charity game, proceeds of which were turned over to the Rosary college building fund.

Yesterday's victory was De Paul's fourth in the series, bringing the title back after an absence of two years. Loyola won in 1928 and 1929, and a tie resulted in a meeting between the two in 1913. They first met in 1903, when they were known as St. Vincent's and St. Ignatius.

Aside from the two championships involved, a mysterious brown barrel also was alleged to be at stake, but the whereabouts of this homely receptacle still is unknown.

Scores Early in Game.

De Paul didn't waste much time accomplishing its victory. A 60 yard march within the first five minutes of play brought the ball down to Loyola's one yard line, whence Full Back Eddie Stafford plunged for the touchdown. The Blue Demons threatened several times thereafter, but the Loyola line, which didn't appear to get organized until the second quarter, stiffened when its goal was in danger.

Loyola was another team when it came on the field in the second half. The Ramblers opened a passing attack which twice threatened to produce touchdowns, only to have the ball graze receivers' fingers when they were almost in the open. Some idea of Loyola's comeback in the second half can be illustrated in the matter of first downs. De Paul had rolled up 14, against the Ramblers' 2, in the first half, but Loyola came back to make ten in the second half, while holding the Blue Demons to none.

95 Yards in Penalties.

De Paul attempted nine passes, two of which were completed, while three were intercepted. Loyola completed one of ten passes attempted. Three were intercepted. The Ramblers were assessed 70 yards in penalties and De Paul 25.

Mat Steffen, a nephew of Judge Walter Steffen, advisory coach of Carnegie Tech, was the head man of the De Paul attack. Aside from handling the punting and passing assignments capably he did his share of ball carrying. In the closing minutes of play he intercepted a Loyola pass on his own 12 yard line, ran 45 yards before he was hauled down by Murphy of Loyola, who had thrown the pass. Eddie Stafford and Ernie Butcher, the latter operating minus a head guard, figured prominently in this touchdown march, while Driscoll, Borrelli, Coan, and Cherne stood out in the line.

Maesco Shines at Center.

Vic Napolilli, Marty Stadler, and Steve Furchess carried the brunt of the Loyola attack. Big Mike Waesco, who led De La Salle High of Joliet to a national basketball championship, played a good game at center and halted De Paul marches twice by intercepting passes.

De Paul got to work on the manufacture of its touchdown shortly after the opening kickoff. After an exchange of punts, Loyola failed to gain and Capt. Les Molloy punted to Steffen on De Paul's 34 yard line. With Stafford smashing the line and Butcher running the ends, together with a penalty on Loyola, two first downs were made and the ball rested on Loyola's 46 yard line.

Steffen then sent a 15 yard pass to Hartman and on the next play took the ball himself and tore through to the Ramblers' 26 yard line. Stafford and Hartman then pushed it along to the 10 yard marker. Butcher ran wide around left end, apparently headed for the touchdown, but was forced out of bounds at the one yard line. Stafford then delivered on a plunge through center. Steffen's attempted place kick for the extra point was blocked after Hartman, who was holding the ball, juggled it.

Later Loyola punted after making no headway. Stafford plowed through for a first down. On the next play, Steffen attempted to pass, was cornered by a half dozen Ramblers, but broke away and dashed 20 yards to Loyola's 23 yard line. Here the Ramblers held.

SHOULDER INJURY LAYS UP RENTNER FOR TWO WEEKS

Northwestern to Rely on Lee Hanley for Passes.

Pug Rentner, Northwestern's sophomore full back, whose accurate passing has played a prominent rôle in the Wildcat gridiron successes this season, will be lost to the squad for two weeks, due to an injury received in the Minnesota game Saturday.

ERNEST RENTNER.

Rentner was removed from the game in the third quarter after he had stopped one of Jack Mandler's plunges. The impact of the tackle threw him heavily to the ground, paralyzing his right shoulder.

He returned to Evanston with the squad and was removed to the Evanston hospital, where an examination revealed that the cervical plexus, the nerve which controls the muscles of the shoulder, was bruised. Dr. Marcus Hobart, team physician, stated that Rentner must remain in the hospital for several days and that the shoulder must be given a rest for two weeks.

Hanley to Do Passing.

Rentner's loss is a blow to the Wildcats' offense which has depended considerably on his accurate passing. Ten of Northwestern's 21 touchdowns scored this year have been made from passes thrown by the former Joliet prep school star.

The passing assignment probably will fall to Lee Hanley, who up to this year had handled this phase of the attack. The Wildcat quarter back has been playing the greatest game of his career, both in piloting the team and running with the ball.

Coach Dick Hanley has excused his regulars from practice today, but will call them to duty tomorrow, when preparations will get under way for the annual struggle with Indiana at Bloomington Saturday.

Old Scores to Settle.

The Wildcats have several old scores to settle with the Hoosiers and do not intend to permit the traditional jinx to stand in the way. Indiana has won the last three games, the first one 18 to 7, the next 6 to 0, and last year, 19 to 14.

With the exception of Rentner, the Purple weathered the struggle with the Gophers. The players suffered the usual bumps and bruises, but with a few days' rest all are expected to resume the daily practice sessions.

ILLINI NEED RESPITE.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Preparation for the Army game in New York Saturday will not begin until Tuesday, for Coach Bob Zuppke has given the Illinois squad a layoff tomorrow.

Since the Illini will depart Thursday, this will give them only two days' practice, but Zuppke believes the rest will do them more good than a workout.

The crushing defeat by Purdue was a considerable blow, for it had been hoped that the squad was improving. The Purdue game added to the gloom by contributing several more disabilities, notably at center, where Schumacher and Green, who passed the ball yesterday, were banged up. This leaves only Bauer, and Zuppke must scratch around to find some other center, with Tiny Huddlestun as one possibility.

HOOSIERS EYE N. U.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 2. — [Special.] — Indiana's football team will start preparation tomorrow for the homecoming game with Northwestern in Memorial stadium here Saturday.

BRICKIES BEAT OLYMPIAS, 4 TO 0; GREGG SCORES 3

The Olympias yesterday were eliminated from the Western Soccer cup competition, losing to the Bricklayers at De Paul field, 4 to 0. The Brickies scored two goals in each half. Bob Gregg, playing his first game for the Brickies, scored a hat-trick—three goals in one game.

Gregg scored twice in the first half and added the point after twenty minutes of play in the second half. McLean scored the fourth goal with a fast twenty yard shot.

In other contests the Jugo-Slavs triumphed over the Spartas, 2 to 1, at Gaelic park, and the Maccabees won from the Carpenters, 5 to 1, at 18th street and Keeler avenue.

SWEDES BEAT VIKINGS.

Aided by a goal scored against his own team by Boye Myllenberg, Viking back, who booted the ball into the goal he was defending, the undefeated Swedish American A. A. eliminated another contender for first place in the International Soccer league race yesterday by defeating the Vikings, 4 to 2, at Kenton and Fullerton avenues. Carlander, Hultgren, and Hanson also scored for the Swedes, and Coughbrough and Johanson for the Vikings.

Hoca Captures French Steeplechase Classic

AUTEUIL, France, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Running over a track that resembled a quagmire and beset by a driving rain and a strong wind Hoca, a 5 year old, by Nouvelan out of Helenk, won the Grand Autumn stakes, steeplechase classic at Auteuil track today. Cordial was second and Clarimus third. Only nine of the fourteen starters finished the stiff hurdle test over a 2½ mile course. The winner was held at 5 to 1 odds. The race was worth $4,000.

Mills Grid Team Beats Colored All-Stars, 31-0

The Mills professional football team yesterday scored its second consecutive victory, defeating the Pollard Colored All-Stars, 31 to 0, at Mills stadium. Lawless starred for the Mills, scoring two touchdowns.

Boxing in Chicago depends on three new men for its climax this week. Jimmy Slattery, twice light heavyweight champion of the world; Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight title holder, and Petey Mack, veteran of five windups in Madison Square Garden, make their debuts on the Stadium's card Thursday night.

These headliners, pitted against the three outstanding Chicago boxers—King Levinsky, Otto Von Porat, and Barney Ross—produce one of the best fight cards offered since the Stribling-Von Porat sensation last summer. Their appearance is significant primarily because it promises to prove conclusively that the widely advertised depression is not acute in the boxing business.

Early sales, according to Stadium officials, indicate a near capacity.

Slattery, until he wandered from his own division to tackle heavier men, was a sensation. His boxing prowess has been the toast of many and judging from his early work outs at Kid Howard's gym he has lost none of the superlative skill that twice carried him to a title.

He has been matched with King Levinsky in what will prove that the one time Maxwell street fish peddler is a menace to the light heavyweight division or that he is just another fighter. This bout will be the making or the undoing of Levinsky, who has come up from the five dollar class in the last two months by quick knockouts of Leo Lomski and Tom Kirby.

Renault's opponent will be the hard hitting Von Porat, who in his only start since the Stribling fight has flashed a determinedness that belied previous appraisals of indifference and inability on his part against ranking heavyweights.

Becker Wonders Whether Hunting Dogs Can Reason

BY BOB BECKER.

The arrival of the hunting season always brings to the front that old question of how much a dog can reason, if any. How far does the trained intelligence of the well bred, field-broken hunting dog permit him to reason out the events of his life and thus direct his actions?

The stunt that our English springer spaniel, Jack, did last week is a case in point. Jack can't talk. We do not know what is in the back of his alert, keen mind. So the question is, did Jack put two and two together and then act?

It was impossible to take Jack with us on a short duck hunting trip. This almost broke his heart.

But Jack was left behind. He sulked a bit. He knew his master had gone because he had seen and sniffed some of the baggage that had been driven away in the car. The following morning, after his master's departure, he was in his kennel. At sunrise he heard a heavy bombardment on Lake Michigan a quarter of a mile away.

From here on one can only put facts together, but here is the way we figure them. Jack, left alone, heard the firing. There was hunting and he had been left out of it. Possibly the boss was out there. So Jack hurtled from his kennel through the glass window into the garage, pushed open the garage door and presumably continued on to find his master.

But the dog in doing this had piled up plenty of trouble for himself. In going through the window he cut a four inch gash in the top of his head and there he was alone.

Covered with blood he went to a neighbor's and scratched on the back door. His bloody mark is there. No luck, so he went to another neighbor's door. That saved his life. They saw him and in forty minutes Jack, close to death, was in the dog hospital getting five stitches in his head. But he'll be hunting again next week.

Penn? Oh, Yes, That's Where Brill Was Second Stringer

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Marty Brill, it seems, is getting ready for Pennsylvania.

He scored two touchdowns yesterday against Indiana, the first he has made in two years as a Notre Dame hight half back. And in these two runs there may be something ominous for Lud Wray, Penn coach, and his boys, whom the fighting Irish play next Saturday at Franklin field, Philadelphia.

Marty, three years ago a student at the University of Pennsylvania, became riled when Coaches Lou Young and Lud Wray decided that he didn't fit in with the Penn system, and put him on the second team. Marty and his dad, Edward F. Brill, the Philadelphia street car magnate, talked things over and one day Marty left school.

Makes Good Dad's Boast.

Marty said, "I'd rather play third string at Notre Dame than second at Penn, anyhow."

His father's parting shot to Penn coaches was: "Huh, not good enough? Marty'll be playing regular with the best team in the country in two years."

Accepting this responsibility, Marty, after starring with the freshman team while observing the one year residence rule at Notre Dame, stepped in at right half with the national champions last year and blocked the path for Elder, Savoldi, and Mullins on many a long run which resulted in victories.

Now He Carries Ball.

Seldom did he take the ball himself, but his average for the year, even at that, was something like nine yards a trip. This year Coach Rockne has let him take the ball on more frequent occasions, and when he scored twice yesterday against the Hoosiers he seemed to hint that he'd like to get the same chance next Saturday.

Marty merely wants a chance to make good his father's promise and show the Philadelphia folk that he was not overrating himself.

"I guess they're all laying for Tom Conley and me at Penn," Marty said, speaking of the coming game. "But that's all right with me. They can't pick out any one or two men on a Notre Dame team to watch and expect to win. If they all watch Tom and me the rest of the fellows will score while they're not looking.

Conley from Philadelphia.

Conley is the Notre Dame captain, right end and former all-city star and captain at Roman Catholic High school, Philadelphia. Last year he pulled the Southern California game out of the fire with his catch of a pass from Jack Elder, good for 54 yards.

Marty is German, which in Pennsylvania means Pennsylvania Dutch, and associated with the term is the idea of ruggedness, willingness to work, and modesty over personal achievements. Marty is the personification of the clan, and by now has worked himself into quite a stew over the impending game in an effort to let his friends know that he was justified in walking out on Penn.

8 Big Games Wind Up with Nobody Victor

quette has scored 122 points to its opponents' 7.

New York university, recovering from its defeat last week by Fordham, trounced Carnegie Tech in the Pitt stadium, 20 to 7. Even more surprising was the University of Iowa's victory over Detroit, 7 to 3.

Northwestern won its third Big Ten victory by whipping Minnesota, 27 to 6. The Gophers previously were tied for the lead by virtue of a victory over Indiana, 6 to 0. The Wildcats now have won from Ohio State, Illinois and Minnesota, matching Michigan's three victories over Purdue, Ohio State and Illinois.

Purdue's 25 to 0 triumph over Illinois Saturday was its third Big Ten conquest, it having won also from Iowa and Wisconsin, but the Boilermakers lost by a point to Michigan in the conference opener and so trail the leaders with a percentage of .750.

Indiana, the other Big Ten team in action, was beaten by Notre Dame, 27 to 0. It was the fifth consecutive victory this season for the Irish.

rows between the 35 yard lines for the same price that he would demand for the seats in the end zones.

Would Have $100 Seats.

Jacobs would divide his arena into sections, scale the seats from a $3 or $5 minimum at the end to $100 or more per ticket in the two presidential boxes, and he would have at least 500 seats in each of the presidential boxes.

The public sale of the $100 seats might occasion some social embarrassment, considering that the bootleggers are the only merchants in the U. S. A. just now whose business has suffered neither interruption nor impairment due to the current depression, but this is a democracy and broad mindedness is a national boast. For that matter, if the radio rights to the game were offered for sale, a speech by Mr. Al Capone would be far more absorbing than any other speech that I could think of offhand, and it would be very nice if counsel for Mr. Al Capone were to offer to place him at the service of the committee for radio purposes.

Certainly no other citizen is so well known and at the same time so little known to the public, and if I were offered my choice between his story and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's story, I should be much more interested in his. I feel sure that any practical editor who is free of supercilious obligations to the opinion of the right minded element would say the same.

For a decree of amnesty and an open road to that quiet simplicity which he professes to desire Mr. Capone might be willing to attend the football game and go on the air, not, perhaps, with the story of his life, but with defense and apology and his by no means negligible opinions on the problem of law enforcement.

Some national advertisers spend $30,000 for an hour's time and talent on the broadcasting chains, but the one who could present the Army-Navy game in resumption after all this time and for this purpose and Al Capone in a personal chat with the millions should be willing to drop another $50,000 on the drum.

No Limit on Charity Idea.

Of course, the unemployment relief need not be confined to the Army-Navy game. Yale, for instance, through some of her extragraduate spokesmen of more or less authoritative standing, has made a gaudy botch of the affair between Albie Booth and the Army. A showdown between Albie and the Ford Am team in a special game in the Yale bowl on the date now allotted to the Princeton game would run up a big score for the Red Cross and such other agencies as might be entrusted with the administration of the money to relieve the distress of the jobless.

The Princeton team, quite frankly, is an inferior football team this year, and tradition and the university treasuries alone will be served by the performance of the Yale-Princeton game. This is a radical suggestion, but as Mr. Hoover intimated lately, the unemployment situation is bad and the suspension of a few traditions, rules, or grudges for one season seem a trifling price to pay for the benefit that could be derived.

With fast work and a general spirit of willingness to submerge private interests for the alleviation of the national embarrassment a whole program of cross-matching between the big teams could be arranged and for the first time in football history a national champion could be identified in about twenty football games here and there.

After the kickoff the [illegible] started a march across the field, Herber, Fitzgibbon, and Molenda alternating with the ball. Lewellen broke through for a ten yard gain, placed the ball on the Spartans' 30 yard line. Fitzgibbon picked up three yards needed to score and Molenda kicked the extra point.

The Spartans opened up a fierce passing attack and the officials ruled a long pass good, claiming a Packer had interfered. This gave the Spartans the ball on the 15 yard line from this point Novotney went over for a touchdown. Lewis kicked the extra point.

Zuidmuider, who replaced Herber for the Packers, tore through the line for long gains in the final period, paved the way for the Packers' last score. Lewellen passed to Flaherty for 20 yards. Zuidmuider made 10 yards, placing the ball on the Spartans' 30 yard stripe. Lewellen passed to Dilweg, who raced over the goal line. Molenda kicked the extra point.

PROVIDENCE, 3; BROOKLYN, 0.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 2.—A field drop kick from the 27 yard line in the third period enabled the Providence Steam Roller eleven to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 3 to 0, here today in a National Professional Football league game. Frosty Peters, former Illinois star, made the kick on his second attempt in the same period.

NEW YORK, 9; STAPLETON, 7.

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The New York Giants defeated Stapleton, 9 to 7, today to remain in the fight for National Football league pennant honors.

Benny Friedman, famous Michigan star, won the game with less than a half minute to go when he kicked a field goal from the 32 yard line. Strebrooke started the Giants off with the first quarter with a touchdown. In the third period Ken Strong, former New York university ace, scored a touchdown and then booted the extra point to put Stapleton in the lead.

Chocolate and La Barba Will Fight Tonight

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Two brilliant featherweights, Kid Chocolate of Cuba and Fidel Labarba of California, meeting in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, furnish the few outstanding attractions of the week's boxing program.

There is nothing like a big stake, but there is plenty to interest the fans in this bout. Labarba once held the flyweight championship and the ebony Cuban did defend only once in his ring career, but the habit of giving plenty is the rule in both hope to get a crack at Battalino's championship. They have met once before, over a year ago, and Chocolate got the decision.

Mickey Walker, the welterweight title holder, who is looking for new worlds to conquer, gets a good test of his ability to fight heavyweights in Detroit Friday night. Mickey tackles Johnny Risko, Cleveland's well known rubber man, in a ten rounder.

GRAIN VALUES ARE DOWN NEAR SEASON'S LOW

Wheat Is Lowest Since 1906.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain prices are down to around the lowest of the season, with wheat the lowest since 1906 when cash wheat in Chicago sold at 69½c. Cash corn is down below 80c, and oats down to around 33c, with rye for December 47c. There has been a break of 50½c in December wheat and 32½c in May from the high point of the season, with the former off practically 54c from the high of a year ago, and May 59¢ lower.

Corn is almost 20c lower than a year ago for December, with May 23c lower. Oats are 18@19c lower than a year ago when prices were at the high mark, while now they are at the lowest of the season so far.

Net losses for the week were 1¼@2½c on wheat, 2¾@4¾c on corn, with oats 2¼@2¾c, and rye ⅝@1⅝c lower as compared with the previous week.

Cash corn has had a sharp decline and all grains are down to a level where the trade has become extremely pessimistic, and it would not be a surprise to see lower levels. In 1922, during the deflated period, cash corn sold in Chicago as low as 42c for contract grade, and oats at 31c.

Sentiment Is Bearish.

Few traders can see any good on the buying side, yet they are afraid to press the short side of the market, as they express the belief that there is little to be made in such sales, while accidents are regarded as favoring purchases on further breaks. Usually the low price on commodities is reached during the period of greatest depression in speculative sentiment, and there are a few operators who believe that the bottom has been reached or is very near it and that a moderate upturn would not be surprising as they say the outlook always becomes darkest just before the turning point is reached.

Liquidation and lowering of security prices to the lowest levels of the year, with many stocks the lowest they have ever touched, assisted in creating weakness in grains.

A feature that has caused weakness in wheat in American markets is the limited export demand, but there was evidence at the last of foreign countries cabling for offers of hard winters to a Chicago cash handled, although no quantities were mentioned. With the farm board companies doing an export business with foreign governments, their export sales are difficult to trace. They have been doing a good business, however, but when Russia came in and offered wheat down below 75c, all other exporting countries were unable to do business.

December liquidation is on in all markets and will be for the next two or three weeks. A lowering of present values is expected before liquidation is completed. About the first part of December a good rally should be due as most traders see it. In the meantime erratic markets are to be expected.

Wheat traders are experiencing their usual uncertainty as regards the Argentine crop. There were reports on Saturday that black rust damage would amount to nothing, and harvesting in the provinces of Santa Fe and Cordoba, which have about a third of the entire acreage of Argentina's wheat, would be on in about three weeks. Other cables asserted that there would be serious damage. In the meantime, Argentine exporters are not offering wheat freely, and Canadian wheat is being sold to Europe, and to China and Japan, shipments to the latter countries being from Vancouver, where a larger export business is said to have been handled than last year. The United States is out of the export business except on a small scale. Russian offerings have fallen off and there are claims that they will not again reach large proportions. There are also claims of the reverse.

Closing trades on December wheat were within a fraction of the week's low, December being 76⅞@76¾, March 81@81⅛c, May 82⅞c, and July 83¾c. Prices for the week follow:

EXPECT TESTIMONY OF SWIFT AND ARMOUR TO BE CONCLUDED SOON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—Presentation of testimony by the Swift and Armour companies in support of their petition in the District court for modification of the packers' consent decree will be concluded tomorrow or Tuesday, Frank J. Hogan, counsel for the two Chicag concerns, announced today.

The government and the American and National Wholesale Grocers associations, interveners, will begin placing their witnesses on the stand immediately and are expected to wind up their side of the case within about two weeks. This will mean that Justice Jennings Bailey, the presiding judge, will have all the evidence in his hands about Nov. 15.

Nearing the close of their attack on the decree, representatives of the petitioners today were confident of its outcome in their favor. Their confidence is based not only on the strength of the evidence they have produced, but also upon several important economic and political factors which they interpret favorable to them. Among the most significant of these is the belief that the government, although technically opposing their petition, secretly is sympathetic.

Through its counsel, Special Assistant Attorney General H. B. Teegarden, the government has indicated that its position in the case is that the burden of proof is on the packers to show that modification of the decree is warranted by economic changes since it was signed.

Regardless of the decision of the lower court, the case is certain to be appealed to the United States Supreme court for a final settlement.

ANGLO-CHILEAN NITRATE SHOWS $1,288,690 DEFICIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 2.—In its report for the fiscal year ended June 30, showing a deficit of $1,288,690, the Anglo-Chilean Consolidated Nitrate corporation announces that the basis of the proposed consolidation of the Chilean nitrate industry will be made public shortly and that with the closing of high cost plants a corresponding improvement in earnings is anticipated.

The $1,288,690 deficit covers the operations of Anglo-Chilean and its wholly owned subsidiaries and is after taxes, depreciation, and interest, including interest on debenture bonds, but before depletion. Afted deducting $224,762 for depletion the deficit for the fiscal year is $1,513,452. The consolidated balance sheet as of June 30 shows funded debt of $30,658,625, against $32,813,562, a decrease of $2,154,937 from Dec. 31, 1928, the time at which the fiscal year formerly ended.

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Texas corporation, which controls the Texas company, the California Petroleum corporation, and other oil concerns, today announced an offer to exchange its stock for common stock of the Indian Refining company.

The exchange would be on the basis of one share of Texas corporation stock for eight shares of Indian Refining. The offer is based on the proviso that on or before Dec. 15, seventy-five per cent of the Indian Refining stock shall have been deposited.

Stockholders of Indian Refining will receive about 157,200 shares of Texas corporation stock, having a market value of about $6,288,000, for the 1,257,728 shares of Indian Refining outstanding, the latter having a market value of about $5,028,900. Texas corporation closed on the stock exchange Saturday at 40¼, while Indian Refining closed at 4.

The Texas corporation has reserved the right to declare the offer binding when 51 per cent of the Indian Refining stock has been deposited. The offer is subject to the right of the Texas corporation to examine the records and property of the Indian Refining company and to determine on or before Nov. 20, 1930, whether it finds them satisfactory.

Formal announcements of the offer will be mailed to Indian stockholders within the next few days.

Discusses Some Fallacies Concerning Nature of Wealth

BY SCRUTATOR.

Fallacies concerning the nature of wealth have been prominent through all financial history. Certain of them are still current and supported in the legal sense by governmental authority even now and in the United States.

There was a time when precious metals were not only the symbol of wealth but actually were believed to be the thing itself. The mercantilistic theory that the country which sold abroad and collected gold to retain within its own borders was growing richer had such a vogue that English kings passed laws forbidding any foreign transactions that did not result in a metal balance in favor of England.

A hundred and fifty years, more or less, have elapsed since Adam Smith showed how two countries could each gain by ridding themselves of goods they had in surplus and taking in those which they needed. Yet, the insistence on a favorable balance of trade still persists; it has not yet penetrated that after sufficient gold for currency purposes is stored in the country additions to this stock mean only a trading off of goods that can be consumed for something that cannot.

Cites Another Fallacy.

Another fallacy now prevalent is that savings are something that can or should be maintained perpetually. The number of those who believe that 6 per cent with safety is a right are legion. The farmers of the country are more perturbed over the fact that land values, their so-called permanent wealth, are off, than they are by low returns for their labor. As a matter of fact, the land itself in most sections is as free as it was in the days when all a settler had to do to get it was to scalp the Indians who objected.

It is free in the sense that if the expense of clearing and improving with houses, barns and fences and roads, with an allowance for the past destruction of original fertility, are added together, much farm land would not sell above the resulting figure. All the wealth is the labor of man, not of nature.

Wealth, as ordinarily conceived, is destroyed when its earning power ceases. Your smart enterpriser knows that when a million dollars is invested in a manufacturing enterprise, that million will shrink to very little if the enterprise fails to earn dividends. It does him no good to plead that he is entitled to make profits because he has an investment.

With our regulated railroads we have adopted the principle that, as they have investments, they should be so handled by government that they shall earn 5½ per cent. No recognition is given the fact that their capital of some twenty-five billions shrinks every time a few thousand tons of freight are taken by trucks from them. To stabilize that wealth of twenty-five billions by granting it 5½ per cent a year has been found impossible.

Ask Truck Regulation.

Accordingly, we have the demand that the commerce commissions regulate trucks and if need be force them to charge high rates so that railroads can compete for their business. In effect, this is a plea that part of the wealth represented in trucks be destroyed by the same sort of flat that tries to keep the rails worth twenty-five billions.

Invested wealth, for the individual, exists only because his fellow men spend enough to give him his interest or his dividends. National wealth is poorly represented by the values of existing holdings; it is best represented by what the nation spends. A people are not rich because they have gold or rail stocks, but because they can spend freely. The real wealth is that which is worn out and eaten every day. The pleasant paradox is that the more this wealth is consumed the more it renews itself.

BEG YOUR PARDON

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE quoted George S. Milnor, general manager of the Farmers' National Grain corporation and president of the Grain Stabilization corporation, as saying that the Stabilization corporation "hods 60,000,000 bushels of wheat at different points from New York to the North Pacific coast. A large part of the wheat is at primary markets, but is not included in the visible supply." The 60,000,000 bushels is included in the visible supply, THE TRIBUNE is now informed, the quoted "not included" being in error.

DIRECTORS APPROVE GLOBE AND SYLVANIA INSURANCE MERGER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 2.—Merger of the Globe Insurance Company of America and the Sylvania Insurance company, Philadelphia, has been approved by directors of the two companies, and awaits approval of the insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania, it was announced today.

Reo Shipments Rise 112% Over October Last Year

Reo Motor Car company shipped 2,365 passenger cars from its Lansing factories during October, a gain of 112 per cent over October, 1929, when shipments totaled 1,116, and an increase of 237 per cent over September this year, when the passenger car output was 702 units, according to a statement by the company.

Pullman, Inc., Quarter Net Is $6,767,321

Net income for the third quarter of Pullman, Inc., holding company of the Pullman interests and all subsidiaries, was reported yesterday as $6,767,321, the equivalent of $1.74 per common share for the period. Earnings from all sources, after deducting all expenses incident to operations and reserve for federal income tax, amounted to $10,199,763. No comparison with last year was given.

Depressed conditions in the petroleum industry are reflected in the quarterly report of the Skelly Oil company. Net income for the third quarter this year was $646,522, equivalent after preferred dividends to 42 cents a share on the common stock. This compared with $736,274, or 59 cents a share, in the second quarter, and with $1,614,514, or $1.47 a share, in the third quarter of 1929.

September sales of the Western Electric company were $28,767,000. They were the largest for the month in the company's history with the exception of 1929, and exceeded September, 1928, by $5,471,000. For the first nine months of 1930 sales totaled $282,545,000. This compares with $295,113,000 for the same period last year. It is $82,125,000 greater than for the first three-quarters of 1928.

SAGGING STOCKS SLIP STEADILY, QUIETLY LOWER

Setting Tax Losses Appears Factor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 2.—Last week witnessed the complete reversal of the rising trend of prices which had set in on the principal financial markets two weeks ago. Stock prices, after following the rally at the beginning of the week to the best levels attained on the movement, abruptly turned about and declined under the force of quiet, but persistent selling to new lows for the year to date.

In the commodity markets, the improvement in grains and cotton gave way to weakness, with the result that corn prices dropped, fell below the season's previous minimum, and cotwith 2,000,000,000 bu average for all reports in October, and 2,614,000,000 bu by the government in its final returns last year.

Wheat Is at Its Lowest Since 1906.

Husking returns in the last two weeks have made a better showing than those received earlier, but in all there is the shortest crop since 1901.

The new corn crop was cured by most favorable weather conditions during the last two months and has moved earlier, in larger volume, and graded better than any previous season. At present about 75 per cent of the grain coming into Chicago is new and is being taken by the consumptive trade at a good volume. Cash premiums which have been high on both old and new corn suffered a severe decline.

Leading holders who have bought corn on all breaks for the last three months have unloaded and in most instances closed their spreads between long corn and short wheat, the decline in wheat helping in some instances to make up losses in corn.

December corn closed Saturday at 72¾@72¾c, March 76⅛@76¼c, and May 78⅝@78⅝c, and July 79⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

Oat Prices Are Low.

Oat prices are the lowest in several years. In Canada they are so low that the farmers get very little for them, and barley prices there are down to a level where Canadian farmers are refusing to sell barley because it does not pay for hauling.

Cash interests have turned over their hedges from December to May and there is a great deal of liquidation to come, along with a larger movement from the country.

Cash handlers of rye have brought back practically 600,000 bu shipped from Chicago a year ago to Georgian bay, and it is estimated that 1,000,000 bu in all will be returned to Chicago for delivery on December contracts. The rye has been bought at good discounts under December and elevator people evidently want to fill up their vacant space. The demand for cash rye has fallen off. The close on December was 47c, March 51¼, and May, 53¾c for old style.

WARD BAKING HEADS DEFEND THEIR RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 2.—The operating heads of the Ward Baking corporation have sent a letter to the stockholders voluntarily and at their own expense endorsing the present management and strongly urging its retention and at the same time denouncing the "part truths" and misrepresentations employed by "outside interests," seeking its control, it was announced by K. G. MacDonald, chairman. The reference is to statements made in letters from the committee identified with G. K. Morrow and Hayden, Stone & Co., which is seeking proxies to call a special meeting to effect a change.

These employés question the accuracy of the statements made in letters to stockholders by the Morrow-Hayden interest and cite figures showing what has happened to United Cigar Stores of America and other companies now under the control of the interests seeking to acquire the Ward corporation. Mr. MacDonald said that they deny that the corporation has gone backward or lost ground under the present management.

IN TEN MONTHS SINCLAIR MAKES 59 ACQUISITIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 2.—The Sinclair Refining company, one of the operating subsidiaries of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation, bought during the first ten months of this year 59 petroleum marketing companies operating in 17 states, it was announced today. This does not include the facilities of the Pierce Petroleum corporation. These 59 companies represented 1,511 bulk distributing plants, service stations, and dealer outlets.

In addition to these acquisitions the Sinclair company has bought from individual distributors seven bulk plants and 52 service stations and has obtained under long term leases 10 bulk plants and 169 service stations. This expansion program in the marketing end of the business was carried on almost entirely in the states east of the Rocky mountains.

Reports Improvements of 6% in Collections

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 2.—Wholesale and manufacturing concerns in the United States have shown an improvement of at least 6 per cent in their collections, as compared with a month ago, according to the November bulletin of the National Association of Credit Men. "The country-wide improvement in collections" is regarded by Dr. Stephen I. Miller, executive manager of the association, as a "dependable sign of better things just around the corner."

PREDICTS 1931 RECOVERY FOR BUILDING TRADE

Craig Reports Large Jobs on Spring Program.

While building construction so far this year is measurably behind 1929 in the Chicago district, signs point to an improvement in the building industry during 1931, according to Edward M. Craig, executive secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association.

Construction for the first ten months of 1930 has reached a valuation of $73,561,150 as against $181,849,100 for the corresponding period last year. To offset this unfavorable comparison Mr. Craig says there are many large projects scheduled for early spring and he feels that a revival of building activity should be apparent with the advent of the 1931 season.

What Figures Show.

Statistics compiled in the office of Building Commissioner Paschen show that during October of this year there were 217 building permits issued for work valued at $6,421,700 against 520 permits having a valuation of $22,527,200 in October, 1929.

Figures prepared by the research department of Mr. Craig's association show awarded contracts for construction during the last two weeks of October having a valuation of $2,066,000 while contemplated construction announced during the same period had a valuatfon of $5,275,000.

Childs Co.

Please give me the best information you have on Childs company.—T. T. C.

Childs company conducts one of the largest chain restaurant systems. The company and its subsidiaries own and operate 114 restaurants throughout the principal cities of the United States and Canada, nearly half of which are located in New York City and immediate vicinity.

Earnings trend was decidedly downward from 1924 to 1928, but in 1929 there was some improvement, although earnings were still below those reported for 1927.

With the election of a new directorate in March, 1929, control of the company passed from the Childs family to a group backed by Du Pont interests.

Although gross revenue this year has been slightly less than last year the new management has been able to produce larger earnings. In the six months ended June 30, 1930, net income was $668,329, equal to $1.36 per share on 362,857 no par common shares, against $420,343, or 68 cents per share in the first half of 1929.

At the close of 1929 the consolidated balance sheet indicated current assets of $3,331,739, and current liabilities of $1,717,204, leaving a net working capital of $1,614,535, against $2,314,994 at the end of 1928. Surplus was $5,273,758.

Dividends on the common are 60 cents quarterly. This stock is medium grade.

Morgan Lithograph.

Please give me what information you will regarding Morgan Lithograph stock and very much oblige—R. H. B.

Morgan Lithograph company, manufacturer of lithographed posters for indoor and outdoor use, has operated at a loss for two years partly because of heavy inventory write-offs necessitated by obsolescence of silent motion picture inventory.

In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, net loss was $345,005 after inventory write-off of $379,916. In the preceding year net loss was $434,472. The management recently stated that business had risen since the low point was reached in July and August of this year. The new photo-gelatin department is in operation and as there is a wide market for the advertising material manufactured by this process the company hopes to add substantially to its sales during the coming year.

Dividends were $5 per share until January, 1929, when they were discontinued. On June 30, 1930, current assets were $967,272 and current liabilities were $266,403. The stock is speculative.
